Publication Committee of the Christian Science Churches in Pennsylvania. PHILADELPHIA, May 15th, 1903. Editor of the WATCHMAN. Dear Sir: Editorial opinion seems to be divided upon the recent decision of the Supreme court of our State regarding the rights of Christian Scientists to be chartered. Many papers have taken exception to the ruling, claiming that it is unjust. In your issue of the 5th I notice reference to this matter, and in view of its importance I would like to add a few words from the standpoint of a Christian Scientist. It is unjust to assume that the practice of Christian Science violates the laws of sanitation or any other public health regulation. In no instance has infection followed this practice, which has effectively prevented spread of contagion as well as healed disease. The Christian Scientist at all times recognizes that disease needs to be met and mastered. Its presence is by no means ignored, and at no time would a true Christian Scientist consent to endanger the health of his neighbor by omitting necessary precaution to prevent spread of disease. Christian Science stands for purity and cleanliness, and wherever understood and advocated has resulted in elevating the standard of citizenship. In this connection, Dr. Ernest Lederle, president of the health department of New York City, recently stated: "Since I have been at the head of the health department I have received no proof of any violation of the rules and regulations of the sanitary code by a Christian Scientist I know they are reporting their cases of contagion as required by law, and are taking the necessary precautions of proper isolation and disinfection." Christian Scientists in their profession go no farther than Christians. Their works, however, are the logical outcome of this profession, and should be so recognized. God's word rightly understood ever has healed and ever will heal the sick, and neither Christian Scientist nor any one else can alter this fact from casting its rays upon the earth. To contend that Christians are not justified in relying entirely upon prayer for the recovery of the sick is to charge the founder of the Christian religion and his disciples with being at fault. He advocated no other means, and bade his followers look to God through the medium of prayer for relief from all ills. Christian Scientists make no attempt to practice medicine. They rely entirely upon prayer. They practice only upon themselves and upon those who apply to them for relief, and in no way do they try to enforce their beliefs upon others. The right of religious liberty granted by our constitution insures all the protection needed in the exercise of these rights, and this liberty cannot be withheld by the courts of any Commonwealth. The present decision changes in no way the present status of Christian Science. Many religious organizations have never sought incorporation, considering it unnecessary. Withholding a charter can in no way interfere with the growth and prosperity of this organization. Progress will come day by day and that it will be given legal recognition in this State. Faith in God will ultimately triumph, and until better understood Christian Scientists can afford to wait. ALBERT E. MILLER. Real Estate Transfers. Reduced Rates to Allentown via Pennsylvania Railroad. For the benefit of those desiring to attend the annual encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic, Department of Pennsylvania, at Allentown, June 1st to 6th, the Pennsylvania Railroad Company will sell excursion tickets to Allentown from all stations on its line in the State of Pennsylvania, on May 31st, June 1st, 2nd, 3rd, 4th, and 5th, good to return until June 6th, inclusive, at the rate of a single fare for the round trip. For specific rates, apply to local ticket agents. The Crystal Butter Package. Something New and Useful for Preserving Butter. Mr. J. W. Kennedell is in town for a few days for the purpose of establishing general agents for the sale of their Crystal Butter Package. By this device they claim that May and June butter can be kept sweet and pure during the summer. As the butter for the summer is made in a preserver it fills a long felt want and is just what the farmer and every city family needs. Each jar is encased in a neat, wooden package with movable bearings and packings between the jar and wood case, so there is no danger of breakage or damage in transit or use. It excludes the air from the butter for years, retaining the same flavor and sweetness that it had when packed. There is no soaking, saving the trouble you often have over wooden packages. It is admirably adapted for residents of cities and villages and is meeting with a large sale to this class of purchasers, who send it to the dairymen and have their winter butter packed in the summer time. The Crystal Butter Package enables the consumer to lay in his yearly supply of butter at the lowest price. It also enables the merchant to carry over his surplus butter for fall and winter trade. It also enables the purchaser to get the highest market price, instead of selling his butter at the lowest price usually paid in May and June. It also enables every family to eat pure, sanitary butter. Mr. Gross W. Mingle, head of the Howard Creamery Co's enterprises, has taken the exclusive agency of this valuable invention for this county and will be glad to show the package to any one, who wishes to either purchase package or territory. Books, Magazines, Etc. You will rarely see as interesting a table of contents as that of the June number of Everybody's Magazine. Beginning with the full-page front-piece of Thomas Wallace Ross, who has taken Parnell's place as leader in the fight for Ireland's freedom, and ending with "some additional remarks" by Simeon Ford, with his quaint and irresistible humor, the magazine is brim-full of bright, snappy, entertaining work by good writers, some of them well-known, others who are sure to be. "Then Ireland Will Be Free," by Frederick James Gregg, makes romance of Ireland's long struggle for liberty, and at the same time reduces to simplicity the much discussed home-rule question. Justus Miles Forman, in "The Needle of the Damned," weaves a difficult choice into a somewhat strenuous love-story. Intimate Portraits as usual are exclusive and introduce you to people whom you very much wish to know. "The Woe of Ah-Tee" continues the Indian Idyl begun in the May number. The Indian Idyl begins the May number. "The Coming Queen of Comedy," Lillian Pettigill concludes "Followers of the Home," making many interesting statements about the lives and thoughts of servant girls. Read "Significant Autobiographies" if you would know how it feels to be lifted from a small western town into Congress and out again. In "The Imperturbable Character Studies that has ever appeared in any magazine. Herman Whitaker, in "The Wheel of the Potter," gives us a stirring tale of the Northwest. The four "Little Stories of Real Life" in this number are above the average. Mary Stewart Cutting's "Glad Tidings" is an exceptionally good story. "With the Procession" is full of information, interest, and a great many bright things. Don't fail to read it.
