The Post Office to be Moved

Wednesday morning postmaster W. W. MONTGOMERY received orders from the Department to be ready to move the postoffice from its present location in the Arcade building to the room recently occupied by V. J. BAUER, the shoe dealer, in Temple Court.

As a matter of fact the location of the postoffice in Bellefonte is of very little concern to any one except the owners of rooms that are for rent. Since the establishment of free delivery here the postoffice is very rarely frequented except by the runners for the banks and a few business concerns that can not wait until the delivery of their mail.

What public purpose is to be served by changing the location of the office the Department, probably, alone knows-or it would be better to say that the overly important inspector who was sent here to pass upon the question is the sole possessor of a reason. Certain it is if the office is to be moved that the government will be involved in the additional expense of carrying the mails both to and from two railroads. This will not only materially increase the expense of the service but cripple its efficiency and promptness.

To cite one case. Under present conditions if the 9 o'clock train from Montandon, which brings our heaviest, the eastern, mails, is ten or fifteen minutes late, as is often the case, the carrier has ample time to get them to the postoffice, where the clerks are waiting to begin the distribution, and get back in time to receive the 9:32, or western mails. Suppose the carrier has four or five times as far to deliver the mail. It will be impossible for him to make the trips as above and he will be compelled to hold the 9 o'clock mails at the station until the 9:32 arrives, thus delaying the work of distribution and, consequently, the deliveries by the carriers.

Such delays will not only be occasioned in the incoming mails, but it will become in this way, for irrigation is all that the necessary to close the outgoing ones earlier than has been the case.

little concern to our people where the office country which are formed by water percois located, except that they have a right to demand of the Department its location where its greatest efficiency as a postoffice will be served.

We don't want to think or believe that there is any "graft" at the bottom of this movement but when those who are determined. doing this thing will add anywhere from $500 to $1,000 dollars of expense yearly to of them by the geological survey seems to the costs of handling the mails in this place, without bettering the service in any way, it has a decidedly suspicious look about it. Possibly the same gang that has brought the scandals on the Department at pose the ground. Washington, or one like it has something to do with this job.

Stitched Wound in a Man's Heart. London Surgeon—Case Successfully Treated After

LONDON, June 6.—Surgeon Furnivall successfully stitched a wound in a man's heart this week in the London Hospital. John Long, a laborer, was stabbed through the heart in a saloon row, and immediately after he was brought in Dr. Furnivall decided to make an effort to get at the very center of the wound. Long had lost a deal of blood, but his life was saved in the first instance by the blood becoming congealed and closing the wound.

The surgeon had to temporarily displace the breast cartilage, the ribs and the lungs.

At first he thought the heart itself would have to be removed, but on washing away the blood clots and raising it a little the puncture was found. With artery forceps he gripped the damaged part, and, first with catgut, then with silk, sewed up the small wound the knife had made.

Almost immediately there was an improvement of the pulse, and after seventy minutes Long was wheeled out of the operating theater to a bed, where he has continued to improve.

A similar case was successfully treated in the same hospital two years ago.

Starved to Save Loved Ones.

NEW YORK, June 6 .- Trying to save money to bring his family from the scene of the massacre at Kishenef, Nathan Long-bart, 45 years old, of No. 5 Elizabeth street, starved himself to death. Longbart came here three years ago from a town near Kishenef, leaving his wife and five daughters and a sister. He had sent money at regular intervals to his wife. He worked as a tailor for David Cohen, in Elizabeth street. To save expenses he slept in the shop on a pile of old clothes and rags. His wages were $8 a week. This week he re-ceived a letter from his wife in which she told him of the death of his youngest child.

On May 14th he sent his wife $13 and in the letter accompanying the money he said he hoped soon to send her more, so that she could get away from peril. Today Longbart was found dead. Fellow workmen said that for his breakfast he drank a glass of milk. For his dinner and supper he ate some bread and drank a lit-tle milk. Of his $8 a week, it is said that all but a few cents were sent to his wife.

An exchange says a new bunco game is being worked on unwary merchants throughout the country. A man enters the store, shows a government badge and states that he is in the secret service and on the lookout for counterfeit money. He looks over the cash drawer and invariably finds four or five "counterfeit" dollars which he confiscates. The whole thing is a fraud.

Sink Holes in Kansas.

Mysterious Depressions in the Western Part of the

An interesting phenomenon in Western Kansas is described and pictured in a recent report of the United States geological survey, says the New York Sun. One of the natural curiosities of the great plains region is known as the Meade salt well, in Southwestern Kansas. It made its appearance very suddenly in 1889.

On March 3rd in that year the famous Jones and Plummer cattle trail extended right over the spot where this depression was soon to appear. A wagon passed along the trail over the level ground. It is not known that this spot was seen again until twenty-three days later, when it was found that the ground for a considerable area had sunk into the earth and the hole was partly filled with water from an underground

The cavity was circular and the tracks of plainly seen on either side of the hole. A nsiderable area around the hole had been depressed to a smaller extent.

The rink hole remains, and on either side of it are still be be seen the road ruts and cattle trails along which for years scores of thousands of ranch cattle were driven from Northern Texas into Kansas. There were very few routes of travel across this wide plain. But the accident to the surface occurred on the most important of them.

Those who studied this depression were urprised to find that the water in it was very salty, although the ground water in the neighboring wells contained not a trace It was also found that this saline water had at times a high temperature, closely approaching the boiling point.

The geologists as yet have not been able to explain either the saltness or the high temperature of the water. It was also found that there were two distinct layers of water, the upper layer, three feet thick, being much less salt than the lower layer, which was six feet in depth.

Today the depression measures 260 feet across the top and 126 feet across the surface of the pond, which is nine feet deep the distance from the bottom of the water to the level of the plain is forty feet. A good sized house might be hid in the de

The geologists say that the Meade salt well is only the most striking of the Kansas sink holes. for there are many other depressions of similar nature in the state. Large section of the high plains which stretch across the western part of Kansas are fairly pitted with large or small saucer like depressions, sometimes so near together that a stone may be thrown from one to

Many of these sinks are shallow, but others are deep, like the salt well here described. The depressions are so numerous that farmers are talking of utilizing them for the storage of the spring rains, and thus conserving the water that falls into them for irrigation purposes. It may be worth while to make them serviceable great region needs to make it wonderfully

We have long known of the countless We might repeat that it is a matter of sink holes in the great cave regions of this lating through the limestone rocks, solving their mineral particles and thus carrying the rock away in solution. No such explanation, however, can be given of the sink holes of Western Kansas. They are still constantly forming and are gradually lowering the surface over large areas. but how they are formed is not yet fully

The study that has recently been made collects from rain in particular spots and by the chemical solution and washing away of the more soluble particles which com

Fifty Lives Lost.

A Torrent Came Out of the Blue Ridge Mountain Causing Death and Destruction

COLUMBIA, S. C., June 7 .- Out of the Blue Ridge mountains a torrent descended at day light yesterday morning on the mill town of Clifton in which there are 4,000 persons. It is estimated that fifty lives were lost. The people had no warning of the danger. It had been raining through the State for several days, but no fear was apprehended, and the working people of Clifton, who run more than 100,000 spindles in the three great cotton mills, retired without intimation that any thing unusual was in store for them.

At 5 o'clock yesterday morning the Pacolet river, which furnished the power for the mills, was in its normal state. One hour afterward the river had risen thirty feet and the loss of life and property was appalling.

The biggest mill in the county, Converse with 51,000 spindles was gone, and two others, Clifton and Dexter, were half washed away. The steel bridge over which the Southern railway from Washington to Atlanta crossed this river, was destroyed. It was supported by granite piers and was considered proof against floods.

The greatest disaster occurred in the mill town. The water rushed upon the town, overthrew houses and carried away men, women, and children.

Fifty deaths is said to be the minimum loss, but in the excited and terrified condition it is impossible to get details. No trains have been run and no correspondents can reach the town.

SPARTANSBURG, S. C., June 7.—The latest reports are that approximately fifty-five persons were drowned in the floods of Pacolet and Clifton. No list of dead is yet available here, but it is supposed that most of the dead were mill operatives. The bodies of four unidentified white people were to keep from the river helew Clifton to. were taken from the river below Clifton to-day. An estimate, regarded as conservative, of the loss to cotton mills in this county, is $3,000,000.

A mass meeting of citizens was held here to-day and $3,500 was subscribed for the relief of the flood sufferers. Many generous offers of assistance have been telegraphed from other cities.

Congressman Johnson left today for Washington to see Secretary of War Root for the purpose of securing federal aid if possible. The congressman was forced to walk to Cowpens in order to board a north bound train. No train has reached here since the sudden rise of yesterday.

Fatal Wreck Near Osceola

Freight Trains Come Together at Slate Cut-Three Killed and Three Injured.

About 4 o'clock Tuesday afternoon one of the most destructive accidents that has ever occurred on the T. & C. branch, took place at Slate Cut, a mile and a-half above Osceola, when a coal train ran into the south bound local freight, killing three men outright and badly injuring three

As nearly as we can learn, a local train also south bound, parted and the rear end of it crashed into the engine of the local, carrying destruction with it. Engineer Boger, of the local, his brakemen, Robert Wilson and Andrew Friday, were killed, their bodies being horribly mangled fireman Waite, of the same crew, and engineer Ogle Burley, of the coal train, and his brakeman, Harry Lane, were also badly injured. All the victims of the horrible The cavity was circular and the tracks of wagons and cattle on the trail were still son, who lived in Curwensville.

The mangled remains of the dead men were tenderly placed in a caboose and taken to Tyrone to be prepared for burial, and the injured were also taken to the same

It was a terrible affair and casts a gloon over the entire line. David Wierman was shipping a car load of horses and mules to Top and 6 of them met death in the wreck. All trains were delayed by the casualty.

Negro Waves Red Paper Vainly.

Six miles out from Sumter, S. C., an excursion train on the Atlantic Coast line. loaded with negroes coming into Columbia to spend the day, early Wednesday morning ran into a washout caused by a cloudburst the night before.

Conductor Clements was instantly killed, as were also four negroes, one being a woman. About 30 passengers were injured. Engineer Wilson was badly scalded, but not seriously injured. Surgeons were sent on extras from both Sumter and Columbia.

A negro who saw the washout made a desperate effort to warn the train with a piece of red paper in his hand, but the engineer either did not see his signal or saw it too late. The killed are : J. J. Clements, Wil-

NOLL-PARKS. -The marriage of John L. Noll to Miss Amber Parks, of Tyrone, which was solemnized in St. John's Episcopal church, in Huntingdon, on Wednesday evening, June 3rd, at 8 o'clock, was an event of more than passing interest to our readers because of the fact that the groom is very well known here, where he made his home before associating himself in business with C. F. York, the proprietary medicine manufacturer of Warriors-mark. He is a son of Mr. and Mrs. E. Noll, of north Allegheny street.

The Tyrone Herald publishes the following account of the wedding:

The wedding party comprising the happy couple and a large company of their relatives and friends, left Tyrone on the evening train for Huntingdon where the cere-mony was performed in St. John's Episcopal mony was performed in St. John's Episcopal church by the rector, Rev. F. C. Cowper. Guests were present from Tyrone, Bellefonte, Alexandria, Warriors-mark, Huntingdon and other places. A brief congratulatory reception was held in the flower-decked rector's room after the ceremony. Thursday evening Mr. and Mrs. Noll were tendered a reception at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. F. York, at Warriorsmark. Mr. Noll is a brother of Mrs. York. The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Parks, of Tyrone, and is an estimable young lady whose talent and amiability are recognized and admired. The groom is the son of Emanuel Noll, of Bellefonte. He has attained success as traveling representative for C. F. York, the Malena manusentative for C. F. York, the Malena manufacturer of Warriors-mark, and is a young man of energy and capability. Mr. and Mrs. Noll at once settled down to housekeeping in their pleasant new home at Warriors-mark, which the groom had complete and ready for their occupancy. That they may have a long, joyous and prosperous life is the ardent wish of their many friends.

-Last Saturday Autonio Puitch, a Polander who had been apprehended at Jersey Shore for burglary at Snow Shoe, escaped from the officers by jumping from the window of a room in which he was confined in Snow Shoe. Notwithstanding he was securely handcuffed he roamed about in the mountains for two days before he was re-captured and brought to jail here.

Spring Mills.

Mr. and Mrs. Bietz and son Leonard, of Mt. Eagle, were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Corman last week. They came here for their daughter, Maude, who has been attending school, and during the session made her home with Mr. Corman.

The school board of Gregg township orgida ized for the next year by electing the follo ing officers : H. H. Rachau, president; H. Braucht, secretary, and F. P. Hosterman treasurer. The examination for teachers resulted in the success of Lutitia Goodhart. Theresa Rachau, Clara Condo, Tibbeus Zubler, Erl Grove and G. F. Weaver.

This community is very much incensed and indignant over an outrage committed here a week or ten days since, by a fellow evidently little more than a brute. His daughter, a bright eyed girl of about twelve or fourteen years of age, visited a neighbor one evening, and it seems remained a trifle longer than her father designated. Accordingly he bravely armed himself with a buggy called on his neighbor and brutally lashed his daughter from the company, notwithstanding her outcries and pleadings but continued his brutality until they reached home. There was some considerable talk of having him arrested, and its very certain that if an agent for the prevention of cruelty to children resided here, his arrest would not be simply talked about, but he would be now in the clutches of the law, to answer for this dastardly and cowardly outrage.
