GOING TO THE CIRCUS.

Aunt Sarah Bebee, after whose father Bebee's Corners had been named, was a widow past fifty the day a sporty looking man drove up to her farmhouse in a fancy rig and wanted to arrange with her to cover the front of her barn with circus pic-

"Why. bless your heart, I never went to a circus in all my life!" she exclaimed in reply.

"But you are not too old to begin," he suggested. "Let me put the pictures up, and I'll leave you ten tickets of admission.

You can go and take all your friends."

'Land o' massy, but you don't know Bebee's Corners! Everybody around here is a Methodist or Baptist or Presbyterian everybody but me-and they won't even attend camp meeting if lemonade is to be sold on the grounds. I don't exactly know what my religion is, but if I went to the circus nobody would ever speak to me

The circus man wanted his bills on that barn, and he argued and reasoned for half carried down by the current and many an hour. He saw that Aunt Sarah was an people were killed by being dashed an hour. He saw that Aunt Sarah was an independent character and that if he could get her started she'd be ready to defy public opinion. The result was that she final-

"Well, go ahead with your pictures. I never saw an elephant or lion or tiger in my life, and I'll go and see the menagerie part anyhow. There'll be an awful row around here, and folks will think that Satan has got hold of me, but I'll have to stand it." The pictures were hardly up when Deacon Danforth happened along the highway and trembled. I low creek and in several place the piled over one another. Up to 2 o'clock this afternoon 200 bodies had been recovsaw them. He turned pale and trembled. Not in twenty years before had a barn on the Red Mill road been thus defiled. When he had recovered a little from the shock, he walked to the house and confronted the widow. For the first fifteen minutes the conversation was devoted to Satan, hades, Lot's wife, Judas Iscariot and other interesting subjects. But it gradually tapered off to hyenas, boa constrictors and alligators, and the deacon was almost smiling when he left the house. Next day Deacon Bidwell saw those pictures as he sat in his buggy behind his old white horse. The horse saw them before he did and stopped so suddenly that the deacon was pitched against the dashboard. For a long minute the good old man thought his eyes deceived him, but the true test of first supposed. The property loss and destruction of buildings alone thought his eyes deceived him, but the true state of affairs finally dawned upon him, will aggregate probably a million dollars. and he groaned and sighed and drove up to the widow's gate. "Widder Bebee, have you sold your liv in' soul to Satan?" was his greeting and then the fur flew. It was nearly an hour before he left the house, but he wasn't sighing and groaning as he went. On the contrary, he looked rather cheerful, and he called back from the gate:

'Yes; I s'pose there'll be camels there with two humps, mebbe with three, and they'll be worth lookin' at."

There was one more deacon in the neighhood, Deacon Burton. He was driving to town to get a pitchfork mended and was humming the air of "I Want to be An Augel" when the colored posters confronted him. There were short skirted, long legged damsels poised on barebacked horses or jumping through paper covered hoops. He stood and gazed and felt cold chills go up his back. He drove on to the farmhouse half expecting to find the Widow Bebee trying to turn handsprings over a kitchen wouldn't 'a' believed it!" he began as he entered the house. 'It's the awfulest thing ton was ready to go he reluctantly admitted:

"No, I don't s'pose it's any more harm to look at a lion than to look at a woodchuck if you don't git mad and rip and swear over

There were others besides the deacons. There was old Mrs. Gaynor, for instance. She wasn't exactly a zealot, but she never took a dozen of eggs to market without asking heaven to bless them and make the price 14 cents a dozen. She wasn't a bigot, but she contended that her own brand of religion was the only one to be saved by. She wasu't narrow minded, but when she heard of those circus posters she went down to see Aunt Sarah and to say :

"I've just stepped in a minit to say that if you go to that circus I can't never let you enter my doors ag'in."

Aunt Sarah started in to argue, but old

Mrs. Gaynor was on her guard against the wiles of Satan and wouldn't wait for further talk

The day of the circus arrived, and the widow drove into Medina to attend it. For some reason not to be explained a doz-en farmers around her had business in town that day and made an early start—some of them before daylight. Some of them also lingered and drove home after dark.

It was all over the neighborhood that Aunt Sarah defied public opinion, and it was old Mrs. Gaynor who determined to bring her to book. She went about in malevolence. She got up what she called a quilting bee and asked the three deacons and their wives and three or four others, and at a proper hour Aunt Sarah was sent for to be crushed. She arrived, and when asked if she had anything to say she very calmly replied:

"I didn't intend to see nothin' but the animals, but when I got in there Satan beckoned me into the circus tent, and I went. The jokes of the clown tickled me almost to death. That's all I've got to say."

"Deacon Danforth, what do you think of folded her arms and rolled up her eyes.

'Nuthin', 'cept that I sat jest behind Aunt Sarah and was tickled, too!'' he re-

"And you, Deacon Bidwell!"
"Waal, the hosses was wonderfully trained—wonderfully. I can't skarsely make out how they do it."

"And you Deacon Burton? You ain't goin' to tell me you was there too!" "I got kind of tired lookin' at the two hump camels, and as one ticket admitted to all I went into the circus part," admitted "And where did you all git tickets?" demanded the accuser as a sudden thought flashed across her mind.

"Aunt Sarah gave us deadheads!" answered the three deacons in chorus.
"And left me out, when she knew I was jest dyin' to see the whole thing ! Well, now, you can all go home without any supper, and if I ever speak to one of you ag'in I hope to fall dead on my own doorstep!" -By Casper Dean.

Cloudbursts Cause Loss of 500 Lives. Little Town of Heppner, Oregon, Almost Entirely Destroyed Sunday Night.—A Great Wall of Water Rushed Into the Gulch by Which Town is Separated Carrying Everything Before It in the Rush.

PORTLAND, Ore., June 15 .- Five hundred people lost their lives in a cloudburst that almost destroyed the town of Hepp-ner, Ore., at 6 o'clock last night.

Heppner is the county seat of Morrow county and had about 1,250 inhabitants. All telegraph and telephone wires are down and no accurate information can be obtained, but the estimate of the loss of life is based on the most reliable reports received up to-night. A report from Ione, seventeen miles from Heppner, is to the effect that 300 bodies have been recovered. A messenger who arrived there said a wall of water twenty-five feet high rushed down into the gulch by which the town is separated, carrying everything befo.e it. The flood came with such suddenness that the inhabitants were unable to seek places of eafety, and were carried down to death by the awful rush of water.

Almost the entire residence portion of the town was destroyed, except the business part, which is on higher ground. Huge boulders weighing a ton were against the rocky bluff. Early in the afternoon a thunder storm occurred, covering a wide region of country, and later on a heavy rain set in, many of the small streams overflowing their banks in a short time. Bridges were swept away like Soon as possible after the flood straws. had subsided the work of relief was commenced by the citizens. Dozens of bodies were found lodged along the bends of Yel-ered almost within the town limits. Fifteen buildings in the town of Lexington, nine miles below Heppner, on Willow oreek, were washed away but with no loss of life, the inhabitants having time to save themselves from the surging torrent.

At Ione, fifteen miles away, considerable damage was done to buildings but no loss of life is reported from there.

THE DALLES, Ore., June 16 .- A telephone message from Ione states that the latest find in the ruins of Heppner indi-This is regarded as a conservative estimate. One hundred and fifty of the best residences were swept from the earth. The debris is piled along the railroad track to the height of freight cars. The relief work is progressing at a satisfactory pace.

Among the incidents of the catastrophe was the saving of three lives by Julius Keitley, an old man of 70 years, who rode a mile and a-half on the roofs of houses and saved three people from the flood. James Kernau, of the Oregon Railway and Naviga-tion company agent, met his death at the telegraph key trying to call Portland to inform the outside world of the impending calamity. His little daughter, Katie, who was saved by remaining in the station house, said her father and mother were lost in the whirl of the waters. Katie stood by while her father was calling the Portland office, when the flood swept in the lower floor and ourled round him. Mrs. Kernan rushed out of the house and started for a hair.

'I wouldn't 'a' believed it, widder—I One of the most thrilling adventures was couldn't 'a' believed it!' he began as he that of Tom Shuter, who with his family. entered the house. 'It's the awfulest thing I ever heard of, and you know I've been in Chicago twice and seen some awful things." The widow had a reply ready. It began with hyenas and worked up to elephants, taking in lions, tigers, grizzly bears and sea lions as it rose upward. She talked so earnestly and well that when Deacon Bursel of the west side, where it lodged in debris, 150 yards from the canyon banks. Shuter then took his two little ones and swam 200 yards. He landed the children was carried down the stream in his house debris, 150 yards from the canyon banks. Shuter then took his two little ones and swam 200 yards. He landed the children and then rescued his wife.

> PENDLETON, Ore., June 16.—Three men who survived the flood at Heppner, R. D. Ball, J. J. Kelly and A. P. Bradbury, have arrived here, after having witness the destruction of the town and assisted in the work of rescue.

Mr. Kelly said : "The rain was not falling in Heppner, but could be seen some distance away. Sharp flashes of lightning were accompanied by the howling thunder. Then, suddenly, the thunder died away and a low noise was heard very faint at first, but growing louder. The city is on Willow creek, which makes a sharp turn above the city. As the noise grew louder and louder the people became frantic. Then in a moment the van of the flood burst into view around the curve of the creek, carrying on its crest the cabins and houses which stood in its path. The people made a rush to the hills, but were too late. The flood was upon them. The little river in five minutes was transformed into a roaring torrent, 400 feet wide and twenty feet deep, Houses were lifted from foun-dations and carried on the swirling waters. People were caught in their homes and forced to crawl to the roof. Then, as the houses moved down the stream they caught on to the trees and hung there until morning when they were rescued.

"The depot was left standing, also two warehouses containing 2,500,000 pounds of wool, upset me."

"I'm not upset;merely lost my balance." And my deposit's gone up with it."

Printing of 300 Years Ago,

An Ancient Book Entirely Composed of Lead. The most ancient materials employed, for recording events were bricks, tiles, shells and tables of stone. The modes of writing on these different substances were various. The tiles and brick were impressed with a stamp when in a soft state; the shells and tables of stones were etched or graven, the figures or characters being or graven, the figures or characters being out in their surface, and in some cases also stained with various colors. It was by the the ancient art of stamping that the walls, pallaces and towers of Babylon were coverwith hieroglyphics, which have but recently been brought to light from under the immense mound of Mesopotamia by Layard and other explorers. The patriarch Job, who is supposed to have lived about 2,300 years after the creation, exclaimed: 'that my words were now written!. O that that my words were now written! O that they were printed in a book! that they were graven with an iron pen, and hid in the rock forever!" Stung with the unjust accusation of his friends, he desires to record his words that the generation fol-lowing mightsee the justice of his cause.

The English translation has given the allusion to printing to the text, the origi-nal word signifying rather to engrave on a plate, which was doubtless the only printing known to Job. Montfaucon purchased at Rome in 1699 an ancient book entirely composed of lead. It was about four inch long and three inches wide; and not only were the two pieces that formed the cover and the leaves, six in number, of lead, but also the stick inserted through the rings to hold the leaves together, as well as the hinges and nails. It contained figures of Egyptian idols, and unintelligible writing. China, our ancestor in invention, from remote ages had a kind of stereotyping or printing. It was not, however, as some supposed, like our printing, phonetic, or the expression of sound, but, like the Egyptian hieroglyphical; being purely of an artificial structure, denoting every idea by its appropriate sign without any relation to the utterance, and speaking to the eye like the numerical cuphers of the Europeans, which every one understands and utters in his own way. And, like most other nations of antiquity, Chinese were content to remain without alphabetical writing.

Pope Leo is Improving. His Phy sican Keeps all Premature Reports of Death from the Pontiff. ROME, June 14-Dr. Lapponi, the Pope's physician, saw the pontiff to-day, but merely continued the treatment of his indisposition, which would not be worth mentioning if it were not for Pope Leo's age. His condition is much improved. All rumors regarding his indisposition and premature reports of his death are kept from him as far as possible, as they give him much concern, for the pontiff takes them most seriously. "Why do they want me to be gone?" he exclaims. "I do no one any harm." It is impossible to make his holiness understand that it is the interest taken in his person which leads to the publication of these rumors.

Sallie and Wille.

'Strange about giddy young girls, ain't it, Sallie?'

'How so, Willie?" "Why, there's a girl in town who used to oast that she was kissed by President Grant when she was a baby, but now she declares it was President Hayes who kissed her. In a few years she will be claiming that President Roosevelt kissed her when she was a mere child."-Roller Monthly
