THINGS ABOUT TOWN AND COUNTY

Next Wednesday the Logans will hold their annual picnic at Hecla park.

A new stone pavement has been laid in front of the U. B. church in this place.

A bush meeting is to be held in Butler's grove, near Howard, beginning July 23rd.

Miss Margaret Garman was the hostess at a picnic for girls at Hecla Park on Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Orrie Kline, of east Bishop street, are the proud parents of a fine boy who came to their home last week.

Blacksmith Jacob Knisely is building a new horse wagon for the Undine Fire Co. It is designed to be drawn by one horse.

Miss Elizabeth Gephart entertained about thirty of her friends at a porch party at her home on Linn street, on Monday evening.

The Mystic Shrine of Altoona, Williamsport, Bellefonte and other adjacent towns will picnic at Alfarata park on August 6th.

W. P. Price, formerly a conductor on the T. and C. railroad, is negotiating for the purchase of the Potter house livery in Philipsburg.

John Gobrecht's family have moved back to their old home at Hanover. John expects to remain here to work until the coal works leaves, at least.

James Bailey, the barber who was so badly burned by the explosion of a gasoline stove in his shop some time ago, is able to be at work again.

Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Luse, of Millheim, celebrated their golden wedding anniversary on Tuesday evening of last week. All but three of their children were present.

Thomas H. Murray, the distinguished Clearfield lawyer, was operated on for appendicitis last week. His case was very critical, but he is reported to be improving now.

The shoe contest alone will be worth going to Hecla to see next Wednesday. It is the special conception of chairman Jacob Marks and by the time he gets pulled off there will be enough fun for several picnics.

Last Thursday evening little Miss Helen Shagenhess celebrated the eighth anniversary of her birth with a delightful lawn party for thirty of her little friends. It was held at her home on Howard street.

The Bellefonte Y. M. C. A. has moved into its own new home on High street. The deed for the property has been secured and the Association's days of rent paying are over. Let us hope that all its days of financial troubles are past.

The plaster model that was submitted by a Philadelphia sculptor in competition for the Curtin monument and has occupied a place in one of the post-office windows for several years, has been cleaned up and removed to Gregg post rooms.

The Curtin memorial commission met in Harrisburg on Thursday of last week and organized for another year by electing Gov. Pennypacker, president, and Sen. A. E. Patton, secretary and treasurer. Progress was all that was reported at the meeting.

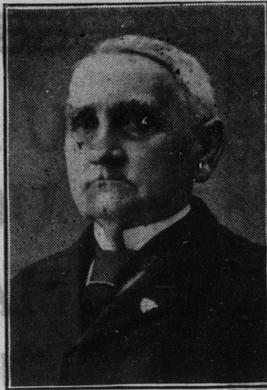

On Monday morning, just as Mrs. Miles Mattern was stepping off the platform of the cistern at her home in Patton township she was unfortunate enough to break her left ankle in two places. The accident was rather an unusual one inasmuch as she neither fell nor made a misstep, but simply turned her foot as she stepped out into the grass.

Miss Gussie Smith, the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Smith, of north Spring street, became suddenly ill with appendicitis and her case became so acute that she was operated on on Wednesday evening. It was then found that there was diffused peritonitis. She rallied from the operation nicely and is resting fairly well now. It is sincerely hoped she will recover.

In answer to a petition presented by the lawyers practicing at the Centre county bar Judge Love has just handed down a decree ordering the postponement of all cases scheduled to be tried at the second week of the August term of court. As many of the lawyers expect to be away and the weather is expected to be hot the business of that week has been called off and the jurors notified not to appear.

The Rev. Daniel Greer was installed as pastor of the Centre Hall charge of the Lutheran church, last Thursday evening; the ceremony having been witnessed by a large audience. Rev. Ambrose Schmidt, of Bellefonte, ordained then ew pastor and the installation was conducted by the Revs. A. A. Black, of Boalsburg; Rev. Wolf, of Walkersburg, Md.; and Rev. Schuyler, of the Centre Hall Presbyterian church.

The Logan picnic at Hecla park next Wednesday is going to attract a great crowd. It will be the first big picnic of the season and the Logans are planning to make it a memorable one. They are not advertising a whole lot of things they do not intend having, but insure you a real good, old-fashioned picnic time, with amusements that will amuse, good music for dancing and good eating. Are you going?

COL. GEORGE A. BAYARD MEETS A TRAGIC DEATH.—One of the most shocking accidents that has occurred in Bellefonte in years was the cause of the tragic death of Col. Geo. A. Bayard about 11:30 Tuesday morning, July 7th. He was walking along the Pennsylvania railroad tracks, near the freight station, when No. 57, a local freight train was backing up. The Colonel was a little hard of hearing and usually walked with his head down, so it is supposed he was unconscious of his danger until he was struck by the caboose and rolled between the rails, where the train of six cars and the engine passed over him. There were several trainmen on top of the cars, but they could not see him and the accident was not discovered until the train had passed and a brakeman standing on the pilot discovered his body lying on the track.

He was picked up and carried into the freight station and the company physician called at once, but other than a few feeble attempts at breathing there was no sign of life after the accident.

Col. Bayard was one of Bellefonte's oldest citizens and it is only the truth to say that he was one of the town's best known men. He came here with his parents early in the thirties and during his more active years was prominently identified with the business and political interests of this community. For many years he conducted the old foundry and machine shop that stood at the rear of the WAZCZMAN building and in the days when farming implement supplies and machine castings were not to be had at every store he made acquaintances with consumers throughout the county that ripened into firm friendships and made his old age one of great pleasure, for few there were who did not know him and had not enjoyed some leisure moments with this genial gentleman.

He was a son of Dr. A. W. Bayard and was born at Saltsburg, Indiana county, 76 years ago. When a lad of six his parents moved to this place, which was his residence ever afterwards. His father, who died in 1860, had been a surgeon in the war of 1812 and at the time of his death was a pensioner of the federal government. Colonel Bayard married Martha Johnson in 1858. She survives him with their children: Mrs. George Bowen, of Canton, Ohio; Walter W., and John, of Los Angeles, Cal.; James, Ursula, Carrie, Sara and Roger T., at home, and George D., at Arcadia, Pa.

While Colonel Bayard's life was distinctively that of a manufacturer and business man he found pleasant diversion in politics. He was an enthusiastic Republican and prominent in the party councils in this county. His ambitions were not toward office holding himself, though several times he was elected poor director of Bellefonte. When he ran for treasurer of the county his popularity was sufficient to reduce the normal Democratic majority materially and his name was mentioned as a possibility for the post-mastership of Bellefonte under President McKinley, but he did not press his claims.

The title of Colonel he won for distinguished gallantry on the field during the Civil war. He first enlisted in the three months service as a private in Co. H, Bellefonte Fencibles, 2nd P. V. At the expiration of his enlistment he recruited Co. H, 148th P. V. and was chosen as its first captain. Later he won the rank of Major and was brevetted as Lt. Colonel at the close of the war. The engagements he participated in were at Chancellorsville, Gettysburg, Coal Harbor, Ream's Station, Wilderness, Spotsylvania, North Anna, Petersburg, Bristoe Station, Poe River, Deep Bottom, and Boydton Road. Col. Bayard was captured by the rebels near Petersburg and was confined in Libby and other southern prisons for months; his experience being a chapter of continuous horrors.

He was a member of Gregg post, which had charge of the funeral services on the morning of the 9th. It was a military funeral, with the band, Gregg post and Co. B, in uniform. A great concourse of people thronged the Presbyterian church where the services were conducted by Dr. Laurie, who had been the pastor of the deceased for many years. Dr. H. C. Holloway, and Revs. Wood and Perks assisted in the services.

The honorary pall-bearers were: Gen. James A. Beaver, Maj. Geo. A. Fairlamb, Capt. Thos. Myton, Geo. M. Boal, D. W. Woodring, Charles Smith, Past Department Commander Austin Curtin, Dr. Theodore Christ, D. E. Fortney, W. H. Messer, Dr. J. M. Thompson, Capt. W. H. Fry, John P. Harris, Wm. P. Humes, W. W. Montgomery, Frank P. Green, John Uzzle.

The active pall-bearers were General John I. Curtin, H. H. Montgomery, Herman K. Miller, Allen Smith, D. L. Sanders, Thomas Donachy.

GEORGE L. POTTER DIES UNEXPECTEDLY.—Few deaths that have occurred in this community for years have been more startling than that of George Lattimer Potter, at his home on Linn street, shortly after noon on Wednesday. He was one of our prominent citizens, a man of exceptional usefulness and so few knew that he was even indisposed that the announcement of his death seemed incredible.

Though Mr. Potter had not been really well since an attack of grip some time ago he was still attending to business and about as usual until last Thursday, when he was greatly affected by the heat while attending the funeral of the late Col. Geo. Bayard. He was at his office Friday morning, however, but at noon he became entirely over-come by the heat and was compelled to take his bed. His condition was not regarded as serious until late Tuesday night, when cerebral congestion occurred. It was decided at once to call Dr. McCormick, of Williamsport, in consultation and while his own physician was making the arrangements and procuring a nurse the next morning there was a cerebral rupture, causing apoplexy, from which he suddenly expired.

Deceased was the son of the late Capt. W. W. Potter and was born at Potter's Bank, April 6th, 1847. After a common school education he attended State College, Lawrenceville, N. J., and Washington and Jefferson, later taking up the study of medicine, which he abandoned afterwards because of his health. For several years he worked in the accounting department of the Pennsylvania rail-road offices here under the direction of his father who was the general agent of the company at this place. In 1874 he took up the work of underwriting fire insurance and has built up one of the strongest agencies in Central Pennsylvania. Mr. Potter was well known as an underwriter and adjuster and his services were frequently called upon in distant parts.

As a citizen, we have none better. Loyal and true to every interest of Bellefonte his time and energies were devoted to every public movement. Especially to those in distress was he attentive and helpful and the deep sorrow of his family will be shared by many who will ever remember him as a kindly, considerate, honorable gentleman. Mr. Potter was active in the political and social life of the community and was prominently identified with the best work of the Presbyterian church.

On June 21st, 1876, he married Elizabeth J., a daughter of W. C. Sanderson, of Eagle Mills, Clinton county, who survives him with their daughters, Marguerite and Sara Irvin, and his one brother, John I. Potter of this place.

Funeral services will be held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at his late home on Linn street. Dr. Laurie, of the Presbyterian church, will officiate.

THE "BLACK BARN" BURNED.—On the afternoon of July Fourth the "black barn" an old land-mark along the Lewistown pike, about three miles south of this place, was totally destroyed by fire. The barn was an immense structure and was formerly owned by Robert Valentine. Lately the farm came into the possession of the late Gov. Hastings who had started to fix it up for his own recreation just before his death.

It was occupied by Elmer Swartz whose son Harry was celebrating the Fourth with fire crackers. One of them was exploded in an empty paint barrel; causing it to explode and throwing fire all about the farm yard. In an instant the entire building was ablaze. There was little time to save anything and five horses, several colts and a calf were burned to death. Mr. Swartz succeeded in saving most of his implements, but at an exposure to the flames that nearly cost him his life. As it was he was badly burned and will not recover for some time.

Both the Hastings estate and Mr. Swartz had insurance and the barn will be rebuilt at once.

The losses of all his horses and the injuries he received himself made the matter of harvesting the crops that were about ripe in the fields, a very serious question. But there are good neighbors in that vicinity for they all turned in and in a couple of days had Mr. Swartz's entire crops out and housed away for him. Among those who came to his relief were Jesse Donovan, Nathan Dale, George Messer, D. M. Kline, Luther Dale and William Ross.

A very interesting pool tournament is in progress at the Knisely Bros. rooms and as each series is played off the interest seems to be more quickened. The games were opened by Linn McGinley and John P. Harris Jr. the former winning by one ball only after the latter had "scratched" on the ball that would have made him a winner. The second contest was between Robert Montgomery and Edmund Blanchard. They played 100 to 85 and Blanchard won, getting 85 while Montgomery had only 98. In Wednesday night's preliminaries R. S. Brouse played Joseph Katz 100 to 70 and ran out by the time Joe got 49.

Midshipman Alfred Terry Brisbin, U. S. N. is on Admiral Cotten's flagship, the Kearsarge, and writes from abroad that they have had a glorious time at the evolutions at Kiel, where they entertained the German Emperor and were entertained in return. They are now in English waters, where the international fetes are being continued.

Word has been received from Mrs. Lewis Grauer, who is in Philadelphia, with her little son Edward having his throat treated for swollen glands, that the physician is most sanguine of his recovery and that the boy is doing very well.

THE BELLEFONTE GLASS WORKS IN RUINS.—Another of Bellefonte's industries was wiped out on Sunday afternoon. So effectual was the destruction and heavy the loss that it is doubtful if ever there will be a glass factory in this place again.

Shortly after 2 o'clock on Sunday afternoon the mammoth furnace building of the Bellefonte Glass Co's plant was discovered to be on fire. It was a heavy timber frame structure 201x105 feet and dry as tinder. By the time the firemen got to the scene the entire structure was a mass of flames and a fiercer fire has never before been seen in this section. Great columns of flames swirled with the air fifty feet above the building; the heat being so intense that it was absolutely impossible to get near enough to it to play water, even if that would have been effective.

From the main building the pot room and engine house, 180x36, soon caught, then the two adjacent ware houses, 40x66 and 24x60 respectively, were next to take fire. It was a frightful blaze by this time and the heat alone ignited the hay shed in McCalmont & Co's. yard, 100 feet away, so that more trouble appeared among that bunch of light frame buildings. By hard work, however, the flames were stopped there and no other of McCalmont buildings was damaged. The old Thomas farm house, nearby, was afire half a dozen times, but finally came out with only a bad scorching. The old steel works building, to the west, owned by the Bellefonte Central R. R. and used as a car barn was last to go and might have been saved had it been possible for the firemen to get in close enough to it. It was an immense frame structure, very combustible and to add to the flames there was a great quantity of oil stored in the building by John P. Harris Jr. He succeeded in getting most of the barrels rolled out, but the heat was so intense out side that they exploded and burned up there.

Some idea of the intensity of the heat can be had when it is known that two lines of hose were burned off while the water was going through them and they were a considerable distance from the fire. At one time the firemen got in between two of the buildings and were so nearly overcome that they had to be pulled out and their hose was saved only by the use of lines. In order to keep themselves cool they repeatedly jumped in front of a stream of water and in a few seconds would be dry as punk again.

As to the origin of the fire it is supposed to have been caused by the carelessness of some one who had been in the building. The factory had not been in blast since early in the spring, but there was a night watchman on duty. In the day time some of the officers were usually there attending to business. In fact on Sunday morning president Knisely was there with several other gentlemen but everything was in good order when he left. It is said that a party of young men were seen leaving the building just before the fire broke out.

The losses are really very hard to estimate. While none of the buildings were, of themselves, very valuable yet just at this time they represented far more to their owners than their equivalent in cash, because they formed a very tangible nucleus about which it was hoped a prosperous business could be built up. The glass works people estimate their loss on buildings and stock at $50,000, against which there is only $11,000 insurance. The estimate may seem high, but when all the conditions are carefully considered it does not appear so.

McCalmont & Co's loss was slight; consisting principally of baled hay and straw. As luck would have it the hay shed was the only building in their yard that was not insured.

The Bellefonte Central had a property loss that is hard to estimate. While the $1000 insurance they carried will put up a car barn that will answer their purpose quite as well as the old steel works did, yet the value of the latter was way beyond the insurance on it.

John P. Harris Jr. lost about $1,500 in oils. He has a partial insurance.

HISTORICAL

The Bellefonte glass works were built originally in 1868 at a cost of $60,000. The property was never prosperous until a local company was organized and leased the factory in 1881. This company included Hammon Sechler, John Ardell Jr. Harry Sayre, Emil Joseph, J. Kyle McFarlane, W. R. Teller, John Anderson, Nicholas Redding and L. T. Munson. Mr. Munson was manager and Mr. McFarlane secretary. In June 1886 this company bought the factory and operated it until Sunday morning, Oct. 10th, of that year, when it was totally destroyed by fire. At this time seven buildings burned up, fifty-two new pots, a full set of stones for a new furnace and a thousand boxes of glass. The loss was estimated at $50,000. The insurance was $20,000. The work of rebuilding was begun at once and the fires were relighted in February of the following year. The factory was never very successful afterwards and finally fell into the hands of some glass workers living here who decided to try it on the co-operative plan. This scheme proved fairly successful and the men were just beginning to get firmly established when the coal strike of last winter so crippled them that they were forced to shut down. They had already matured plans for remodeling the furnace and getting the factory in blast early in the fall. Those interested in it are Oscar W. Hunter, George Rhoads, George Knisely, John Knisely, Jesse Cox, Samuel Smith, Allen Waite, John Waite, Philip Garbrick, Clayton Rote, Wm. Rider, Clay Rider, Isaac Smith, Joseph Smith, Lewis Borden, Chas. Gnisewite and Collins Pemberton.

ACCIDENTALLY SHOT HIS BROTHER.

Ulysses Grant Miller, better known as Less Miller, who is unmarried and lives with his mother on a small farm along the mountain side about two miles east of Salona, put a target on a post near the barn on Tuesday after dinner and stepped back a few yards to shoot mark. Just as he fired the first shot his brother Clyde stepped around the corner of the barn and the ball glanced from the side of the post and penetrated his brother's side just below the ribs, inflicting an ugly wound. The young man fell and rose again and walked back into the barn. His brother quickly ran to him and learning the nature of the wound he as quickly as possible summoned physicians, who probed for the ball, but were unable to locate it, but think that it imbedded itself in the kidney. The unfortunate young man was taken to the house and put to bed. Less says he thought he was the only occupant of the premises at the time of the shooting, as his brother had told him that he was going to the mountain to pick huckleberries and he thought he had gone.
