SAINT AND SINNER.

Heart-worn and weary, the woman sat,
Her baby sleeping across her knee, And the work her fingers were toiling at Seemed a pitiful task for such as she.
Mending shoes for the little feet That pattered over the cabin floor, While the bells of the Sabbath day rang sweet,
And the neighbors passed by the open door.
The children played and the baby slept,
And the busy needle went and came,
When lo, on the threshold there stepped A brightly figure, and named her name:
"What shift is this for the Sabbath day, When bells are calling and far and near The people gather to praise and pray—Woman, why art thou toiling here?"
Like one in a dream, she answered low:
"Father, my days are work days all, I know no Sabbath; I dare not go Where the beautiful bells ring out their call.
For who would look to the meat and drink And tend the children, and keep the place?
I pray in silence, and try to think God's love can listen and give me grace."
Years passed on, and with fast and prayer
The good priest climbed to the gates of rest, And a worn, spent woman waited there, Her work-scarred hands to her bosom pressed "O, saint, three-blessed, mount thou on high," He heard the welcoming angel say; When meekly, gently, she passed him by,
Who, mended shoes on the Sabbath day,

MOURNFULLY LATE.

The old farmer died suddenly, so when Judge Girty, his only son, received the telegram, he could do nothing but go up to the farm for his funeral. It was difficult to do even that, for the Judge was the leading lawyer in —, and every hour was worth many dollars to him.
As he sat with bent head in the grimy little train which lumbered through the fields, he could not keep the details of his cases out of his mind.
He had been a good, respectful son. He had never given his father a headache; and the old man died full of years and virtues, "a shock of corn fully ripe." The phrase pleased him.
"I wish to tell you," said the doctor, gravely, "that your father's thoughts were all of you. He was ill but an hour, but his cry was for 'John' John' unceasingly."
"If I could have been with him," said the Judge.
"He was greatly disappointed that you missed your half yearly visit last spring.
Your visits were the events of his life," said the doctor.
"Last spring? Oh, yes; I took my famly then to California."
"I urged him to run down and see you on your return, but he would not go."
"No, he never felt at home in the city." The Judge remembered that he had not asked his father to come down. Ted was ashamed of his grandfather's wide ocellars, and Jessie, who was a fine musician, sowinded when she was asked to sing the "Portuguese Hymn" every night. The Judge humored his children, and had ceased to ask his father to the home.
The farmhouse was in order and scrupulously clean; but its barrenness gave a chill to the Judge, whose own home was luxurious. The dead old woman who had been his father's servant sat grim and tearless by the side of the coffin.
"Martha was faithful," whispered the doctor, "but she's dead. His life was very solitary. The neighbors are young. He belonged to another generation." He reverently unclosed the coffin, and then with Martha went out and closed the door. The Judge was alone with his dead.
Strange enough his thought was still of the old barrenness of the room. Those lacked wooden chairs were there when he was a boy. It would have been so easy for him to have made the house comfortable—to have hung some pictures on the wall! How his father had delighted in his engravings, and pored over them!
Looking now into the kind old face, with the white hair lying motionless on it, he found something in it which he had never taken time to notice before—a eagerness, a nature fine and sensitive! He was the friend, the comrade, whom he had needed so often! He had left him with dead old Martha for his sole companion!
There hung upon the wall the photograph of a young man with an eager, strong face, looking proudly at a chubby boy on his knee. The Judge saw the strength in the face.
"My father should have played a high part in life," he thought. "There is more promise in his face than in mine." In the desk was a bundle of old account books with records of years of hard drudgery on the farm; of work in winter and summer and often late at night, to pay John's school bills, and to send him to Harvard.
One patch of ground after another was sold while he waited for practice, to give him clothes and luxuries which other young men in town had, until but a meager portion of the farm was left.
John Girty suddenly closed the book.
"And this is the end!" he said. "The boy for whom he lived and worked, won fortune and position—and how did he repay him!"
The man knelt on the bare floor, and shed bitter tears on the quiet old face. "O father! father!" he cried. But there was no smile on the quiet face. He was too late.—Youth's Companion.

No Mosquito Would Remain.

When Colored Folk Burn Old Shoes, Well, the Pests Simply Get Out Quickly.

Mosquitoes which have soured Orange, N. J., for a week have brought to light more than one genius. Inhabitants of the colored section of East Orange, however, are using the most notable method to drive mosquitoes away. It consists in making an "infusion" of old shoes, and is said to have been the remedy prescribed by an old voodoo doctor.

An old iron pot is produced and hung on a crane over a brick fire that is started in front of a cluster of houses inhabited by colored families. When the pot gets hot, old shoes are placed in it, and soon a dense column of smoke arises and sweeps along in the direction of the wind with a big wave of stamped mosquitoes for an advance guard.

Many can be found who are willing to testify to the power of the smoke. There are some, perhaps, who would rather endure the mosquitoes than the pungent odor of burning shoes, but the colored folks take a different view of the matter, and the settlement is nightly lit up by these fires.

State Road Law Explained.

No Section to be Improved Shall be Less than One-Fourth of a Mile in Length—How Expense is to be Divided.

The legislative committee of the State Grange, composed of W. F. Hill, W. T.
Creasy and S. B. Bruges, in a circular explain the new road law.

The committee say that while the bill enacted by the last Legislature does not meet their ideals in road legislation, yet it is now law. The Governor has appointed a highway commissioner, and one of his first acts will doubtless be to issue a digest of the law in detail.

The new act does not disturb the present township road law.

The new law becomes operative in those districts only that apply for state aid in road improvement.

Petition for state aid for assistance in improving a main traveled road in the township may be either by the township supervisors, or by the owners of a majority of the assessable real estate valuation thereof through the county commissioners.

In case of same desire of two or more adjoining townships these petitions are to be jointly made out and presented collectively to the county commissioners.

The owners of a majority of the assessable real estate valuation in a township may block section in that township by sending a petition against it within thirty days to the county commissioners.

All work done under this law shall be by contract according to the plans and specifications to be prepared by the state highway commissioner.

Townships are eligible through their supervisors to become contractors.

As showing what is meant by an "improved road" in materials that may be used, by whom selected, and general condition of the road we cite entire the twenty third section of the act:

"Section 23. All highways improved under the provisions of this act shall require the construction of a macadamized road, or a telford or other stone road, or a road constructed of gravel, cinder, oyster shells or other good materials, in such manner that the same, of whatever material constructed, will, with reasonable repairs thereof, at all seasons of the year be firm, smooth and convenient for travel. The county commissioners shall have the authority to select the kind of materials to be used in improving any road under the provisions of this act. Any difference of opinion that may arise between the county commissioners and the township road authorities, as to the kind of a road to be built, shall be decided by the state highway commissioner. The state highway commissioners shall furnish the county commissioners and township road authorities information as to the probable cost of improved highways, as defined in this section.

"No section of the highway improved under this act shall be less than one-fourth mile in length or shall the improved portion thereof be less than 12 feet in width." The Grange committee say the state could well have afforded an appropriation of $1,000,000 or more per year, and should have done so. There is, however, but $300,000 per year for the next two years.
It is to be distributed to each county on the basis of the road mileage in each county ascertained by townships. This is a wise feature of the act, as it gives equal consideration to every mile of public road in the state, in the poorer as well as the more densely populated richer districts.

It is provided that "the county commissioners shall furnish, under oath, to the state highway commissioner, the total number of miles of township or county public roads, by townships." This mileage can be obtained in various ways that will be inexpensive, but yet world, we think, be satisfactory. This data should be locally preserved and be available for the various townships.

If the amount to which each county is entitled is not applied for this year, it remains in the state treasury to the credit of that county and may be drawn next year along with amount for that year.

Of the expense incurred in improving a road under the law the state bears two-thirds, the county one-sixth and the township one-sixth, payable in cash.

Left All to The Church.

Late Pope Bequeaths a Great Fortune to His Successor.

The will of the dead pope was opened at last Thursday's meeting of the Congregation of Cardinals. It consists of thirty-six pages, in the handwriting of Leo XIII, and leaves all the property of which he died possessed to his successor for the use of the church.

To each member of the family he leaves a present to be chosen from the valuable objects in his apartment. Similar presents are bequeathed to his physicians.

The total amount of the property, which is left is not yet known, but has been estimated at $10,000,000 to $20,000,000.
His private fortune, exclusive of the papal revenue, is believed to be fully $5,000,000, and the jubilee and other gifts are priceless.

After the will had been opened it was the intention of the cardinals to maintain the strictest secrecy concerning its contents, but it is learned that it comprises thirty-six sheets in the handwriting of the late pope, except some additions evidently made in his later years, when the pope found considerable difficulty in writing, owing to the trembling of his hand, which was so pronounced before his death that he was obliged to hold his right hand with his left when he made his signature.

The earlier portions of the testament include the recommendation which the testator addressed to his executors, Cardinals Rampolla, Mocenni and Cretoni, on the best way to continue the religious impulse followed by the holy see during later years.

The document then enumerates all the property which Leo possessed and provides that it shall go to his successor for the benefit of the church, including even the presents which might perhaps be considered personal rather than gifts to the pontiff as such. The money which the pope left is in a closed safe in his bedroom, the keys having been given to different persons mentioned in the will.

To the members of his family the pope left a present for each, to be chosen from the valuable objects in his apartment, and similar gifts were bequeathed to his doctor.
All the land purchased and buildings erected for institutions personally founded by Leo are put in the name of the holy see to avoid possible claims from relatives as the pope probably remembered that some time after the death of Pius IX the latter's nephews instituted a suit against the church, claiming 15,000 francs as their portion of his estate.

The will ends by providing that his remains shall be buried in the Basilica of St. John Lateran in the tomb which he has already chosen.

Wife Beater in Jail.

The Man Who Tared and Feathered Sentenced to 100 Days for Drunkenness.

Theodore Underwood, the wife-beater of Peruville, near Ithaca, N. Y., who was tared and feathered last week by neighbors, who were terribly aroused because Underwood beat his wife and children and drove his wife from home, did not profit by his severe lesson. Monday he received further punishment when Recorder Willard M. Kent sentenced him to 100 days in the Tompkins county jail. When his neighbors treated him to a coat of tar and feathers they made him promise to be good or severer penalties would follow. Underwood said that he would drink no more.
But Sunday night he came to Ithaca and immediately proceeded to "tank up." Monday he was still on the streets and was taken to the lockup by a policeman, who did not know his identity. When he was brought before Recorder Kent the evidences of his experience were plainly evident, the tar still clinging to his neck and hair. Un-derwood's wife refused to come to see him, although she was in the city.

BRUTALLY TORTURED.—A case came to light that for persistent and unmerciful torment has perhaps never been equaled.
Joe Golobick, of Colusa, Calif., writes:
"For 15 years I endured infernal pain from rheumatism and nothing relieved me though I tried everything known. I came across Electric Bitters and it's the greatest medicine on earth for that trouble. A few bottles of it completely relieved and cured me." Just as good for liver and kidney troubles and general debility. Only 50c.

Medical.

Is there anything in the evidence of one's senses?
Is there anything in the testimony of one's friends?
Can reliance be placed upon statements from people we know?
Are the opinions of local citizens of any greater moment than those of strangers?
Would you sooner believe people living

Curtis Johnson of 583 Bishop street freight truckman says: "I had backache and lameness across my loins for a year or more." At times the lameness was so acute I could lift nothing and if I stooped it was impossible for me to straighten.
When driving there was a steady ache over my kidneys the whole time and I had a dull tired feeling which took away all my ambition. I procured Doan's Kidney Pills from F. Pois Green drug store and they soon cured me from the whole combination of troubles and they did it quickly and thoroughly. My wife was also suffering from a tired grinding backache and she used Doan's Kidney Pills and they invigorated her generally.
She now speaks of them as highly as I do. We never came across any remedy which surpassed Doan's Kidney Pills."
