

FARM NOTES

The great increase of insect pests in orchards and gardens entails an enormous expense upon the farmers of this country, and yet it is possible that the farmer himself is at fault to a certain extent by assisting in the destruction of animals and birds that would perform for him valuable service if permitted. Beasts and birds of prey are sufficient to prevent any alarming increase of the birds that are capable of doing harm, but nearly all birds are carnivorous to some extent, as they can subsist on animal food.

ENEMIES OF THE FARMER

The farmer has not yet discovered a method for preventing the destruction of his crops by field mice and insects, but he devotes more time to seeking the lives of his friends, the owl and hawk, than he gives to the insects which he can control. The damage to a portion of the corn and fruit by animals and birds is insignificant compared with the almost complete destruction of crops by insects. The mole, which ridges the earth, simply does so while destroying grubs, as moles consume them in large numbers. The quail, which is harmless, is forced by necessity in the fall and winter to search for food under every leaf and in every spot where an insect and fruit are found, during which time he spends many thousands of insects, but in some localities the quail has been almost exterminated simply for sport, which is one of the most expensive luxuries enjoyed by man if he only knew it.

PROTECTING THE BIRDS

The subject most to be considered by farmers at their meetings is not so much the destruction of insects and field mice as the protection of the birds that destroy the pests, and this protection should be extended to the owl and hawk, as well as to those animals which keep rabbits in check. The loss of poultry cannot happen if snob birds are given the same care and attention as other stock, and if the farmer will consider the matter carefully he will notice that he loses but few chickens by the hawk compared with those appropriated by cats, yet he destroys the one and pets the other. A single dog in a community will do more damage to sheep in one night than all the wild animals in a year, but the losses to farmers from depredations of foxes are so small as to be hardly noticeable. The song birds that are said to be driven away by the English sparrow would return if the hawk and the owl were unobtruded, from the fact that the large majority of birds migrate, the sparrow remaining as food for the carnivorous birds, but the wild sparrow is sufficiently wise to remain close to the haunts of men, where he is safe from his enemies. In winter no crops are growing, and there are but few, if any, small chickens. But little damage can be done the farmer by hawks and owls at that season, while in summer they can secure food in abundance elsewhere, hence they should be given opportunities for keeping the sparrow within bounds.—Philadelphia Record.

—Soapsuds will destroy plant lice if used around trees and vines, especially the aphides that work on the roots. The suds may be sprayed on the leaves as well as thrown on the ground. Whale oil soapsuds are used to destroy scale, and if a little crude carbolic acid is added to the suds it will be all the better. For asparagus and celery soapsuds are excellent, and when thrown on the mature heap they assist in preventing loss of ammonia. If soapsuds are to be thrown away it will be an advantage to throw them where they will prove beneficial.

—Soons in calves is the great drawback in raising them. It is due mostly to indigestion, too much food being given, or food not suitable. When a calf is taken from its dam when very young care should be used in having the milk of the temperature of that which is fresh from the cow, and if the milk is skimmed a tablespoonful of flaxseed meal should be cooked as gruel and added to every quart of milk allowed. At no time should the calf be exposed to cold or dampness.

—Never fasten the nests to the walls. No poultry house can be kept clean of lice so long as the nests remain in a position that prevents their being thoroughly cleaned, and to do this properly they should be taken outside of the house. The nests are the harboring places of lice and need never-hauling offener than anything else in the poultry house. Ordinary soap and candle boxes make the best nest boxes.

FOR AND ABOUT WOMEN.

Much of the stress of the housewife's day would be saved if certain essentials were always to be found on each floor of her house and unnecessary going up and down stairs were thus eliminated. Among the needfuls called into use constantly are a clock that can be relied upon, sewing materials for household rents, a calendar, a brush broom, a broom and dustpan, or carpet sweeper and plenty of dust cloths.

If you are inclined to be stout, for merely's sake don't wear wide belts. If, like the Lady Jane of immortal memory, "spreading the slender waist," don't try to pull your corset laces tighter, but wear a very narrow belt of the same color, or at least of the same tone as your gown. Avoid a wide waistband as you would the plague, and let it dip down well in the front.

A birthday present of a bookshelf filled with books for a 6-year-old girl is a capital idea. It would be a good plan to choose a few just a little older than she would care for now. Then year by year she would have a new one to enjoy. The following list includes more, older favorites than newer ones, but they are always new and delightful for the child who has not read them: "Timothy's Quest" and "Poly Oliver's Problem," by Kate Douglas Wiggin; "Sarah Crewe," by Frances Hodgson Burnett; "Hans Anderson's Fairy Tales," "At the Back of the North Wind," by George MacDonald; "Alice in Wonderland," "Lady Jane," by Mrs. C. V. Jamison; "Little Women," by Louisa May Alcott; "Water Babies," by Charles Kingsley; "The Tales of a Grandfather," by Sir Walter Scott; "The Jungle Books," by Rudyard Kipling; "Tanglewood Tales," by Nathaniel Hawthorne, and "Leslie Goldthwaite," by Mrs. A. D. T. Whitney.

The skirt made with a yoke is for the moment extremely fashionable, and the yoke may be plain, trimmed, shirred or of different materials to the rest of the gown. A lace yoke so shaped as to be much narrower at the back than in front and made so that it fits in with a panel of the same lace, which covers the front breadth, or takes its place, is most effective, but the shirred yoke in wide or narrow cords, as is the more becoming, is also extremely effective. Some of the veiling and crepe de chine gowns have the yoke only at the sides and back and a perfectly plain front breadth. Then below the yoke, at the sides and back, the skirt is in accordance or wide pleats. This fashion is thought to make the hips smaller, but it is necessary to arrange the shirring most carefully, so there shall not be a particle of material more than is required on the hips and there must always be the effect of the yoke being shorter at the back than in front.

Not particularly new, but always effective, is the skirt with the hand-tucked yoke in bias effect, and then below the yoke the breadths alternately tucked and plain. Not only is this a smart fashion for muslin and thin materials of all kinds, but for taffeta and cloth of light weight as well.

A prominent hairdresser recently confided to a newspaper woman the following recipe which he vouches for as a certain cure for dandruff: Mix one teaspoonful of powdered borax, half a teaspoonful of sulphur, six ounces of rosewater and one ounce of spirits of rosemary. Shake well together and use as a shampoo, rubbing well into the scalp.

A specialist in nervous diseases says that women do not sleep enough. The average woman needs at least nine hours' rest each night. It is her frailty, contends this authority, to grudge herself this time of repose and delay retiring in order to finish up some piece of work. She will rush and hurry all day long, and then, when the household is hushed in slumber at night, she will sit to read the daily paper, thinking she will not have to pay for the time she is stealing from the health giving sleep that comes before midnight. Then there has to be considered the woman who cannot sleep. She should rigorously take enough physical exercise each day to reduce healthful fatigue. She should eat simple, easily digested food, avoiding tea and coffee later than her breakfast hour. A tepid bath taken just before retiring has a sedative effect, but hot bath is stimulating, and should not be taken at night by nervous subjects.

The kangaroo walk and the Gibson shoulders are doomed, said Mrs. Lucy Baker, president of the National Dress-makers' Association, at the third semi-annual convention in the Lexington Hotel, Chicago, a short time ago. "Tight-fitting waists with slooping shoulders and straight fronts are to do away with the loose pouch fronts, which set off the kangaroo walk, and also with the square Gibson shoulders of the military girl," she continued. "The coats and waists with long, sloping shoulders and broad belts make the figure look smaller," and Mrs. Baker sighed in a satisfied manner, for she is large of girth. She went on to say: "The French styles are so tight that the bust is made to look small, but the American women won't adopt that style. They dress to please the men."

"High heels, peckaboo waists and peroxide hair go together," was a declaration of Mrs. Baker that caused a shiver of horror to run through the 150 rural dress-makers in the hall. Apparently none was guilty of any of the three crimes, for three-fourths of them wore shirred waists and all wore decorously high collars. Mrs. Baker continued: "High heels were not made to walk on. They ruin the feet and figure and the persons who wear them are disgusting. Don't let any of your customers wear them."

Parson Jones' Storm a Whole Year Late.

Wants Farmers Now. Parson Jones, prophet extraordinary of disaster to the earth in general and to Atlantic City in particular, wants a vindication. It will be remembered that the parson, who is a preacher in the African Baptist church, predicted that a tidal wave would last summer sweep away the city by the sea, which he regards as the abode of wickedness. Many visitors to the shore last season were genuinely alarmed because of the prophecy.

Wednesday's rain and wind storm, according to Jones, fulfilled all the requirements of his warning. The fact that the damage came more than a year behind the scheduled time and that it was something short of a tidal wave are mere details that do not confute a prophet who is a master of his job.

The American farmer now comes in for a sample of the parson's prophesying. The mosquito-pestered Jersey agriculturist, of all his unhappily kind, is the particular object of this latest labor of the seer, which appears in the following letter to the North American:

Freehold, N. J., September 17, 1903.

To the Editor of the Philadelphia North American, Philadelphia, Pa. My Dear Sir I will enclose you a clipping of your Paper Dated August 27, 1902, at which time I told you what would happen to Atlantic City. And also what would happen to the American Farmer. Will you please read this Clipping and then write a Warning to the People of This Country. That the Rich and Poor Repent of their Sin and turn to God For the Lord have shown Me, The Great Punishment he have in Store for the wicked People of this Earth, And it will Come as it is Recorded in Isa. 29, Ch. 6, V. in addition with this he will send us such a famine As he sent upon The Egyptians in the Days of Joseph. Now the New Jersey Farmers Are Greatly Startled over the great failure of their Crops this year. But I am telling them don't murmur for the lord in preparing to give them what is Found in Amos, the 4 chap. & 6 Verse. Now Mr. Editor after you read this Clipping Will you be kind Enough to Send it to Me by Return Mail As I Shall Need it for future Reference. Yours Respect, ANDREW JONES, Address 116 Prospect St., Phoenixville, Pa.

Pears in Three Ways.

Some of the pears now on the market are decidedly unpromising; too hard, green and "woody" for eating raw. There are many ways of cooking them, however, besides the simple stew. Combined with Concord grapes they are delicious. To a half bushel of pears you take ten pounds of grapes, which must be washed, skinned and boiled one hour. The pulp must then be pressed through a sieve to remove the seeds. The pears must be peeled, cored, quartered and steamed until soft. Mix with grapes, adding for each pound of fruit a half pound of sugar. Cook gently for two or three hours, stirring frequently, and bottle while hot.

A ginger flavoring is liked by many. Add to four pounds of pears, peeled, halved and cored, three pounds of sugar, three ounces of whole ginger and one pint of water. Boil until the pears are tender and put in jars while hot. Pear marmalade is nice. To eight pounds of pears add an equal quantity of sugar. Peel and core the pears, cutting them with small pieces. Add the thin rind of four lemons and three oranges, slicing the fruit after removing the white inner skin. Boil for three or four hours, and put in jelly glasses. Cover when cold.

A Pension Swindler.

Pensioners are warned against having dealings with a smoothed tongued individual who is traveling the country representing himself to be in the employ of the government. He carries a small instrument with which he pretends to examine the lungs, etc., of his victims. He is a rank swindler. The only pension examiners the government has outside of Washington are the regular appointed boards in each county. This bogus examiner is about 5 feet 8 inches tall, weight about 140 pounds has blue or gray eyes and brown hair. He is aged about 32 years.—Ee.
