Keep the cow stables whitewashed and have no manure about to impart its effluvia to the milk.

-A good wash for trees is made by adding one quart of soap to two gallons of water, and when the mixture is heated add a pint of crude carbolic acid. The odor of the carbolic acid is enduring, and is especially distasteful to insects.

-If there are any draughts of air along the floor of the barn or stable the cause may be the openings near the foundation. Bank up with earth and trample it down Should the weather become cold sprinkle with water and the earth will freeze on the surface and become hard, affording an excellent protection against cold draughts.

-Never fasten the nests to the walls. No poultry house can be kept clean of lice so long as the nests remain in a position that prevents their being thoroughly cleaned, and to do this properly they should be taken outside of the house. The nests are the harboring places of lice and need overhauling oftener than anything else in the poultry house. Ordinary soap and candle boxes make the best nest boxes.

-The codling moth larvae, or "apple worm," can be best captured by winding bandages of heavy paper or cloth around the body of the tree. The worms, after leaving the apples which they have caused to fall, ascend the tree to pass into the chrysalid stage of their existence, and if they can be captured by the bandages and killed the tree will soon be rid of the pests.
All fruit that falls prematurely should be picked up every day and given to the hogs or, if convenient, let the hogs be turned into the orchard for a short time each day, and the worms will be destroyed before having opportunity to leave the fruit.

-The girdling, or ringing, of grapevines is done to increase the size of each cluster. It is not practiced exclusively, however, although some find the method profitable. The bark is entirely removed below the fruit cluster about a month before the these good points are set off to better adperiod of ripening, which hastens ripening about a week or two in advance, and enlarges the bunch and berries. The sap ascends through the pores of the wood to sustain growth, but the elaborated sap descends through the wood and the bark, and can go no lower than the point at which the girdle is made, where it stops and is utilized in feeding the grapes. Some injury is done the vine below the girdle, and it may not pay to girdle on an extensive scale

We will give our readers a remedy which, no matter how bad he is, will start such a horse 99 times out of 100. Of course it may fail one time in a hundred. When a horse balks, no matter how badly he sulks or how ugly he is, do not beat him; don't throw sand in his ears; don't use a rope on his forelegs or even burn straw under him. Quietly go and pat him on the head a moment; take a bammer or even pick up a stone in the street; tell the driver to sit still, take his lines, hold them quietly, while you life up either front foot; give each nail a light tap and a good smart tap on the frog; drop the foot quickly, and then chirp to him to go. So not introduce those of strong scents into an far I have won every bet. This may make you smile, but a horse has more common sense than most people are willing to give him credit for. The secret of this little trick is simply diversion. I am a firm be-liever that with kindness and proper treatment a horse can be driven with a string.

-Although on most farms the hogs are pushed forward after the fall is nearly over, they are not always put up in a condition in which to facilitate the fattening operation. The true way to use corn is to "finish off" with it, thereby hardening the fat. To really fatten a hog he should be a solution of this alkali. Sodium bicarbonate amender previous to being fed in such a manner, previous to being penned, as to force growth. First build up the frame for the reception of the meat that may be laid upon it, and to do so feed such food as will not only forward growth but keep the animal in a condition that will entail but little expense when the time arrives for getting him fat. And to do this in the most economical manner pumpkins, beets, turnips, carrots, winter squashes and after granulation begins. - Medical Arena. parsnips, together with finely-cut clover hay, may be fed with good results. It will not do, however, to feed such substances in a wasteful manner. A caldron or steamer should be used for cooking a large quantity of roots, and a warm feed should be given early in the morning, the mass first thickened with one part bran and two parts ground oats. At noon a feed composed solely of chopped roots, fed raw, but not too cold, will be sufficient. At night they should receive a slop, slightly warm, composed of ground oats, one part, and corn, with a little bran to somewhat thicken the slop. Such food will not only keep the hogs in good health but will be the cheapest diet at this season that can be allowed, as it will rapidly push them forward while the weather is not severe. The hogs will become very fat, and need be fed corn in large quantities only for two weeks before being slaughtered. It should not be overlooked that the sweetest and tenderest meat is always produced when the process of fattening is done quickly, and if this is followed but little exercise need be allowed the hogs. Exercise always hard-ens the muscles, and the hog is no excep-tion to the rule; consequently the more exercise taken the tougher the meat. While it may, no doubt, be advisable to permit ammonia. Apply with a brush, allowing of some exercise, for the sake of keeping the animals in health, yet the hogs that quietly eat their food and take their rest will always fatten readily. Nor should of cloth. hogs be surfeited with food. They should be so fed as to receive it at regular hours, and in such quantity that they will eat it up clean, but no more. In October or November they can be better managed than later in the season, as the quarters can then be more easily cleaned. It does not pay to keep a hog during winter. It should be slaughtered as soon as the weather is cold enough, for the food is partially wasted during the winter months in pro-viding heat. This is avoided in the fall

FOR AND ABOUT WOMEN.

Anybody who has kept track of the new autumn millinery knows that almost every other trimming has had to step aside to make room for graceful curling ostrich

Pale blue is considered a becoming color to wear with gray hair. A black velvet bonnet in a sort of a toque shape has a decoration of pale blue orchids on one side and a twist of blue velvet where the lace strings are attached.

"People with short, broad feet should never wear high-heeled shoes (though they almost invariably seem to do so,) as these force the weight of the foot forward upon the ball of the toe, thereby causing it to spread even wider than usual. They should be careful to choose as narrow a make of shoe as is comfortable—one cut on long lines and having nothing in the way of ornamentation that does not give narrowness, but not too pointed an effect, or the toe of the shoe will assume an undesirable

"People whose feet are too long should be careful to avoid a lengthy vamp, and should, if possible, wear Louis XVI heels (which need not necessarily be high ones,) thereby assuring a raised instep, and avoiding the unbroken line of sole set flat upon the pavement. A great difference in the apparent length can be made by having the buckle, or pon-pon, or whatever ornament finishes off the shoe, set as low down the toe as possible, and certainly a strapped shoe is most becoming.

Hair has a certain length of life. When the end of that time comes it falls out, and if the scalp is in good condition new hair comes in its place. The scalp should be brushed with a softer brush than is used for brushing the bair. Brushing the scalp stimulates the circulation. The fingers can be used for the same purpose. Place one hand on the brow, the other on the back of the head, press the fingers well into the scalp, and with a quick movement bring the hands toward each other. Don't use a brush unless it is clean. A hair brush should be washed at least every other day. Care spent upon the hair is well repaid, for good looks depend almost more upon the appearance of the hair than upon fair complexion, sparkling eyes, a rosebud mouth or pearly teeth; and all these wood points as each off to better ad-

Serve with a custard made of the yolks of eggs and flavored with orange or vanilla.

Pattison Condemns Philadelphia Politics

The Democratic campaign in York county was opened Wednesday night. N. H. Wanner presided, and Senator Dewalt, candidate for auditor general, was the first speaker. His remarks touched upon "snake" bills in the last Legislature, the libel bill and the handling of the State

Interest was centered in the address of former Governor Pattison. He dealt almost exclusively with Philadelphia politics, which he classed as the most corrupt on the face of the earth, and beyond the misrule of Turkey. Instances were cited in various wards of wrong-doing, which he claimed could not be overcome under the present Republican regime. Election of-ficers in Philadelphia, he alleged, were corrupt, and things were in such shape that three weeks before the elections the result was announced.

Mr. Pattison made a plea for personal registration. This, he held, could only be accomplished outside of Philadelphia, where an honest vote only could be cast. His defeat last fall he attributed to a manipulation of the ballot box by henchmen of the Philadelphia combination, which in the end would have to go, as previous rings have gone.

The libel law was roundly denounced, and the constitution, federal and state, quoted in support of free speech. Publicity, Mr. Pattison held, was the greatest safety valve for any public officer, and no books or facts should be withheld from the peo-

It is now learned that George Herman and C. J. Johnson, the constabulary officers stationed at Misammis, Mindanao, now fugitives from justice, not only took $6,000 in cash from the safe, but also turned most of the supplies into cash before their dramatic exist on the vessel they appropriated.
They took the steamer Victoria of thirtyfive tons register, and got sufficient coal from the steamer Irene by threatening the captain at the point of a revolver to carry them to Baliango, a town on the north shore of the island. There they procured wood and water before putting to sea again. They should have reached Sandagau, Borneo, Thursday. A cable was sent to the Governor of Borneo, advising him of their departure, and he at once dispatched the coast guard steamer Ranger to look out for Mauna Loa Erupting. Volcano on Island of Hawaii Throwing Lava-Confirmation by Wireless Telegraph.

Mauna Loa, which is the second highest volcanic peak in the Pacific, is in the northern part of the island of Hawaii. About six months ago excursionists, attracted by the news of an eruption, went to the island from Honolulu. In May, 1899, Mauna Loa became active and continued in eruption several days.
