THINGS ABOUT TOWN AND COUNTY

"Uncle Josh Spruceby" comes to Garman's next Monday night.

Mrs. John S. Walker gave a driving party to State College on Monday.

It snowed quite a bit here on Monday morning between eight and nine o'clock.

The snow that fell in this place Monday morning assumed the appearance of a regular young blizzard at times.

Supt. John Sharp, of the Ray shirt factory, stepped just a little higher than usual last week. A little daughter came to his home on Thursday morning.

The boilers and stack for the power house of the new Philadelphia trolley line have arrived at that place. It is said that the cars will be running not later than Christmas.

Clyde Jodon has moved from Reedsville to this place and is now living in the Larimer house, opposite the court house. He came to travel out of Bellefonte for Platt-Barber & Co., the wholesale grocers.

A surprise party, including about thirty of his friends, commemorated the fiftieth anniversary of the birth of Mr. Jacob P. Smith, at the family home on north Thomas street, on Thursday evening.

Rev. Dr. R. Leighton Gerhart, of Lewisburg, formerly pastor of the Reformed church in this place, is to be married to Miss Margaret Bell Quigley, of Newberry, on Wednesday evening, Nov. 4th.

W. R. Jenkins, the inventor of the Jenkins Iron and Tool Co., at Howard, has been granted another patent on a garden rake. The new one is regarded as a great improvement on the rake that is manufactured so extensively now by that firm.

Henry Keller, a little son of Harry Keller Esq., was thrown from his bicycle while riding on Linn street, Friday afternoon, and an ugly rash out near his eye. He was carried into the home of Henry Quigley, where a physician dressed his wound and he was taken home that afternoon.

Little Robert Gherry, the two-year-old son of Patrick Gherry, of south Spring street, got hold of a moth ball on Sunday and, childlike, swallowed it. Of course, there was great consternation about the Gherry home until a physician succeeded in pumping the ball out of the little fellow's stomach.

The attraction at Garman's next Monday night will be "Uncle Josh Spruceby." While it will not be of the highest class, yet the show has always given satisfaction here and seems to stand return engagements, year after year, without any falling off in receipts.

The Philadelphia Ledger assures the public school teachers of the county that boarding can be secured in that town during institute week at from $1.00 a day up. In private families the rate will be $1.00 a day. At the hotels the rate will be from $1.50 per day up.

The condition of Mrs. Samuel Bible, of Oak Hall, who has been so seriously ill with small-pox, was reported as being improved yesterday. She has had a very bad case, but the health authorities over there feel quite hopeful now of no further outbreak of the disease.

There are five patients in the hospital at present. William Johnson, of "the Branch" is the latest one admitted. He is being treated for his eye. Mrs. James Miller, of Bellefonte, was discharged on Wednesday. Roger T. Bayard is reported to be convalescing rapidly.

While preparing to erect the new coal wharf in R. B. Taylor's yard, on Monday afternoon, James Hoover was hurt by being struck on the head by a falling timber. He was in the act of raising the timber with a jack when the jack slipped, allowing the timber to fall on him. He was severely cut and bruised about the side of the head and his ear.

The work of removal of the Standard scale works from this place to Beaver Falls is progressing rapidly and it will not be long until that industry will be a thing of the past in Bellefonte. The new buildings at Beaver Falls are of buff brick, lighted by electricity, heated by steam, with porcelain lined lavatories for the men and electric cranes and tramways for haulage.

A house on Ridge street, owned by S. D. Ray, and occupied by Mrs. Emaline Pardee, caught fire on Wednesday afternoon and, with her furniture, was damaged to the extent of about $250. The prompt work of the department in getting the fire under control probably saved a disastrous conflagration as it is district of frame houses and there was a high wind blowing.

James McCafferty called at the WATCHMAN office on Wednesday to state that we were in error in the article in last week's edition concerning the building of the stone bridge near A. V. Miller's home in Spring township. The facts as stated were procured from what we considered a reliable source, but Mr. McCafferty says it is not true that he failed to finish the work, for he claims that he did complete it and in order that we do him no injustice we cheerfully publish his statement.

THE NEW FISH HATCHERY FORMALLY OPENED.—"I now declare the new Bellefonte fish hatchery formally opened," said State Commissioner of Fisheries Meehan to a group of a hundred or more half frozen spectators who had gathered at the property near Pleasant Gap on Monday afternoon to witness the ceremonial. He had prefaced this declaration with a short resume of the movement that secured the hatchery for this community and briefly stated what the aims of the institution would be to accomplish.

Commissioner Meehan deprecated the idea that there is not enough water available for the needs of the hatchery and laughed at the error that had seized some of our enthusiasts when that "foolish story was started." He said: "At the present time the springs are discharging 4000 gallons per minute into our beds, which is more than had at any other hatchery in the world, and if necessary we can increase this supply to 10,000 gallons per minute. It is our intention here to build up the greatest trout hatchery in this country. While trout will be the principal fish raised and distributed we will also raise gold fish for scientific purposes in the public schools and some bass. Mr. John P. Creveling, who is acknowledged authority in the world, as a trout culturist will have charge of this station and under his charge we expect soon to be able to supply from ten to twelve million trout annually for the streams of Pennsylvania. The enormity of this work will be better appreciated when I tell you that the first hatchery in the State raised only two hundred thousand trout the first year it was built and there were no applications for them."

Following his formal address to the people who had braved the biting wind and driven through the clouds of dust that swirled along the pike between this place and Pleasant Gap in order to display their interest in the State's work here Commissioner Meehan placed the first trout eggs in the hatching trough and explained something of the manner of their development. He stated that it requires from forty to one hundred days for the little trout to emerge from the eggs; the time being largely dependent on the temperature of the water. After twenty-five days the little life within is plainly visible through the thin walls of the egg. The first change noticed is the appearance of two black spots which are the eyes, then a V shaped connection appears about them. This is the skull. Next appears a tail to the Y making it look like a Y and that is the backbone of the little fish, then the egg sack appears on the ventral side and the little fish is a perfect enough organism to disport itself and have lots of fun within the egg. It can be seen turning somersaults, time and again, and when it finally wriggles out of the egg it does so tail first, because if it came out head first the skin of the egg would probably be some fastened about its gills and smother the little creature. For about twenty-five or thirty days after its appearance it is nourished by the egg, after that it is strong enough to take its food from the water in which it finds itself and is ready for distribution.

Following Mr. Meehan, Judge Love and Prof. H. A. Surface, the State Economic Zoologist, made a few remarks which concluded the program and everyone hurried away because there was plenty of pneumonia lurking about.

The hatchery building is a plain frame structure with rubberine roof and cement floor. On this floor the hatching troughs, about 14 inches wide and 6 inches deep, stand at a height of about 30 inches. They look like long, shallow watering troughs and stand at right angles to the sides of the building, leaving an area way between each pair of them and an open aisle between their ends from one end of the building to the other. These troughs are supplied from a lateral that runs around the entire building from which the flow of water is controlled by spigots. Into the troughs the trout eggs are placed on small wire screens so that they can be lifted about when necessary and the only other paraphernalia needed is a thin wooden cover for the troughs to protect the eggs from too strong light or sunshine.

The main building for the hatching of trout fry is 100x30 feet and capable of holding 150 sets of hatching troughs. Surrounding it will be twenty-five concrete pools for raising the fry till they are large enough for shipment.

The springs from which the water supply is obtained give forth a flow of 4000 gallons per minute, the water having a mean temperature of 50 degrees.

The hatchery grounds now embrace about twenty acres, situated around the railroad station at Pleasant Gap, on the L. and T. railroad. Half of the plot will be utilized for the hatching of trout, with a capacity of from 10,000,000 to 12,000,000 fry a year. The remainder of the ground will be used for the hatching of bass, gold fish and frogs.

Ponds for the habitation of the trout breeders and for bass hatching will be constructed all over the plot, which will be laid out with walks and drives and planted with shade trees.

The trout building was constructed under the supervision of N. R. Buller, who came here from Corry to take charge.

It is expected that by the first of the year the entire stock of the Allentown hatchery will have been transferred here. The Allentown plant will be dismantled.

Forest fires are raging along Nittany mountains below Hecla park. Much damage is being done owing to the large quantities of leaves on the ground that feed the flames.

The Episcopal church club of this diocese will meet in Williamsport on November 17th.

C. U. Hoffer, who recently underwent an operation in the Philadelphia hospital, has recovered enough to be removed to his home.

Prof. George C. Groff, of Bucknell University at Lewisburg and a member of State Board of Health, was in town last Saturday, having come up to investigate the small-pox cases at Oak Hall. He was much pleased with the way they are being handled.

"Uncle Josh Spruceby" has been here regularly every season for the past four or five years and, like Uncle Tom's Cabin, it never fails to draw. It is really a right clever comedy drama of New England life and with a good band and orchestra and a number of specialty people the show usually pleases.

The Centre Reporter is certain that the Wabash railroad is going to go right down through Penns-valley in its effort to get an eastern outlet. In fact it says a party of Wabash engineers have been running over the old Sir Morton Peto survey, that was made away back in the sixties, for that purpose.

The report comes from Philadelphia to the effect that the promoters of the trolley line over there have acquired a controlling interest in the old Altoona and Philadelphia Connecting railway, that runs from that place to Houtzdale, with a view of converting it into an electric system. The railroad has had a rather eventful career; having been the object of much litigation.

On Saturday, October 17th, the family of Mrs. Catharine Bitner held a reunion at her home in Spring Mills at which four generations were represented. The children present were: William B. and Robert U., Spring Mills; Joseph K. and Mrs. Susan C. Meyer, Penn Hall; Henry F., Millersville; James C. and Daniel N., Hastings, Nebraska, and Mrs. Blanche Long, Steubenville, O.

William Beamer and Mary E. Woome, both of Tyrone, went to Lock Haven, on Monday and thought, because they were both of age, they could get married without a license. When told by the alderman whom they sought to perform the ceremony that the license was a necessity they went to the court house and procured one, after which they were spliced and started back home rejoicing.

The supper and bazaar which the ladies of the Lutheran church are holding in Petriken hall opened last evening and there was a good attendance. The supper was delicious and while many of the useful articles offered in the bazaar were bought up at once there are still enough left to repay you for a visit sometime today or this evening. Another supper will be served this evening, to which you are invited.

About noon on Saturday the residence of W. H. Crissman, on North Thomas street, took fire from a spark from the chimney and there was great excitement in that end of town for a few moments. Harry Gerberich and H. F. Hartranft were firemen on the spot and, with a garden hose, they had the flames out before the fire department could get to the scene. Mr. and Mrs. Crissman were away at the time, but arrived home that evening. They came very near having no home to come to.

Joseph L. Neff, the veteran auctioneer of Roland, was in town on Monday talking so glib and getting around so nimbly that we could scarcely believe it was Joe. He says he is getting in shape for the sales next spring when he intends to show the public that age has only served to make him a better offer than ever. For forty years he has been in the business and in that time he has cried an average of forty sales a year and has secured bids amounting to two and one-half million dollars.

The Youngstown, Aaronsburg and Old Fort Turnpike Co. has appealed to the court for a change of venue in the condemnation proceedings. It will be remembered that they were awarded $3,000 for the property and at once appealed to court. The date for argument of the appeal being set, now they have asked for a change of venue. It is said that at a recent meeting of the stockholders of the company all of them voted to accept the award of $3,000, except Mr. Motz and as he holds a majority of the stock it did not carry. A 3 1/2 per cent dividend was recently declared; the first one since 1895.

On Saturday afternoon the Lock Haven Normal and Bellefonte Academy foot-ball teams met on the fair grounds and there was a scrimmage, the like of which is seldom seen on any gridiron. That same afternoon all of the "Big Four" might have displayed more scientific football but not one of their teams was animated with a bit more pluck or school spirit than was shown by these young gladiators of the Normal and Academy teams. It was "mixed up" from the very first kick off when young Weaver, the Academy's daring little quarter back, was almost "put out." There was more slugging than would have made a good ring contest and when the smoke of battle had all cleared away the visitors had won by the score of 5 to 0. Their superior weight counted against the light Academy team, but had they not done the bruising they did the result might have been different.

OCTOBER WEDDINGS.—It is the privilege of but few brides to be married on as perfect a day or amid a happier assemblage than attended the marriage of Miss Lottie Peoples Yeager and G. Edward Harper on Wednesday at noon. The ceremony took place at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Henry Yeager, on the corner of Allegheny and Howard streets.

The living room was handsomely decorated with yellow and white chrysanthemums and the bridal table was most artistic with white chrysanthemums and smilax. The wedding was designed to be only a family affair, but quite a number of the younger set were present and it was by far the most beautiful of the October weddings this season. Miss Louise Harper played the wedding march and the ceremony was performed by Rev. John A. Wood, of the Methodist church. Little Miss Julia Curtin was flower girl and Miss Jennie Harper, the groom's youngest sister, was maid of honor. His brother, Jerome Harper, was best man and the bride was given away by her brother, Harry Yeager.

Miss Yeager, who is an exceedingly attractive brunette, made a strikingly handsome bride in her going-away gown of blue voile and a picture hat to match. She carried long-stemmed white chrysanthemums. Her maid of honor, who is fair and slender as a lily, wore a becoming frock of white mousseline trimmed with Irish crochets. Her bouquet was of pink bonisone roses.

At the conclusion of the ceremony a delicious breakfast was served by James Summers and the newly-wedded couple departed on the 1:05 train for Philadelphia and New York. Upon their return they will make their home with the bride's mother, whose continued ill health precludes separate homes.

The groom is one of our well-to-do young business men. He is the youngest son of the late J. A. and Mrs. Minnie Harper and is associated with his brother in the grocery store which his uncle, Jared, established some years ago. His bride is a most capable and amiable young woman. She has since childhood been exceedingly popular and the gifts she received were lovely. Her sister, Mrs. J. M. Bentley, of Pittsburg, was the only out of town guest present.

KRAPE—BUCHER.—On Tuesday afternoon, October 27th, a most delightful wedding occurred at the Methodist Episcopal parsonage in Renovo.

The contracting parties were George R. Krape and Miss Effie M. Bucher, and the ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. A. R. Miller in the presence of a few personal friends.

The bride is the highly esteemed and accomplished daughter of Mr. Adam Bucher, one of the leading business men of Altoona, and the groom is the son of Mr. G. W. Krape, of Salona, Clinton county, and is a young man of most sterling qualities and will doubtless prove himself worthy of the noble young lady he has won as his bride. He is a mechanic and is in the employ of "Rodhouse Airing, Searing & Co." contractors for the extensive improvements now being made at Blair Furnace by the Penna Railroad Co.

After the ceremony the bride and groom remained in Renovo, as the guests of their friends, Rev. and Mrs. A. R. Miller, until Wednesday at 3 p. m., when they boarded the Buffalo flyer for Buffalo, Niagara Falls and other places of interest, to be absent sometime in the enjoyment of their honeymoon. On their return they will take up their residence in Altoona.

Mr. George W. Sunday, formerly of this place, but now at Altoona, was married to Miss Mary Kate Daley on Wednesday evening at 7:30. The wedding was celebrated at the rectory of St. Luke's Episcopal church in Altoona and the couple were attended by Mr. S. W. Mobus and his sister, Miss Blanche Mobus. After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Sunday went to 515 Willow Ave, where the wedding supper was served and they will make their home temporarily at that place.

The groom is a very well known young man in Bellefonte, where he has hosts of friends who will wish him well in his new life. His bride is a daughter of the late Mrs. Margaret Daley, of this place, and a very pretty girl.

STEEL—ROCKEY.—Last Thursday evening at the residence of W. L. Steele, on south Spring street, Miss Bertha, one of the daughters of the family, was united in marriage to Mr. Charles M. Rockey, of Zion. Only the immediate friends of the young couple were present to witness the Rev. John Wood, of the Methodist church, pronounce the ceremony, but there were enough to make a very jolly party about the wedding feast that followed the ceremony.

The American Bridge company has a force of 25 men at work on the bridge of the N. Y. C. railroad across the Bald Eagle creek two miles east of Beech Creek. The old bridge will be replaced with a new and heavier girder bridge, also of two spans, without any interruption of traffic. The work of replacing all the old bridges with heavier structures from the viaduct to that place has been going on all summer and now is almost completed.

There are ten engineers located at Coburn and the people of that vicinity are very much excited over rumors that the Wabash R. R. is hunting a route to the sea board and will probably go through Penns valley. Of course, up to this time, it is all rumor.

Fine new steel ceilings are being placed in the rooms occupied by the Racket stores.

To-night the Metropolitan Grand Concert Co. will open the winter series of entertainments in Petriken hall. It will be something of a very high order and if you enjoy good vocal and instrumental music here is an opportunity that should not be missed.

Charles Marien, a well known young man of Karthaus, was accidentally shot and killed on Sunday, by Peter Roley, while they were returning from establishing a hunting camp on the mountains back of Mosquito creek. Roley stopped to light his pipe and his hand struck the hammer of his gun, the load entering young Marien's stomach. He died a few hours later. The young man was said to have been the most expert miner in Karthaus.

William Turner was down from Union township, on Monday, attending to some business for his sister's children for whom he has been guardian. Mr. Turner has been in bad health for the past four months; being unable to do anything, but he thinks he is on the mend now and we sincerely hope it is so.

Dr. G. S. Frank, of Millheim, was in town on Wednesday looking the picture of health and we have often wondered how man exposed to all the trials and hard work that are the lot of a country physician could stand up as he does under it. But then that's the doctor's secret and, we presume, one of the reasons he is so successful.

William H. Walker, who came here from Chadd's Ford about a year ago to develop the lime stone on the Hastings farm up Buffalo-run departed for Philadelphia on Sunday. The property has been made a producer, a stock company formed to operate it and Mr. Walker has gone to Philadelphia where other opportunities await his energy.

Former deputy recorder W. D. Dukeman, who is now one of the book-keepers for the Beech Creek Coal and Coke Co., at Winburne, was in town yesterday greeting his many friends here and showing them that work in a mining district agrees with him all right. Robert Reed was down from his home in the country near Scotia, last Friday, settling up the business of the estate of the late Adam Kelley, of Millmore, of which he is administrator. Naturally the conversation turned to hunting and we wouldn't dare tell the public what Mr. Shine said about the game up there, for if we did there would be such crowds of hunter's on his place he wouldn't have room to drive his team about.

Miss Kate Gullis left yesterday for New York, where she sails Saturday on the Zealand for Antwerp. Miss Gullis is such an experienced traveler, having crossed the continent six or seven times and the Atlantic twice besides numberless short journeys; that an ocean voyage entirely alone is not apprehensive to her. JOE'S WILD TURKEYS.—In our edition of last week we stated that county detective Joe Rightmour had brought in a fine big wild turkey on the first day of the season and another one two days later.

The WATCHMAN always tries to be truthful and it did not mean to do Mr. Rightmour any injustice by saying his turkeys were wild, but it appears that several farmers out about Yarnell have taken exception to our statement, so we cheerfully make this correction.

"The fine big wild turkey" he brought in the first day was one out of Clayton Yarnell's flock and Joe paid $2.00 for it.

The other "wild turkey" that he brought in two days later he bought from Mrs. John Watson for $1.75, after borrowing her scissors to cut a few white feathers that made the bird look too tame.

While it is not a matter of very great importance we feel that it is due Mr. Rightmour's reputation for truth and veracity to make this correction, for we're sure he was very much chagrined when we said his turkeys were wild ones.

On Tuesday evening Mrs. J. E. Ward entertained thirty-six of the Doctor's friends most enjoyably at their home on Curtin street. It was the forty-fifth anniversary of his birth and the party was all arranged without his having the slightest knowledge of what was going on until he arrived home from Prof. D. O. Esters', where he had been purposely invited for supper. At best the Doctor is not very loquacious, so it was little wonder that he was altogether speechless when he walked into that big stag party. The evening was spent as men do such things until the dinner was served and then it became apparent what man is really good for. All of the party were seated in the dining room, where deft waiters served seven delectable courses, and long after the coffee and cigars the guests hung about the cheerful board telling stories and enjoying to the fullest the pleasures of the evening. As an expression of their good wishes the guests presented Dr. Ward with a handsome leather rocker and departed wishing him years more of prosperity and contentment.
