THANKSGIVING DAY.

Al, on Thanksgiving Day, when from east and from west, from north and from south, come the pilgrim and guest.

When the gray-haired New Englander sees round his board

The old broken links of affection restored,

When the care-worn man seeks his mother once more,

And the worn matron smiles where the girl smiled before,

What moistens the lip and what brightens the eye?

What calls back the past like the rich pumpkin pie?

O, fruit loved by boyhood—the old days recalling,

When wood grapes were purpling and brown nuts were falling,

When wild, ugly faces were carved in its skin,

Gleaming out through the dark with a candle within!

When we laughed round the corn heap, with hearts all in tune,

Our chair a broad pumpkin—our lantern the moon,

Telling tales of the fairy who traveled like steam,

With a pumpkin-shell coach, with two rats for her team.

—John G. Whittier.

In the City of Panama.

People and Things in the Capital of the Seceding State.

The city of Panama, the present center of the movement for independence in the state of that name, is irregular and rather well built. On three sides the sea washes the foot of a wall erected many years ago. To-day the wall stands, though there are picturesque breaches in it, but a land wall is either down or has been incorporated into some building, for the town has overflowed its old boundaries and it is difficult to trace them. These walls may have seemed impregnable to the Panamanians of the sixteenth century, but modern gunnery would make a before-breakfast job of their destruction.

The important business of the day is done in the morning. By 11 o'clock everyone has gone to breakfast. The stores are closed, the streets are deserted, and it is 3 o'clock in the afternoon before there are any signs of renewed life. The railroad employes and the foreign element made a pretense of longer hours, but it is merely a pretense after all, for business proceeds but slowly. Toward evening the scene becomes quite animated. The parks and piazzas are filled with children and their nurses. Well-dressed men and women saunter about. Groups of men talk business and politics, largely the latter.

The streets of Panama are narrow and crooked. Business is done on the ground floor of the houses, but every one who can lives upstairs. Many churches are filled with worshippers on Sunday and on feast days. Many more churches are in ruins from the effects of the fire or the attacks of time upon the soft rock walls and arches.

Early on Sunday morning the church bells begin to ring and the people are coming and going from prayers the whole day long. Before breakfast, before the revolution began, the Columbian army, in full dress, which means with their boot on, went to church accompanied by the military brass band. The band took its station in the gallery and the 600 or more soldiers, in two columns, entered on either side of the church. The band furnished the music, and it was not bad, but was far from the character which might be expected of the band. Prayers were said to the liveliest airs from "Olivetta," "Fatinizta," and other light operas. The effect was pretty and novel, but not inspiring of great awe and reverence. The soldiers remained in the church about a half hour and then returned to the barracks. The several hundred people who were in the church also left. They were mostly women and as they left the cathedral and crossed the piazza they were met by a large crowd of young men, who lined the walks of the park and stood ready to flirt if given the slightest encouragement. The Panama girls use their eyes very skillfully.

The soldiers of the army of the United States of Columbia are a fairly likely-looking lot of men, but as they are nearly all conscripts there is little esprit du corps. The officers are young men kept out of political mischief by commissions in the army. The police of Panama are uniformed like the New York finest. An ex-police captain from New York was employed at a handsome salary to instruct and drill them in modern police ways, and he seems to have succeeded very well, as the Panamanian policeman, while slight of physique, presents outwardly a neat appearance and is in every way known to the New York force for extracting alleged blackmail from a victim. A reform mayor was recently appointed in Panama, and his economies were so vigorous that the entire police force went on strike, and the city was temporarily without protection. An appeal was made to the governor, and the soldiers were promptly organized into a police patrol and scattered about the city. They acted as such until a compromise was reached and the blue coats again resumed their saunterings.

The Chinaman is an important factor in the life of Panama. He owns nearly all the largest stores and is generally prosperous. The laundry of the Hop Who in the United States becomes in Panama the "Lavanderia de Hop Who," but as a rule he leaves such work to the natives and engages in the merchandising. The import duties on luxuries are very light and there is much smuggling, so John is able to sell many things very cheaply, compared to prices they bring in the States. He rides in carriages, lives in good houses and marries into a fair class of native people. He is not considered so good as a white man, but is better than a negro or a native, and, in fact, compared to his position elsewhere in the civilized world, his social and business position in Panama is quite enviable. The Germans do nearly all of the banking and much of the business of Panama, and nearly all of them are married into the best class of native society. The head offices of the Panama canal are here and furnish a distinctly French element to the town, one which lives much to itself, however, and is quite exclusive. In all the humbler walks of life the Jamaica negro is much in evidence.

The climate of Panama is not especially healthful, but it is not so bad as its reputation would lead one to believe. At the end and at the beginning of the rainy season fever is prevalent and the city is really never free from it, but if the voyager will observe the ordinary rules of prudence and refrain from drinking the city water there is little danger of contracting any disease. During the yellow-fever epidemics no one knows who is to go next, and pernicious malaria is nearly as bad, if not worse, in its deadly effects. There is a constant stream of travel through Panama toward the west coast of South America toward South America and the United States and Europe. Several lines of steamers handle this traffic, and the register of the Grand Central hotel at Panama is as cosmopolitan as a trip around the world. Mining interests, rubber, hard woods and even foreign politics are here represented, for it is a dull day in the lobby when an ex-ruler of some country or other is not sitting in the cafe in exile from his native land.

The employes of the Panama railroad do more work than any others, but, as one man remarked, "We don't do much. We can our salaries staying here," and after all, perhaps they do. The foreigner who has adopted Panama as his home rises early in the morning. After his coffee he takes a drink, brandy, perhaps. With his breakfast he takes wine, between breakfast and dinner more drinks; at dinner more wine; after dinner a liquor; after the liquor more drinks until bedtime. There is more drinking in Panama among those who have the price than in any place on the continent, and the newcomer who attempts to keep the pace with the seasoned veterans will rue the day. The Panama man will tell you that more men have died of too much drinking in Panama than ever died of the fever, and from what one sees this is not difficult to believe.

The insects of the night, the heat of the day and the discomforts of the men are all forgotten, however, when comes the cool of the early evening. Then the lights are soft, the tropical foliage of the parks is exquisitely beautiful. The falling shadows soften the lines of buildings and hide the dirt of a people who live but for the day. The youth and beauty of the town finds its way to the public thoroughfare, to the sea wall or to the short trolley line, with its open cars. It is the social hour, for love making and all the pleasant things of life, and it is then that life in Panama does not seem so very bad after all.

They Say.

Celery is a foe to rheumatism, neuralgia, diseases of the nerves and nervous dyspepsia. Lettuce and cucumbers cool the system, and lettuce especially will help insomnia sufferers.

For malaria and erysipelas nothing is better than cranberries.

Fresh carrots and yellow turnips are good for nervous disorders, gravel and neuritis.

Watermelon is excellent for epilepsy and yellow fever.

Tomatoes are good for liver troubles.

Dan Patch Lowers Record.

Dan Patch paced a mile on a half mile track at Birmingham, Ala., last Tuesday afternoon in 2:03, and lowered the world's record for paces outstanding against him. The record previous to this was 2:03, held by Prince Albert.

Cobweb, the runner that paced Dan Patch, faltered on the turn just below entering the stretch, and but for this Dan Patch probably would have made the mile in less than 2:03. The official time by quarters was 0:30, 1:01, 1:32, 2:03.

The horse was in splendid condition, and with the exception of a slight breeze blowing down the stretch the weather was ideal. The track was hard and fast.

Fasted 51 Days and Died.

After a fast of fifty-one days, Frank S. Pickett, labor editor of the Boston Herald, died on Saturday at the Harper hospital, Detroit, aged 49. Fasting had been suggested for a cure for rheumatism and kidney trouble. He broke his fast on last Wednesday evening and was in such low condition Thursday morning that he was removed to the hospital. After several weeks of abstinence from food, the rheumatic pains disappeared. Other troubles appeared, however, causing the patient's death.

By a decision of the Supreme court of Pennsylvania just handed down, 30,000 acres of forest land in the mountain on Pike and Monroe counties—the hunting and fishing region, which for more than thirty years has been held under such exclusive privileges that even the stepping of a foot upon the property by one not included in those privileges made him liable to summary arrest and imprisonment—have been thrown open to the natives of the region and others, subject only to the general laws of the state governing trespass and taking of fish and game.

She—Do you think so?
He—Yes; it says to me plainly as words could, "Beware of the dog!"—Kansas City Journal.

J. Harris Mussina, manager of the Lock Haven opera house, was jostled from a car at Lock Haven on last Thursday, and the wheels passed over his right arm and the fingers of his left hand. He was engaged in unloading a car of coal at the time. At the hospital Mr. Mussina's right arm and ends of three fingers of his left hand were amputated.

AT THIS TIME OF YEAR.—The word catarrh means literally to flow down, and it has been observed that nasal catarrh has a downward course internally, and if neglected affects the lungs and brings on consumption. At this time of the year, this form of catarrh is greatly aggravated. The discovery of the constitutional nature of this disease led to the administration of a constitutional remedy for it, and the best of which we have any knowledge is Hood's Sarsaparilla—it radically and permanently cures.

JUDGE FOR YOURSELF.
WHICH IS BETTER—TRIE AN EXPERIMENT OR PROFIT BY A BELLEFONTE CITIZEN'S EXPERIENCE.

Something new is an experiment. Must be proved to be as represented. The statement of a manufacturer in not convincing proof of merit. But the endorsement of friends is. Now supposing you had a bad case of Lame, Weak or Aching one. Would you experiment on it? You will read of many so-called cures endorsed by strangers from far-away places. It's different when the endorsement comes from home.

Easy to prove local testimony. Home endorsement is the proof that backs every box of Doan's Kidney Pills.

Read this case:

W. E. Haines of No. 1 Beaver Row locomotive engineer says: "I was suffering from an acute lameness in my back and a dull lingering aching over my kidneys. I felt it in my head and there were pains over my eyes and in the top and back of my head and in the upper part of my spine. I was afraid I would not be able to attend to my duties as I was on night work and had to get some rest in the day time for an account of my back and these pains I could not rest well. I read about Doan's Kidney Pills and obtained them from the Bush Block drug store. They did me just the remedy I required for they removed the whole trouble."

ST. NICHOLAS FOR 1904.
IT WILL BE MORE INTERESTING, AND BETTER IN EVERY DETAIL.

ST. NICHOLAS is thirty years the best and best beloved of children's magazines! "I know of no magazine here or in England which will compare with it," says Rebecca Harding Davis. "The children of this generation are fortunate in having such a magazine," adds Lucy Larcom. "Nothing that has ever come into my household of children has been in equal degree the stimulus to their artistic and literary tastes," is George W. Cable's tribute.

And St. Nicholas for 1904 will be more entertaining, and better than ever before. B. L. Farjeon wrote before his death a delightful story called "A Comedy in Wax." It has adventure for the boys, fairy songs for the girls, and a pretty bit of love story for their elders; and will run through several numbers. Then there will be other stories, short and long, from Ruth McEnery Stuart, Bertha Runkle, Cyrus Townsend Brady, Joanna Miller, Gabrielle E. Jackson, Elliott Flower, Grace MacGowan Cooke, Frank R. Stockton, Albert Bigelow Paine, Julia Ralph, Laura E. Richards, T. DeWitt, Lieutenant Schwetkey, Margaret Vandegriff, Howard Pyle, Charles F. Lummis, and scores of other well-known writers.

The list of verse writers and artists, some of the very best in the land, who have promised their work to St. Nicholas in the next twelve months is a long one. Some of the interesting articles, all of which will be splendidly illustrated, will tell of Japanese and American boys, some queer mail carriers, interesting signs of old London, children in the White House, the Emperor Hadrian's wall, day with Hudson Maxim, how some animals sleep, secret alphabets, diving for pearls, historic dwarfs, and many other fascinating subjects.

To-day is a good day to subscribe! No girl or boy should be without St. Nicholas. Only three a year, and that small sum means limitless pleasure and profit for the young people in the home.

The Magazine is an illustration of what can be done for the boy, the fairy tales and the legends that are so far beyond rivalry in a special field that there is no second.—Salt Lake City Tribune. 48-44

THE CENTURY FOR 1904.
CAN YOU AFFORD NOT TO HAVE THE CENTURY THE COMING TWELVE MONTHS.

The Century for 1904 promises a wealth of reading and pictures that surpasses even the high standard achieved during 1903. Perhaps most notable of all the strong features of the volume will be Dr. S. Weir Mitchell's "The Youth of Washington," told in the form of an autobiography. It will be a daring and unique piece of historical work, written as if it were done by General Washington himself, sitting down in Mt. Vernon in his old age and recording, solely for his own eye, the story of his youthful life.

Then there will be a series of articles on "Italian Villas and their Gardens," written by Edith Wharton and illustrated, largely in color, by Maxfield Parrish. Ernest Thompson Seton has prepared "Fable and Wood-myth," brief papers in a new vein, the illustrations in the author's most fantastic and amusing style. Early numbers will bring John Burroughs' "Current Misconceptions in Natural History." Already have commenced the important Thackeray letters, telling the story of the great novelist's friendship with the Baxter family of New York, with facsimiles of manuscripts and drawings by the author. Roy Starr and other articles on the Great Northwest and the Great Southwest have been leading and widely acceptable features of recent volumes, will continue his notes on these regions; and there will be valuable contributions by Jacob A. Riis, Dr. James M. Buckley, and scores of other notable writers.

Fiction of the volume will include Jack London's strong new novel, "The Sea-Wolf," Maud Wilder Goodwin's clever "Four Roads to Paradise," and a wealth of short stories from Anne Douglas Sedgwick, J. J. Bell, Maurice F. Egan, Roy Roffe Gilson, E. L. Sabin, S. Weir Mitchell, David Gray, Gouverneur Morris, Albert Bigelow Paine, the list might be indefinitely lengthened.

The artists whose work will appear in the Century for 1904 include the best of the day. It is not a question for any cultivated thinking man or woman to-day, Can I afford to take the Century this year? The question is rather, Can I afford NOT to take the Century?

"One of the finest magazines of the day."
