

Weather Prophets Has Electric Eye. Using New Mechanism, Miss Coles Predicts Prosperous Christmas Season.

The only woman weather prophetess in the country who predicts when to plant, to kill, to make sauerkraut, to fish, to hunt, to have operations performed, who states lucky and unlucky days and edits a monthly magazine containing her predictions, lives at Kingston, across the river from Wilkesbarre.

She is Miss U. C. Coles, and she delights her subscribers in the Christmas number of her magazine, just issued, with a picture of herself. She is a good-looking, alert and level-headed young woman, and the story of her career is interesting.

Her father, Professor C. Coles, deceased, did all the things, and his works found much favor. When he died it was expected the magazine, "Storms and Signs," would be discontinued and the daughter and mother would get some prosaic woman's work and earn their living. But Miss Coles was not that kind of girl.

"I can do what father did," she declared to consulting friends. "I will take up his work."

And so she has. Miss Coles asserts that she has a certain electric eye, which her father invented. This mechanism, she says, has many times the power of the most powerful telescope, and is also a microscope. With the aid of this, she declares in her magazines, "the truth of the relationship between people and planets will now, by the aid of the electric eye, become a feature of public education."

The prophetess finds there are eight best days in December to kill pork. She also sagely declares that meat killed on certain days will spoil if left exposed to the air, and will not save well, even though pickled in strong brine.

Miss Coles predicts that during the first part of December business will be spasmodic, and she says there is no reason why the Christmas and New Year's trade should not be immense, as Christmas comes on a high-flood day, under the influence of the financial planet Jupiter. She also declares that the position of Uranus shows that the striking fever has not subsided and that while the sun is passing opposite to Neptune smallpox, diphtheria and chest and lung troubles will sweep the land.

Had $50,000 Starved. Reclusa Refused to Eat, Saying It Would be a Waste of Money. Possessed of $50,000, all in money, Eugene Crofut, 62 years old, a recluse of Huntington, Conn., died on Monday of starvation.

The old man had been failing for several years from not eating sufficient food, and a month ago after a fainting fit his condition became serious. The town selectmen tried to provide for him and send him to a hospital, but he refused all aid. His brother, Somers Crofut, Jr., of Westport, and Dr. F. I. Fileten, entreated him to take food and medicine, but his efforts were unavailing, and he gradually wasted away. The dying man's plea was that it would be a waste of money and he could not afford it.

Crofut's eccentricity dated from his parents' death, ten years ago. Of late he had thought his house haunted, and on one occasion he climbed to a tree top and remained there all night because he feared to enter the dilapidated building.

Angered because she was scolded, Frances Strine, 14 years old, an adopted daughter of Warren Brindle, a farmer living near Granville, Mifflin Co., hid under a porch on Saturday December 15th, and was not found until last Friday. During the six days that elapsed thorough search was made for the girl, but no trace of her whereabouts could be found, and it was feared that she had met with foul play.

Almost starved and shivering with cold, the girl crawled from the cellar of the Brindle house. She said that she had become offended at Mrs. Brindle for scolding her, and hid under the porch, remaining there for several days, when she entered the cellar through an outside door.

She found a small amount of cold food in the cellar, and managed to eke out a living until last Thursday, when the last scrap disappeared. Unable to bear the hunger and cold, Frances crawled upstairs to the living room of the family, where she collapsed.

The girl is in a frightfully nervous condition from her long exposure, and her feet are badly frozen.

Forceps Left in Side Killed a Physician. Dr. I. B. Washburn, of Rensselaer, Ind., is dead at a private hospital at Valparaiso, Ind., as the result of a curious blunder made during an operation performed two years ago.

He had complained of his side ever since the operation, but did not know the cause of the trouble, and recently decided on a second operation.

Dr. Loring operated on Dr. Washburn, and was amazed to discover in the patient's side, near the liver, a steel forceps about five and three-fourths inches in length. The forceps had become rusty. Dr. Washburn died a few hours after the operation. His son, who also is a doctor, says the forceps caused death.

AT THIS TIME OF YEAR.—The word catarrh means literally to flow down, and it has been observed that nasal catarrh has a downward course internally, and if neglected affects the lungs and brings on consumption. At this time of the year, this form of catarrh is greatly aggravated. The discovery of the constitutional nature of this disease led to the administration of a constitutional remedy for it, and the best of which we have any knowledge is Hood's Sarsaparilla—it radically and permanently cures.

Nothing by way of an introduction could be added to the experience and opinions given below, which could increase their value. Bellefonte people can safely be left to their own conclusions based on such convincing proof as this citizen offers. What is there lacking in evidence like this to satisfy a dyed-in-the-wool doubting Thomas?

Walter Whipple, formerly of Water street leading horse shoer of Bellefonte says: "I have a good word to say for Doan's Kidney Pills. I was miserable with back-ache and lameness across my loins. I knew it was from my kidneys for I had suffered from it prior to that. Sometimes I could hardly straighten after bending forward which greatly interfered with my work. I learned about Doan's Kidney Pills procured them at F. Fots Green's drug store and began using them. I had taken other medicines and worn plasters but I never had anything act so promptly as Doan's Kidney Pills. I have been quite free from the trouble ever since."
