DOES IT MEAN AN ORPHANS HOME FOR Bellefonte and Tyrone, might result in the maintenance of a home for the friendless children of Centre and Blair counties at this place.

It appears from the papers of the deceased that he left three wills : One executed in 1892, another in 1896 and a third written shortly before his demise, but left unsigned. While the will of 1896 does not dispose of all of his property, estimated at $200,000, it is probable that it will be entered for probate and the balance of the property divided among the heirs according to the intestate laws of the State. According to the '96 will he bequeaths liberal sums to his sister, Mrs. John Hoffer, his nieces, Mrs. R. G. H. Hayes, Mrs. Clara Moyer and the daughters of the late Jacob

His Tyrone and Bellefonte business blocks are to be held intact, the income from both to maintain a home for friendless children of Blair and Centre counties, which is to be established in the old Pruner homestead on Pine street.

While no definite conclusion has been arrived at by the heirs and the will has not yet been entered for probate this is not positively settled, but if it is decided that the 1896 will is valid the disposition of his property will be made along the above

A NEW PROPRIETOR AT THE HAAG House.-D. B. Newcomer and his son Morris, who have run the Haag hotel on Bishop street in such an orderly and proper manner for several years, have sold their interests in that hostlery to Fred Mosebarger, of Clearfield. The deal was made last week and the transfer will be effected tomorrow morning, when Mr. Mosebarger will assume control of the hotel.

The Newcomers expect to move onto Curtin street, where they will reside until some other business opportunity sufficiently attractive for them presents itself. In this connection we take the opportunity to the bride. Their wedding was made quite refer to the extensive improvements that an event in that community and a big have recently been made in the interior of Mr. Haag's already splendidly equipped property.

A SAD CASE. -Between four and five o'clock yesterday morning Eugene Welsh, who lived with his wife and three little children on Logan street, suddenly lost his reason. Running out of his home he raced through the yard shouting for the police and crying in a most distressing manner. Finally he went back into one of the rooms and, standing in front of a mirror, cut his throat with a razor. With the blood streaming from the wounds and the razor still in his hands he went out onto the front porch and sat down. Mrs. Welch's cries attracted the neighbors and police to the scene in time to save the man from bleeding to death. He was taken to the hospital, where he is in a precarious condition, but the physicians have hopes of his surviving. Welsh is a sober, industrious man and had been in his usual good health. And the great trouble is there is doubt as to whether this condition is not chargeable to the seed which, many fear, was injured by the severe winter. If this theory is correct there will be trouble in securing perfect seed to replant with. In addition to this discouragement about the corn a new disease, very much a-kin-to distemper, has broken out among the horses. The animal will be taken out of the stable seemingly well and in good condition and in a few hours will be coughing, discharging at the nose and stiffened up so that it can scarcely move. In some instances the leaders along the neck, over the breast and down the legs become so swollen that the beast is rendered almost helpless. So far the veterinarians or others are unable to tell just what the cause is or how general the disorder may become. The only thing they are certain about is that it comes very suddenly and renders the horse entirely useless. A remedy that some say has proven effective in certain cases is liberal doses of pine-tree tar, or the strong extracts of tar that are procurable at the drug stores.
