FARM NOTES.

-Do not wait until the potato vines are covered with beetles before applying Paris green, but attend to the work of destruction on the first signs of the appearance of beetles, so as to avoid as much damage to the plants as possible.

-The borer works from June to September, or, rather, the moth is always busy attacking the trees. Careful examination should be made for the borer at least every two weeks, and if the trees show judications of being attacked cut the borers out.

-No plant will long survive if the leaves are cut off, hence the way to destroy Canada thistles, or other plants that persist in growing, is to keep them cut down. As fast as they appear above the ground cut them, and as they will become weaker after each cutting there arrives a time when they can grow no longer.

-It is perhaps the proper system to water the animals at regular periods, especially horses, but animals differ, and may desire water at times when they do not re-ceive it. To give all animals free access to water is certainly not contrary to natural law, as they are better judges of eating and drinking, so far as they are concerned, than their owners.

-The squash vine borer eats into the stem and does damage because it cannot be reached on the vines. The only remedy is to watch for them as they appear and de-stroy them. For the striped cucumber beetle kerosene emulsion, sprayed on the hills early in the morning, is claimed to give good results, the ground to be also saturated so as to have the work thorough.

-There is considerable salt in kainit, and as salt is sometimes useful in destroying certain insects the kainit serves an excellent purpose in that respect; but it contains only about 13 per cent. of potash, which increases the cost of transportation when potash is purchased in that form. The muriate and sulphate contain three or four times as much potash, the cost of the potash being consequently less.

-Burdocks have been destroyed only by persistent work, and are considered nuisances and pests wherever they appear. They come regularly and remain, requiring work for their extermination when it can be given only by neglecting the regular crops. A remedy is now used for their extermination which is very simple. Cut down the plant and pour a small quantity of korosene into the head. The plant will then die and give no further annoyance.

—Gluten meal is that portion of the corn left over after the starch has been removed, and it is, therefore, a highly nitrogenous food. It should be fed in connection with other articles. When middlings are used it is best to mix such foods with cut bay that has been sprinkled, as the unadulterated middlings are liable to cause indigestion. Bran and linseed meal form an excellent combination at all seasons. Cows will always appreciate a variety, and it

-The slightest degree of filth in a milk can will injure the milk, and it is possible to have portions of the former milk contained in the can to be left over, despite the greatest care. First wash the cans in tepid water, to which a little powdered borax has been added, and then scald them with boiling water, adding borax again. Rinse with clean cold water, and place them where dust cannot reach them. Borax may be used freely with advantage in all water

-Scales should be used in every house and bain. There is more money in knowing than in guessing. The following proverb should be heeded: "Deliver all things by measure and weight." Weigh the stock, and grain and bay, as well as fertilizers, so as to deal justly and be fairly dealt with. In selling live stock the weight is usually estimated by the drover or butcher who comes to buy, and long practice on their part gives them a decided advantage over

The proper way to summer gowns. Even chiffon and mull feed oats cured in that manner is to pass them through a fodder cutter and they will be eaten readily by horses, cattle and

-Families that keep only one cow should endeavor to have the best animal that can be procured. More labor is required to care for a single cow, proportionately, than for a herd. A cow for the family should give a large flow of milk for at least ten months of the year, and the milk should contain not less than 4 per cent. of butter fat, as cream is one of the essentials. It is better to have a cow that gives even richer milk, but the majority of family cows are selected without regard to merits in that respect. It is difficult to raise the calves in such cases, hence in purchasing the family cow it will be profitable to pay a high price for a superior animal.

-Put in a good crop of fodder corn, sown in the row, with rows four feet apart, so as to cultivate it. Do not out the fodder until the ears begin to glaze, when it may be put in a silo or cut down, cured and stored in the barn. Such fodder should never be stacked in the fields, as its quality will be injured by exposure to sun and rains. The value of fodder is greatly influenced by the period of growth at which it is cut. If cut too soon it will contain a large proportion of water, and if cut too late it will lose its succulency. Experi-ments indicate that the proper time is when the ears are in the "milky stage," and just beginning to glaze. -It is always best to start with a full colony of bees, and one that is in every way in first class condition. It is true that one can buy a part of a colony for less money, but it is the dearest in the long run, and more liable to be a failure. A full colony of bees in one season is capable of storing 100 or 200 pounds of honey; besides, they may swarm and make from one to two colonies. A full colony of bees should always be in a condition to take care of themselves, and do not require such difficult manipulation as that of a nucleus, or pounds of bees, and a queen, etc. Full colonies are now sent in the ordinary hives used in

FOR AND ABOUT WOMEN

"One person in the house who is happy, is worth a dozen who are only trying to make other people happy."

Skirts are undeniably shorter in the back, but what they have lost in length is more than balanced by the additional width. Not only are the skirts very full, but frills and shirrings are added, and the amount of material used in some models is almost incredible. It is quite the fashion to make elaborate skirts unlined to wear over different slips, and especially black skirts which are inlet with black lace. A black gown of the latest mode is a veritable tour de force, and the toilette can be so changed by different accessories that it always appears fresh.

Very coarse laces are less used than formerly, finer threads with bold effects and wide meshes are quite as prevalent as ever. One of the fads of the moment is the union of such lace with the old English eyelet embroidery which is again at the height of popularity. In thin gowns, the much used Teneriffe wheels of last year again appear. But this time they are tather a part of the setting for the embroidery than of first importance themselves. gown of white organdie recently seen will illustrate their use. The full skirt was divided midway its length by circles cut in the material and scalloped fine around the edge. These were filled with Tenerifie wheels. The deep shaped and shirred flounce was an ornate affair made up of the eyelet embroidery helped out with the wheels. The waist was decorated in similar fashion.

The trained skirt is only considered fashionable for the decollete evening or for a wedding gown. The instep-length skirt is being accepted for the most elaborate costumes for day wear.

The round, broad sailors, with rolling brims in closely woven straws, are the favorite tailored effects for wee women, and velvet is by all adds the most popular trimming. Ornate designs in buckles, and smart, stiff quills are also used, but flowers are considered exceedingly bad form on hats to be worn by the little ones.

In truth, flowers, except for the most ex-pensive varieties and the ribbon garnitures on dressy lace hats, are rather under the ban of Dame Fashion, so far as little people are concerned. They are being used so much in the very cheap grades and in such atrocious colorings that the mother who desires her child to look as if she belongs to the truly elect steers away from blossoms of all sorts.

For wear with sailor dresses of linen, sailors, bound simply with velvet ribbon of a contrasting shade, or with fanoy but tightly woven braid instead of ribbon. These have no trimming except a broad band of ribbon, velvet or corded silk around the crown, tacked severely in the back and hen hanging below the shoulders.

Very small boys and girls will be much seen this summer in modified Russian blouse suits, or what might be termed a cross between the Buster Brown suit and the long, straight Russian blouse.

Then add one-half ounce of simple tincture of benzoin, shake slightly and fill up with elder flower water. Apply with soft sponge night and morning. You can ob-tain cucumber juice by taking the green oucumbers, slicing without peeling and boiling with a little water. When soft re-move from fire and keep in a cool place until ready for use.

Wide girdles are a distinct feature of the present styles, and have almost entirely replaced the narrow belt. A pointer for clever home fingers is that a girdle out with the centre back on a bias fold of the are used this summer to create the fashionable wide girdle. These and those of soft ribbon often have floating sash ends, with loops, knots or rosettes at frequent intervals. Girdles may be shaped according to individual fancy so long as they are kept wide. Some are plain fitted affairs, while many are crushed; some have a point top and bottom in the back, while others have only the point at the top.

The so-much-talked-of 'religious pleats,' or "men's folds," are simply very wide

The best shirt bosom board is one made of seasoned wood, a foot wide, one foot and a-half long, and one inch thick. This should be covered with two or three thick-nesses of flannel, drawn tight and well tacked in place. Cover again with canton flannel drawn very tight, and liberally tack. Punjab neck scarfs are to be worn without a collar by both men and women

While shirrings are very fashionable they are not so effective for wash materials a for wool or silk. A new notion is to stitch down the up-and-down tucks of a skirt around the hips with horizontal rows of machine stitching to the depth of a hip yoke. Panama cloth is a well-liked stuff for the separate skirt. Black chiffon taffeta walking suits, with instep-length skirts, are in great favor for afternoon wear. The 1830 or French blouse is the latest idea in black taffeta coats.

High turnover linen collars, hand-em-broidered, in English effect, held together by gold links, and finished with a soft tie of chiffon velvet, tulle or coarse woven silk line ribbon pleatings are among the newthe apiary, and are equipped with the necessary fixtures to have everything in working order the moment the bees are located and the entrance opened.
