Pope as Mr. Tarkington Saw Him

In Harper's Magazine for June Booth Tarkington gives a vivid picture of the new Pope as he saw him celebrating mass

"Pius X, is of a good height, strongly made, even stout, and has a fine grace of of carriage; his dignity is as great as his position, but utterly without haughtiness or pomposity or pride of office. He has none of the 'magnetism' of the 'popular preacher,' actor, or orator; nevertheless, he is recovered by magnetic; it is the magnetic of the control of t he is remarkably magnetic; it is the magnetism of unmistakable goodness and goodwill to all the world.

"Every one was laughing with excitement and the sheer pleasure of seeing him, and because he smiled a little.

"The Pope bowed and smilingly waved his hand; at which the cheering broke out again, lasting until the Pope came forward and stood near the edge of the platform, to speak to the Daughters of Mary-and to all the people. Silence fell instantly; there was only the faint, multitudinous rustle as every one leaned forward a little intent to listen. "His voice, mellow, clear and resonant, yet gentle, has in it the quality of lofty and practical goodness that is in his face. It is a strong voice, too, with the strength of the man who could give an incorrigible lout a fine beating for the good of his soul; and it is what might be called a 'brave' voice. A man with that kind of voice wil not be alraid of anything that might happen to himself only. But, more than these things, it carries to one who hears it the benediction that exhales from the spirit of Pixs X, to all the world, all the time.

"While he was speaking, the great clock, high over his head, belled out the hour, four. So intent were the people not to lose a syllable that a thousand unconscious whispers reproved each solemn stroke, saying, "Sh!" to the bell.

"Quite silently, and without so much as the sound of a foot scruffing the pavement, the crowd had drawn forward, and closer, leaving no groups and open spaces, until, at last, they formed a dense press; so that when the Pope raised his arms for the benediction and the people knelt to receive his blessing, the whole mass surged back like one large receding

Rest for Typewriter Ribbons.

Typewriter ribbons appear to follow the law of most other inanimate things, namely, that it is possible to rest them, so that when apparently about worn out they can be revived. This is on the testimony of a man who uses a machine for all his work, which amounts to very considerable. He says that when his ribbon gets very pale he reels it off on a spool, wraps it in oiled paper and puts it away, in a damp, cool place. By the time his next ribbon begins to show the same signs of wear he takes the ribbon that he had put away and uses it

It is about as good as new; but, of course, its second life is not so long as its first one. The explanation of this phenomena is that the coloring matter in the tiny spots all over the ribbon which have escaped the striking of the key is softened by the moisture and spreads throughout the fabric to the portions which have been exhausted. The method here described is said to be much better than that of steaming an old ribbon, because time permits the coloring matter to diffuse itself more evenly.

Star is Far Away.

"In July I always look for this fellow." The astronomer fixed his great telescope on a star that looked no bigger than a pin point-a small, bright star, shining with a white and steady light.
"That little star," he said, "is so far away that it takes its light 3,500,000 years to reach us. The beam from it that you now see was given forth 3,500,000 years ago. What, I wonder, was the world like

"And do you know how fast these star beams travel? They travel at the rate of 12,000,000 miles a minute. Think of it— 12,000,000 miles multiplied by 3,500,000 years reduced to minutes—that is the distance from the star to us.

"Here is a strange fact. The star may have been annihilated 2,500,000 years ago, but we, in that case, would know nothing of its annihilation till 1,000,000 years from now, for whatever should happen on this star would take 3,500,000 years to reach

"Imagine a Russo-Japanese war on the star. The war news would come to us a little stale, eh ?"-Portland Oregonian.

There is only a little difference between the woman of the great world and a great actress, but it is a difference very difficult to make up .-- The Bystander.

Difficulties of Spelling.

As an instance of the difficulties of English spelling the Outlook recalls the following story : Teacher—"Spell nose."

Child (a believer in phonetic spelling)-"N-0-z-e." Teacher-"No, n-o s-e. Spell froze."

Child-"F-r-o-s-e." Teacher-"No, f-r-o-z-e. Spell blows." Child, hesitating between z and s, chooses the latter—"B-l-o-s-e."

Teacher-"No, b-l-o-w-s. Spell goes." Child, bewildered-"It's g-o-s-e or g-o-z-e or g-o-w-s.'

Teacher-"No, my dear, it's g-o-e-s"

What Washington Would Have Been

"I was trying to impress on one of my classes the other day the greatness of the Southern Confederacy and at the same time to let it be known howwonderful a man was George Washington, "said J.L.Pembroke, a professor in a primary school in Paducah, Ky. "If the Confederacy had succeeded," I asked, "what would Washington have been the father of ?" 'Twins. was the prompt reply of one of the boys."

Lost Bank Books.

he Way Depositors Are Protected and Made Mcre

"If we don't have at least five persons every day come in here to give notice of their lost bank book we think it unusual," said a cashier of one of the city banks recently. "As soon as a book is reported lost a check is made against it in the bank, and the loser is requested to advertise the loss. For from a fortnight to thirty days ensuing no money can be withdrawn on that account, unless the book shall be found. If not found the depositor must apply for a new book. Generally an affidavit must first be made that the loser comnot find the book and that it has not been transferred or assigned. "All this is scarcely necessary, but it makes a bank absolutely safe in respect to that deposit, and it puts the depositor to enough trouble to make him or her careful thereafter. Everything having been performed as outlined, the depositor may get a new book, which means opening a new account, as accounts are never duplicated.

"In my experience of many years I do not recall a case where finders have presented books in hopes of withdrawing money. It would be almost impossible for a person not the owner of the book to withdraw a cent on the account. At the time of the original deposit the depositor, before getting a book, has to answer certain questions which are framed to fix the depositor's identity and to protect the depositor. The depositor must also leave an autograph on the bank register. Whenever money is withdrawn these questions must be answered and the autograph attached to an order. This is an effectual test. Each book is numbered and bears the depositor's name.

"We have been asked if depositors would not be better protected if banks omitted the name from the book and simply numbered it. We can see no advantage in that. The plan would not defeat the purposes of a thief, for one who would steal a bank book would know the name of the owner, and the withdrawal of deposits is so well guarded that even with the owner's name a finder could not get money from the bank.

"There are probably from 1,200 to 1,500 books lost every year, of which 400 to 500 eventually turn up. That means from one-third to two-fifths of 1 per cent of the whole number of books out disappear, and one-third of that number get back to the owners. Where the rest go is a puzzle not to be solved."-Chicago Tribune.

Ages of Stone and of Bronze. The transition from the stone age to the bronze age can be read in the disclosures of the lake dwellers of Switzerland. This wonderful people lived through the stone age and for long ages continued on until they lapped over into the bronze age. Some of their settlements disclose only stone implements, while others of a later date show the bronze chisel, the bronze winged hatchet, the bronze knife, the hexagonal hammer, the tanged knife of ornamental design, the socket knife and the bronze sickle. They show also the bronze fishhook, barbed and in exact similitude of our present device. The ornamental hatpin as now used. together with other articles of utility and ornamentation, is plentiful. The stone mold for casting the copper or bronze hatchet is of exceedingly ancient date, but probably the use of sand was far more common, and hence we have fewer traces of that method. Lord Macaulay on Sunday Rest. Speaking on "the ten hours bill," Lord Macaulay said: "We are not poorer, but richer, because we have through many ages rested from our labor one day in seven. That day is not lost. While industry is suspended, while the plow lies in the furrow, while the exchange is silent, while no smoke ascends from the factory, a process is going on quite as important to the wealth of nations as any process which is performed on more busy days. Man, the machine of machines—the machine compared with which all the contrivances of the Watts and Arkwrights are worthless-is repairing and winding up, so that he returns to his labors on the Monday with clearer intellect, with livelier spirits, with renewed corporal vigor."

Spanish Lovemaking. In southern Spain the cigarette makers form almost a class by themselves. Among them it is customary for a girl who fancies a lad to twist her powder puff into a pompon for his hat. If he wears it at the next bull fight it is considered a match. In some parts of northern Spain a pumpkin pie is held by the peasant girls to be the proper offering to the object of their affection.

Pith and Point.

Old saying: Those who can, do; those who can't, teach.

You ladies no doubt have tried many "remedies." Ever find one that was a remedy?

When there is talk of a duel both parties are very fierce in the hope that the other will back out. We have noticed that the weather is either too wet, too dry, too cold or too warm. It is very seldom just right. Don't ever grieve to death if you can help it. Such a death is very unsatisfactory to the doctors, as it affords them nothing to cut out. When they were married they had two umbrellas and needed only one.

Later on, when one umbrella was all they had, they needed two. We wonder if the author of that saying, "It is never too late to mend," was a mother who had to wait till her children were in bed before she could get hold of their clothes?—Atchison Globe.

"I was hastening," he says, "to visit an old and honored friend, who I was informed was in a dying condition, when I met his physician, who accosted me in great spirits.

"'And how is my friend, the reverend doctor?' I inquired.

"'Oh, I saw him this morning. It is the most correct apoplexy I have ever seen-face and hands livid, breathing stertorous, all the symptoms perfect.' And he rubbed his hands with delight, for in the country we cannot find every day a case that agrees with the diagnosis of the books."

Later Particulars.

The animals and birds had been taken into the ark, and Noah was about to haul in the gang plank when his wife hastily interposed.

"How about the fish, Noah?" she said. "Are you going to leave them out?"

"The fish!" he exclaimed. "That's just like a woman. Do you think the fish will drown? Suppose you go and look after the cooking, madam. I'll attend to the live stock."-Chicago Tribune.

Never a Let Up. "Poor pa's just working himself to death."

"Why, I thought he had a political job."

"He has, but it seems as if he no sooner gets reappointed than it is necessary for him to get out and work again so that somebody else won't get it next time."-Chicago Record-Herald.

No Fault With the Rhymes.

Rustic poets do not always find rhymes come easily and naturally. At least the following epitaph in a county district would seem to suggest it:
"Here lies the body of William Lee,

This was him. this was he, A. B. C. D. E. F. G." Nevertheless, there is no fault to be found with the actual rhymes, as such .-

-She behaves in such a silly way over her fiance, the count. She always calls him 'dear' in public. Oh, it's just a bluff. As a matter of fact, he was comparatively cheap; only cost her father a paltry million. EXPERIENCE. - Experience teaches noth ing more forcibly than it teaches this: If you are upset by trifles, if your appetite is poor, your sleep broken, the best thing you can do is to take Hood's Sarsaparilla.e

Experience recommends this medicin in this superlative way—what better recommendation could it have? Such of our readers as are not being benefited by their vacation should not delay taking this tonic. -C. L. Beach, of Connecticut, says the pain of the operation of dehorning has been over-estimated, and the mortality is practically nothing. The shrinkage in the milk and butter fat yields of dairy cows is small and temporary. The worry, pain and ornelty of animals to their mates is eliminated when these instruments of torture are removed, and the lack of fear and the quiet contentment of the individuals of the herd are at once noticeable. -The chronic bachelor finally turned to the quiet man who had taken no part in the discussion.

"Would you, sir," he said, "marry the best woman in the world? "I did," was the reply.

END OF BITTER FIGHT .- "Two Physi cians had a long and stubborn fight with an abcess on my right lung" writes J. F. Hughes of Du Pont, Ga. "and gave me up. Everybody thought my time had come. As a last resort I tried Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption. The benefit I received was striking and I was on my feet in a few days. Now I've entirely regained my health."
