A Needed Addition.

"You know Dr. George Clark Houghton, rector of the 'Little Church Around the Corner,'" said a New York clergyman. "Well, I heard a good story about him the other day.

"It seems that there came to Dr. Houghton to be married several years ago a brilliant newspaper writer and a beautiful young woman. Dr. Houghton performed the ceremony duly, and after a twelve-month of wedded life, this couple was divorced. "Another twelve-month passed, and one day looking rather shame-faced, the journalist and the lady reappeared before Dr. Houghton. They wished to be married again. "I am told that the clergyman made no open objection, but he was heard to murmur as he was putting on his cassock: "I shall have to add, it seems, a repairing department to my establishment."

Domestic unhappiness in Ohio seems to have taken a serious turn. Since the beginning of the year 6443 suits for divorce have been filed, 4336 decrees granted, and there were 11,308 applications pending on July 1st.

On a busy day, such as August Bank Holiday, it is calculated that twenty tons of steel wear and rust off the lines of the London and North-Western Railway.

answer was, "I dwell among mine own people."

She might have said: "My crown is in my heart, not on my head, Nor decked with diamonds and Indian stones. Nor to be seen; my crown is called content, A crown it is that seldom kings enjoy."

Another jewel shines out in the dark hour of her bereavement—Faith. She believed that the son given to her under such unusual conditions, and taken from her in such an inexplicable manner, could be restored to her. She would, undoubtedly, in due time, have shown the grace of resignation, but it is to her credit that she did not too quickly say, "The Lord hath taken away." Not until she had made strenuous effort at recovery was she ready to say, submissively, "Blessed be the name of the Lord."

The prophet, from his eyrie on Mount Carmel, saw the Shunamite approaching. The unusual hour, toward evening, and not a Sabbath or new moon, as well as the speed with which she traveled, excited his apprehension. But he failed not in courtesy. His servant was dispatched with salutations. The emptiness of the average greeting is here illustrated. It was a mere passing of the word of day. The woman's business was with the prophet, not with his servant. It is said that if in the East you asked after a person whom you know to be ill, invariably the reply will be, "Well, thank God," when the very next sentence is to inform you that he is dying.

A moment later the bereaved woman was clasping the feet of the man of God. Gebazi, self-appointed guardian of his Master's dignity, cold and obtuse, was for thrusting the woman aside. Sympathy is penetrative, and Elisha had "A tear for pity and a hand, Open as day for melting charity." He said to his officious servant, "Let her alone; for her soul is vexed within her, and the Lord hath hid it from me."

The outcome of the incident is familiar. The prophet's expedient of sending his staff to be laid on the face of the dead child; the mother's impatience, expressing itself in the asseveration, "As the Lord liveth and as thy soul liveth, I will not leave thee;" the failure of the expedient of his staff; the night journey to Shunem; the restoration of the child; the announcement, "Take up thy son," brief, pathetic, beautiful. It has been aptly said, "Success is never voluble."

THE TEACHER'S LANTERN.

The world was surprised and delighted when Layard uncovered the base-reliefs which depict scenes of an extinct civilization. But all the while we had in the Bible authentic pictures which vivify the common life of thirty centuries ago.

This little domestic incident is enshrined in a writing which bears the dignified and ambitious title of the 'Brook of the Kings.'

The hospitality which is inspired and graced by piety will not fail of its reward. Need of more religion in the social functions of our day.

The spiritual analogy of this incident, familiar to the church since the days of Origen. Staff of formal religion can not awaken the dead soul, though it were a gold and jeweled crosier. Only the breath of the Divine Spirit can quicken into life.

Origen spiritualizes the incident as follows: "The dead boy: 'The race fallen under death on account of sin. Gebazi's staff: The law which can not save. Elisha:

The son of God, who, by incarnation, put himself in connection with our flesh, and imparted new life to humanity."

The strength of mother-love expresses itself in the command to the servant, "Slack not thy riding for me." The distance traveled, going and coming at top speed, was not less than thirty-four miles.

Gebazi, thrusting the woman aside, reminds one of the incident in which the disciples rebuked the mothers who brought their children for Jesus' blessing. It is the conventional duty of a servant to magnify the dignity of his master.

Elisha's motive in sending Gebazi has been variously interpreted, viz.: To prove that miracle-working was not connected in any magical way with his person or staff, but that miracles could only be wrought by genuine union with Divine power, effected by faith and prayer; did it to discount his staff, his servant, and all visible means. Some say that Gebazi failed because of his personal unworthiness, others that the prophet withdrew his power from him while he was on the way to do as he had been directed. The most natural interpretation is to say that Elisha erred in judgment when he sent Gebazi.

The Shunamite's affirmation of contentment, "I dwell among mine own people," clashes with the vulgar slang phrase, "Get there," which, being interpreted, means sacrifice peace, domestic comfort, friends, conscience, and God for money, honors, grandeur, and parade.

George Ade, the author and playwright, while on a recent visit to President Roosevelt, entertained the children with rhymes. Here are two of them:

"A tutor who tooted the flute, Tried to tutor two tutors to tutor, They said to the tutor: Is it easier to tutor or To tutor two tutors to tutor."

Another jingle: "The cat produces fiddlestrings, The fish produces glue: The hen produces eggs and things, I don't care; do you?"

Columns of Fire and Ashes Rise 200 Feet Above Crater.

Vesuvius is in vigorous eruption. The crust around the crater has broken away and produced magnificent fountains of red-hot ashes and sparks of fire which rise in immense columns to a height of 700 feet, accompanied by loud detonations and slight earthquakes.

The eruption was the most spectacular witnessed in the last ten years. A great stream of lava was discharged, threatening wide destruction. The spectacle was witnessed by thousands of awe-stricken persons.

Java's Death Plant.

Java, the land of the famous and much exaggerated Death valley, has many wonderful curiosities, the principal one being the kall mujah, or death plant. It grows only on the sterile soils of the volcanic regions of Java and the adjoining islands and is even there reckoned as a curiosity on account of its extreme scarcity. It grows from two and a half to three feet in height, with long, slender stems, well protected by stout thorns nearly an inch in length. The ground leaves are of a delicate, satini-like smoothness, heart shaped, emerald green on one side and blood red, streaked and veined with light buff, on the other.

The flowers of this death dealing beauty are even more beautiful than the plant itself, being very large and cup shaped and of a color almost deathly in its whiteness. The name of the plant is from a characteristic of these splendid flowers, which, beautiful though they are, continually drip with a deadly poison.

The poison, which is distilled in the bottom of the cup shaped blossom, has the sickening odor of chloroform intensified a dozen fold, it being powerful enough to overcome a full grown man in a few seconds, even when inhaled in open air. The perfume, if such a pungent odor can properly be so called, produces insensibility in the form of convulsions, distorting the face, especially the mouth and eyes, into a horrid, crazy looking grin. Recovery from the effects of inhaling this odor is said to be very slow.
