Rejected Suitors. Famous Lovers Who Have been Victims of Cupid's Franks.

It may be of some consolation to the rejected lover to remember that many of the greatest men in history have suffered equal pangs and survived the same ordeal to find married happiness elsewhere.

Even Byron, that most beautiful and gifted of men, had more than his share of refusals, and one of them at least was accompanied by words which left a sting to his last day.

But Miss Chaworth treated all the boy's shy advances with laughter and contempt, and although he was "suffering the tortures of the lost" for her sake, refused to take him seriously.

Shelley, too, almost as handsome and as gifted as Byron, knew from more than one experience the "pangs of rejection."

When Sheridan, following the example of many other amorous young men, fell over head and ears in love with Miss Lanley, the beautiful singer,

When Burke, the great politician and orator, was a student at Trinity college, Dublin, he is said to have had more than one love disappointment.

When Abraham Lincoln, as a youth of eighteen, was "living in a rude log cabin in Spencer county, Ind., and picking up the rudiments of education in the intervals of rail splitting and plowing,"

It is well known that Jean Baptiste Bernadotte, when he was a private of marines, was indignantly refused by a girl of very humble rank who thought herself "much too good to marry a common soldier."

Which of us does not recall with a gentle flutter of emotion the unutterable delight we experienced when we gravely set about that delicate operation, "the first shave."

"Why does your wife belong to so many clubs and debating societies?" "Well," answered Mr. Meekton, "I think Henrietta feels the need of mental exercise."

Maud—Well, I see Mabel Garlinghorn after all these years has given up trying to get Phip Sikes. Irene—What's the reason? Maud—Haven't you heard? She's got him.—Chicago Tribune.

Beautiful is the activity which works for good, and beautiful the stillness which waits for good; blessed the self sacrifice of the one, blessed the self forgetfulness of the other.—Robert Collier.

BUYING A WATCH.

Filled Cases, Plated Cases and Good and Bad Movements.

"Not many men know how to buy a watch," said a jeweler, "and to a large extent they have to rely on the honesty of the dealer."

"Now, how many people know the difference between a filled case and one that is plated? A filled case, you see, is a composition that resembles steel, with a plate of gold on each side, that on the outer being thicker than the inside."

"In the matter of watch movements," he continued, "the buyer is really at the mercy of the dealer. In one big factory about 3,000 movements are made every day."

"A strictly first class movement requires six months exactly in its passage through the factory from the beginning to the finished product ready to offer for sale."

What a sense of security in an old book which time has criticized for us.—Lowell.

Books are men of higher stature and the only men that speak aloud for future times to hear.—E. B. Browning.

We should make the same use of a book that the bee does of a flower. She steals sweets from it, but does not injure it.—Colton.

Books are the masters who instruct us without rods and ferules, without hard words and anger, without clothes or money.—Richard de Bury.

My maxims are never to begin a book without finishing it, never to consider it without knowing it, and to study with a whole mind.—Buxton.

A book is good company. It is full of conversation without loquacity. It is not offended at your absentmindedness nor jealous if you turn to other pleasures.—Beecher.

The trade of toothstainer, followed in eastern Asia, is as odd a calling as any. The natives prefer black teeth to the whiter kind, and the toothstainer, with a little box of brushes and coloring matter, calls on his customers and stains their teeth.

When a man is in love with a girl, he is said to have declared, to marry a gawky farm laborer. Then it was that Lincoln left the paternal cabin and voyaged as hired hand on a flat-boat into that greater world which before long was to ring with the name of the gawky farm boy.

It is well known that Jean Baptiste Bernadotte, when he was a private of marines, was indignantly refused by a girl of very humble rank who thought herself "much too good to marry a common soldier."

A WONDERFUL CHILD.

John Stuart Mill Was a Genius at Three Years of Age.

At three years of age John Stuart Mill began the study of Greek, with "arithmetic as an evening relaxation," as Samuel Wellington puts it in the Westminster Review.

At twelve he began scholastic logic and political economy—the latter his main lifework.

At sixteen Mill could speak in debate with adults with ease and freedom. At eighteen he contributed to the Westminster Review. At twenty-one he was made assistant in the India office and received a large salary for those days.

But Mill was bald at twenty-two. He did not marry until he was forty-five. He himself said: "I never was a boy. It is better to let nature have its own way."

The decayed vegetation of forests has furnished to the fields their present fertility, upon which man depends for food. In the tree growth of virgin woods and in the floor of rotted foliage beneath are stored the accumulations of centuries.

A Vital Spot. "My goodness! Mrs. McTalker was shot by a burglar last night!"

"Did he hit her in a vital spot?" "Well—er—yes. The bullet lodged in her jaw."—Cleveland Leader.

"Now, my good man," said the pompous stranger who had signed "Viscount Hardcastle, London," on the register, "what are your terms here?"

"Cash in advance," replied the shrewd hotel clerk promptly.—Des Moines News.

"I understand that you are a geometrician. Can you square the circle?" "Yes, if I had a couple of thousand dollars I could square my circle of creditors."—Dallas News.

CASTORIA For Infants and Children. The Kind You Have Always Bought Bears the Signature of CHAS. H. FLETCHER.

Medical. The constant aching of a bad back, the weariness, the tired feeling, the pains and aches of kidney ill, are serious—if neglected. Dangerous urinary troubles follow. A Bellefonte citizen shows you how to avoid them.

THE FIRST SHAVE. Which of us does not recall with a gentle flutter of emotion the unutterable delight we experienced when we gravely set about that delicate operation, "the first shave."

"Why does your wife belong to so many clubs and debating societies?" "Well," answered Mr. Meekton, "I think Henrietta feels the need of mental exercise."
