PRESIDENT GOES CAMPING

Leaves Sagamore Hill On Annual Outing With Young Companions. Oyster Bay, N. Y., July 19 .- President Roosevelt, with three sons, accompanied by a party of cousins and friends, left Sagamore Hill on their annual camping out expedition. The president and his young companions have been preparing for this event for a day or two, and when they left the president's home they formed a jolly party.

Hampers of provisions were carried down to the four boats in waiting for the party on the president's bathing beach. After packing away the provisions and camp outfit into the boats the president and his companions rowed away toward a point on Lloyd's Neck, which had been selected as the place of camping. The site is about five miles from Sagamore Hill.

The president himself, it was arranged, should be the camp director and chief cook. Around a good camp fire the president intended to relate some of his own experiences, which always appeal to his youthful companions.

Graham by this time had gained on Glover, and when the two men reached the end of the rapids just above the suspension bridge at Lewiston, there was but a little distance between them. Swimming in the swift, smooth current was hard for Graham, but evidently easy for Glover. Glover was the first pulled up on the dock at Lewiston. He was dressed and about 15 minutes later was telling his story. Graham was taken to a hotel several hours. Neither of the men was injured. Graham swam the lower rapids twice before, first on September 7, 1901, and again on August 31, 1902. He is about 55 years old, while Glover is about 35
