

Atlantic City Has a Mystery.

Atlantic City, Nov. 21.—Two attempts to wreck a Pennsylvania railroad train and what may have been an attempt to murder the man who says he frustrated the first effort are the salient features of one of the most baffling mysteries that has ever come to the attention of the police of this city.

As the scene of the would-be crime is out of the jurisdiction, the police here are not bound to make an investigation, but they are, nevertheless, paying great attention to the case and Captain of Detectives Maxwell says that the developments promise a sensational climax. Captain Maxwell freely admits that he has some startling evidence in his possession which to divulge now would defeat the ends of his examination, which will probably result in an arrest.

In the tangle of peculiar circumstances only one thing is certain and that is that the train for Philadelphia was saved from a disastrous and unquestionably fatal wreck by the merest chance.

The remainder of the case hinges on the truthfulness of Lloyd Goodrich, a young man 22 years old, who is staying with Dr. W. H. Walling, at 1209 Pacific avenue. Goodrich tells in detail a narrative of a remarkable experience when he was bound to a pile of railroad ties and left on the tracks to be killed. He says he escaped by cutting the ropes with his pocket knife. Certain discrepancies in his statements have led the police to be skeptical of their entire truth and they mean to question him more closely.

When seen at Dr. Walling's residence the young man exhibited both wrists, which were chafed as though by cords, and a long red welt on the back of his neck was just such a mark as would have been made by a rope. On his forehead there were marks of a severe blow.

Goodrich has not yet been catechized by the police, but will be closely questioned after they have secured what other evidence they can and it will then be seen how closely his version fits the known facts.

The second attempt was made at exactly the same spot where Goodrich says he had his battle. The position was so chosen that had the ties not been removed they would have plunged the locomotive into the stream and there would have been a fearful wreck. It was Charles Adams, a bay fisherman, and William Hackett, an employe of the railroad, who averted the disaster.

Adams was on his way to visit his sloop when he saw what looked like a man lying across the tracks. On investigation he saw that five ties had been laid there, one across both rails and the other four across the outside rail. As he was wondering who could have attempted such a crime he heard the whistle of the train and calling for help to a man who was approaching he set to work to clear the tracks.

The other, who was Hackett, assisted in the work. The two had not removed the obstructions a minute before the train dashed by.

Adams and Hackett at once reported the incident to police headquarters and detectives were set to work. They found an overcoat, a cap, a necktie, an open penknife, a pair of cuffs with cheap links in them, a plug of tobacco and pieces of freshly cut rope all near the pile of ties, and in the pocket of the coat was a note book with Goodrich's name and address in it, thus directing the police to him.

While the young man's account by no means explains the case satisfactorily, it is nevertheless the only plausible explanation thus far advanced which accounts for everything.

FAVOR SEA LEVEL CANAL

Work to Take 20 Years and Cost Over $100,000,000 More Than Lock Canal. Washington, Nov. 20.—Another crisis in the history of the Panama canal undertaking was reached, when the board of consulting engineers by a vote of 9 to 5 reached the momentous decision that the great waterway should be of the sea level type.

If this action of the board is approved by the president, as it is confidently expected to be, it will precipitate a new and probably prolonged and acrimonious debate on the whole question of the canal in congress when the report embodying the action of the engineers goes to that body.

This may be looked for, because the digging of a sea level canal will take from 15 to 20 years and perhaps longer, while conservative estimates of the difference in cost between a lock and sea level canal run from $100,000,000 to $200,000,000.
