MRS. W. S. GLENN.-Minnie Terwilliger, wife of Dr. W. S. Glenn, of State College, died at the Bellefonte hospital. Easter morning, April 15th, 1906.

Six weeks ago she became ill with typhoid fever but at no time was her condition regarded as critical and she was convalescing satisfactorily when complications arose that made an operation imperative and she died of heart failure eighteen hours after it was performed.

She was the daughter of Robert and Erwil la Emerson Terwilliger and was born near Owega, New York, Dec. 15th, 1870. Left an orphan when very young, she made her home with her grandparents until she entered the Williamsport hospital from which she was graduated in 1897. She then spent two years as a nurse in the Glenmary Sanitorium, New York, and afterwards did private nursing until she was married to Dr. Glenn in September,

Rather interesting is the fact that her father died of typhoid fever and she her self had twice before been a victim of the disease and when she died it was at the same age as had her mother.
