The Cancer Death Rate. New York.—The popular notion that New York and other great cities are becoming more and more the home of cancer,

Dr. McConnell bases his findings, he says, on an elaborate study of the latest government statistics, covering every part of the United States for a term of years.

It is now clear, he says, that while cancer is undoubtedly rapidly on the increase, the growth and the mortality are far higher in the rural districts than in the cities. Persons employed in hard out-of-door labor seem more liable to the disease than those following sedentary occupations. It is markedly prevalent in well watered, well timbered regions like the Pacific north-

The Head on Our Pennies

Have you a penny in your pocket? Poor fellow! I am sorry for you; but never mind. These are flush times, and you can borrow one of somebody. At any rate we must have a penny for a moment; for the story to be told is of the head which is on each of these small coins, that the government. each of these small coins that the govern-ment sends out; and the story will be better appreciated if we have the head before

The head looks like the head of an Indian. Until quite recently this is what I always supposed it to be. It is not. It is the head of a gracious American woman, who for many years was held in admiration both for her beauty and her goodness, and who only a few weeks ago passed on to her great reward.

Her name was keen-Sarah Longacre Keen. She lived in Philadelphia. For thirty-five years she was the secretary of the Philadelphia Branch of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society of the Methodist Episcopal church. Since her death a picture, representing her as she appeared in mature years, has adorned the cover of one of the issues of a publication of the great religious body to which she belonged. The picture justifies all that has been said of the grace and dignity of the wo-

When Sarah was a child of five or six years of age a delegation of Indians from the northwest visited Washington. They came to see the sights and pay their respects to the Big Chief of the nation. After baving spent considerable time at the capital, the Indians were taken to Philadelphia. Here they were shown the mint. The little girl's father was a fine engraver, and he had official connection with this great money factory. He was a kindly, benevolent man as well, and he invited this delegation of Red Men to some sort of an entertainment at his home. One of the chiefs had his attention attracted to the because they offer certain conditions of life peculiarly favorable to the development of that dread disease, is overturned by a discovery just announced by Prof. Guthrie dress and put it on her head. She was not the discovery in the discovery i dress and put it on her head. She was not frightened; but lending herself to the enjoyment of the joke she stood for a moment and let the company look at her. Some one present, who had both an eye for beauty and artistic skill, was so struck by the appearance which little Sarah Longacre made in her Indian hat that he sketch. ed her on the spot. The sketch was en-graved by her father. One can easily im-agine the love and fond paternal pride with which the likeness was traced and the lines were drawn.

Just then the penny in its present form was about to be issued; but the figure with which its face was to be ornamented had not been chosen. This engraved sketch liability to cancer is greater among foreign born whites than it is among native Americans, but the death rate is only apparently greater among the former here than in many years has been sending out into the

There is much more to be said about this small bit of coin. It is enough to say now, however, that a penny is the symbol of a mighty power—of a mighty power for evil and a mighty power for good. As men and women relate themselves to pennies and their multiples they become a curse or a blessing to mankind. It would seem that a piece of money bearing on its face the head of a child, who was sweet and beautiful in her childhood, and who grew into a woman of so rare a character, of such a devoted spirit, and of an influence so wide and beneficent, ought to have about it some suggestion of sacredness in the use to which it is to be put.

Several army officers were sitting in a New York hotel recently discussing old System. For information and beautiful times at West Point. The talk, says the descriptive publication sent free apply to Success Magazine, turned on the instructors who used to put them through their paces.

"I shall never forget old Professor Church," exclaimed one. "He always impressed me as being about 100 years old, and I guess he was pretty well along, be-cause one day, up in the library, when I happened to be looking at a portrait of Edmanded the Russian forces at Port Arthur and Rear Admiral Nebogatoff, who commanded one of Admiral Rojestvensky's squadrons, have been sentenced to death by the Military Court which has been investigating the surrender of Port Arthur gar Allan Poe, he informed me that he had taught the poet mathematics and explained how the young man came to leave.

"It was as much of a crime in those days as now for a cadet to be off limits without permission. It meant dismissal. Poe, being an untamed spirit, couldn't re-David Bonowitz, formerly a captain in the Russian army, said that General Stoessel will probably be sent to some obscure station in Russia and after be been decoursed. sel will probably he sent to some obscure station in Russia and after he has dropped from public notice the announcement will come that he has been found dead. "Here is one line," he said, "in which you spoke of "the music of the cider press."
How would you undertake to imitate the had offended before and was regarded to include the control of the cider press."

"I should think it might be done with a juice harp," answered the poet.

"And a mighty good thing it was," exclaimed one of the listeners, "for the world claimed one of t VIN-TE-NA for Depressed Feeling, Ex-hausted Vitality, Nervous Debility and Diseases requiring a Tonic Strengthening Good Omen at Wedding.

A minute or two after Mary Waters and Michael Doheny had been married, and just as they stepped out of the church of St. Thomas Aquinas, a white dove flew down from the belfry and alighted on the bride's shoulder.

It was such a momentously favorable omen—not a bride out of 10,000 dares hope to be so lucky-that the rice-throwing throng stood in awed silence.

The dove picked away at the rice on the bride's hat for a few minutes and then flew back to the belfry. Doubtless it was thinking of nothing more poetic than get-ting a square meal, but many a bride woul pay $1,000 in gold for such a good-luck sign at the church door.

—Many, many, years ago salt was so hard to obtain, but so necessary to have, that Roman soldiers were paid part of their wages in salt. Now, the Latin word for salt is "sal," and from that came the word "salarium," meaning salt money. Finally, the soldiers were paid only in money, but the term "salarium" was still used to designate these wages. From this old Latin word comes our English word "salary." This is why we say of a worthless fellow that "he is not worth his salt."—Central Christian Advocate. Christian Advocate.
