THOUGHTLESS TRAPPERS.

Torture to Animals and Ruthless Destruction of Game.

People who have not seen can form no idea of the suffering trappers cause nor of their ruthless destruction of game. Nothing escapes them. Even the squirrels are sacrificed to bait traps for marten and fisher, and not only the squirrels, but all kinds of birds, whether game or song birds.

In trapping mink, otter, beaver and a few other fur bearing animals the trap is nearly always set near the water, where the animal when caught can drown itself, thus ending its suffering

But with bear, marten and fisher it is different. The bear must drag a heavy clog about until it catches in some root or bush. There he must wait until the trapper comes to kill him, and this in some cases is not for days. The bones of the leg are almost invariably broken by the trap, and the leg swells to incredible size. One trapper in one day shot nineteen large blue grouse merely to try a new rifle. The birds were nesting. He had no use for them, and not one did he even bring to camp.

trapper camped near our bear hunting duty in one of the corridors of the palparty. He shot everything he could ace along which Napeleon passed. He trapping beaver out of season and boasted of having caught one that was about to become a mother.

I have seen the spot where a bear fast in a trap had been caught for more than a week in a thicket through which it was impossible to drag the trap and clog. I once knew an old French trapper who shot seventy-three moose and elk in one winter for bear bait for the spring catch. I asked why he killed so many. He said that he wanted a big stink in the spring so as to bring the bears around. All of the animals he had slaughtered for a spring stink were shot with a revolver, for they were snow bound and could not escape. He told me that he dropped five big elk in one pile. This frightful destruction by trappers has exterminated the game .-World's Work.

He got to hear of their project. All the precautions he took was to get ready a store of very excellent cigars. The ruffians presently appeared at his address. "Come in, gentlemen," he said and produced his cigars. To each man he handed one. Taken aback at their reception, they seemed abashed and confused. "I know that you came to kill me," he said. "Why do you not proceed to your task?" This was too much for even this bloodthirsty deputation. They could not kill the man whose cigars they were smoking and who invited them to carry out their task. Muttering some excuse for having interrupted his studies, they shuffled out of the room and troubled him

While he was visiting the Duke of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha one of the duke's retainers made up his mind to slay him. LANGUAGE EVOLUTION.

Use of the Suffix "Less" In Verbs, Nouns and Adjectives.

Many will remember that some years ago there went on a violent controversy about the word tireless. The discovery had been made that "less" was a suffix which could properly be appended only to nouns; hence the form must be discarded, and we must all take pains to say untiring. The duty of so doing was preached from scores of professional and newspaper pulpits. No one seemed to think or care for the various other adjectives similarly formed and therefore liable to the similar censure which they never received. Hostility was directed against it alone. The actual flaw which vitiated the arguments against Greeley's Affectation. There was a great deal of innocence in Horace Greeley as well as not a lit. tle affectation. He was rarely seen without one trousers leg carelessly caught in the upper part of his boot and a necktie with a bow under his ear. Once in the public room of a hotel a friend of Greeley's kindly pulled down the disarranged trousers leg and straightened the necktie. Greeley thanked him and soon after left the room. When in the course of half an hour he appeared in the street the trousers leg and the necktie had been carefully disarranged, and the man looked as negligent of things earthly as he always looked. It was part of his pose as a man of genius to wear his trousers leg and his necktie as if he had put them on in a hurry while ab sorbed in meditation. It was a harm less eccentricity.

The Romance of Lisbon.

Of Lisbon itself and beautiful Cintr it is scarce necessary to write. Com mander Shore in his book, "The Pleas ant Springs in Portugal," says: "I be lieve there is only one other Europea capital that can compare with Lisbo in point of situation and splendor appearances, Constantinople, and th resemblance seems to have struc other travelers besides myself. Ce tainly when the morning mists an clinging to the shores, partly screening their beauties and lending to the scen the charm of mystery that Turn loved, Lisbon does seem like an en chanted city." How Sound Waves Move.

The speed with which sound way are transmitted through the atmosph depends on several conditions. Wh the temperature is at 32 degrees sounds move with a speed of 1,090 for per second, the velocity increasing w the temperature at the rate of abo one foot of speed per second for ea degree above the freezing point. The again, in damp air sound moves w a greater velocity than it does in air, no odds if the dry air be warm the damp cold. In water sound mor more than four times as fast as it de in air, or, say, at about the rate of 4. feet per second.

Wooden Spoons.

A curious industry in Russia and which nevertheless finds employme for thousands of men is that of m ing wooden spoons. In the district Semenovsk, where they chiefly co from, no fewer than 7,000 men ma a living at the trade. The spoons generally made from birchwood, a skilled workman can turn out eral hundred a day. No fewer th 12,000,000 spoons are manufactured during the course of the year, which are sold at 6 to 8 rubles per thousand. They find a ready market and penetrate as far as Persia, Khiva, Bokhara and Khokand.

Michael F. Dwyer Dead.

New York, Aug. 20. - Michael F. Dwyer, long one of the most prominent figures of the American turf, died at his little cottage in Brooklyn, opposite the Gravesend race track of the Brooklyn Jockey club, of which Philip J. Dwyer, a brother of the dead horseman, is president. Dwyer was one of the most famous pluners the turf has ever known. He was a large operator, and amassed a greater fortune, it is said, than ever Pittsburg Phil Smith, the most noted of the modern race-track bettors. Smith died wealthy, while Dwyer was practically nenniless.

William S. Leib Defeated.

Pottsville, Pa., Aug. 20 .-- A complete surprise was caused by the late returns of the Republican primaries received from the country districts. These so change the result that it is apparent that Charles N. Brumm, of Minersville, will have 800 majority over William S. Leib for the congress sional nomination.

fancied rule covering the creation of such words had practically long ceased to be operative whenever a new formation struck the sense of the users of language as being desirable.

Unquestionably in our earliest speech the suffix "less" when employed to form adjectives was joined only with nouns. But the general sloughing off of nominal and verbal endings which went on in later centuries reduced a great proportion of substantives and verbs in the speech to precisely the same form. In consequence the sense of any fundamental distinction between the two broke down in many ways-in one way in particular. There is nothing easier in our speech than to convert a verb into a noun or a noun into a verb. It is a process which has taken place constantly in the past and is liable to take place at any time in the future, either at the will or the whim of the writer or speaker .-Thomas R. Lounsbury in Harper's.

A Horse Story.

Our Dumb Animals tells a remarkable story about the intelligence of a mare who saved her colt from death by stopping a train on a railroad in Texas. The colt had fallen with its legs through a railroad bridge, and the mother started down the track to meet the coming train. As the train came up she stood on the track whinnying. The train stopped, and then the mare trotted ahead of it as it moved slowly to the bridge. Here the colt was discovered and extricated from its perilous position. The story was vouched for by the engineer, railroad men and passengers in the train. Subscribe for the WATCHMAN.
