FARM NOTES.

-Don't try to expand the blacksmith's

-Too many farmers are depending on the native grasses in their pastures.

-Good tools, like good labor, may come a little higher at first; but in the end they are the cheapest and best.

-Cottonseed meal and other organic fertilizers must be used cautiously in the orchard. Fertilizers from mineral sources are usually bitter.

-Round tile are the best for nearly all purposes. They are easiest to lay, strong est, and do not get out of place so easily in the ditch after being covered. -The question of how to obtain a clean, mild flavored cheese all the time is one of the very important considerations in solving the problem of getting the people to

-RED PEPPER .- I asked one of the best hen men of this country what he thought about feeding red pepper to hens. "We don't do it at our house," was the answer, and that was enough for —There are so many little jobs about the farm or home buildings when putty is very useful, that every-one should keep a little on hand. If packed in an oiled paper with a little kerosene upon it and put into a tar can with a close cover, it will keep a

-In the case of the man that wants to plant trees on a billside, I would advise digging several feet around each tree and then cultivate with a hoe; or, plow a strip where you wish to set a row of trees, crosswise of the slope, leaving the middle of the row in grass to prevent washing.

-Do not send fowls to market without fattening. It is a great waste. Scrawny chickens not only bring a low price, but are unprofitable to the consumer. Pen the fowls up and feed a mash made of corn meal, wheat middlings and ground oats moistened with skim milk, for three weeks. They will not increase in weight, but the price per pound will be enhanced. Plymouth R cockerels weighing two and one-half to three pounds, placed in crates, can in three weeks be made to almost double in weight declares the Farmers' Voice. Place some dry earth under shelter for use in dust bath, and en dropping boards during the

-Most bens will take offense and seek a new nesting place unless the nest egg re-mains untouched. In winter it is liable to freeze and break, not only soiling the nest but inducing the egg-eating habit. China eggs have one serious objection—they are so cold in winter that it must be positive-ly uncomfortable to the hen to be obliged to sit upon one. Just think of the inconsistency of the thing! We feed the hen warm food and give her warm drink to induce laying and then reverse the treatment by chilling her in this way. Our grandmothers used the nest-egg gourd for this purpose. And besides the merit of cheapness it is practically unbreakable with ordinary usage, and never uncomfort-

-With reference to a method of exterminating milk weed and morning glory, will say that if it is the milk weed that grows from the root as well as from seed, and which has the seed attached to down that scatters when the wind blows, I can give the experience we had several years ago. My father had a field badly infested with such milk weeds and pea vines, says a writer in Prairie Farmer, and he sowed it to oats, cutting the oats before the milk weed was ripe enough for the seed to scatter. He plowed the ground in August, when the ground was dry, going just deep enough to turn the runners and roots on the surface. These the sun soon dried so that they could not sprout again.

He then sowed the field with wheat and repeated the operation next August. The pea vines were exterminated and what milk weed was left we pulled up by hand. There was only an occasional one or two and these we believe came from seed blown from other fields.

—The best rule for feeding poultry is common sense; the health and usefulness of fowls does not depend on following rules so much as on getting an adequate supply of palatable food. Changing the food sev-eral times daily is no better than making the same changes as often each week. This may be seen from the rules practiced by successful poultrymen, says the Orange Judd Farmer. Notice the following:

Mash of bran and middlings, bran and corn meal, bran only, various grains ground together. These various mashes fed morning, noon or night, in amounts varying from a spoonful to a crop full. Some poultrymen give no mash at all. Again some keep beef scraps before the fowls at all times, others give an onnce every second day. Some give as much green e each day as the hens will eat; others half an ounce on alternate days. Some mix grit, charcoal and cut clover with the mash, others feed them separately. It's up to you; but your neighbor may have equal success by an opposite practice. Principle is above rule. is above rule.

-Calf feeding is becoming more and more important as the value of our lands is increasing. It is an easy matter to let the cow raise her own calf, and she can do it as well, if not better, than any body else, but as a rule she can not do it at a profit. There are conditions under which cows can raise their own alves and do it profitably, but they do not exist on the average farm. It is, therefore, necessary to raise our calves on skim milk and this is not a difficult task, since the advent of the hand separator. In spite of this, however, many farmers do not make a success of feeding skim milk, owing to the fact that they often make the mistake of overfeeding their calves. Some have an idea that skim milk has but little food value as compared with whole milk and to make up for this lack of nourishment they increase the quantity, which is a mistake. Let us bear in mind that the difference between skim milk and whole milk is only a difference in fat content, and all we need to do is to add to skim milk some substance that will take the place of the fat removed. This done we have as nutritions a food as whole milk and one that will produce as good results, provided it is fed with regularity. Another important point is to feed the milk at the same temperature every day; irregularity fore putting on the thumb. She works slowing this respect is sure to cause trouble. A temperature of from 92 to 98 degrees fully fitted to the hand does she fasten it Fahrenheit is the best.

Sow seeds indoors for winter window

Hydrangeas are growing in popularity for the amateur gardener to use in masses around his house. Soil conditions control the planting of this flower. If the soil is heavy and somewhat cold it is better to defer planting till spring; if it is light, loamy and well drained they should be set

The sad features of a perfect Indian sum-mer day is the dearth of flowers that should naturally accompany the warm sun and balmy air. Stretching cheesecloth over the tender plants in the flower garden to pro-tect them from the cold will often gratify this desire for late bloom. Cannas, coleus and dahlias, though especially sensitive, will, if the first cold is overcome, often last through October.

Grape Juice .- To make a drink that will keep for two years in a dark place, add one quart of water to three quarts of picked grapes and cook until the grapes are broken up. Strain twice, once through cheese-cloth, and once through flanuel. Add boil, being careful not to make too sweet a syrup; one or two cupfuls of sugar to two gallons of juice should suffice, according to the flavor of the fruit. Bottle it hot and seal securely. A mixture of two or more kinds of grapes give the best result. Delaware and Niag-ara, and Catawba. Niagara with Concord being excellent combinations. A quart can be made for as low as 10 cents, if the fruit is bought when it is at bottom price, and preserved quickly.

Linseed oil is a splendid oil cloth preservative, but it must not be used too servative, out it must not be used too liberally. It should be warmed until it will run freely. Use a flannel cloth, moistened, to spread it very sparingly over the surface. If the least thickness of oil is left on the oilcloth it will collect dust constantly and become a nuisance rather than a benefit. Simply rub the oily flannel over the oilcloth until it shines but leaves no trace of the oil itself.

Although the princess gown has ceased to be a novelty new effects are being sought in this attractive way of making. and the probability is that throughout the coming season this skirt will continue to be popular. When a princess frock or skirt is shown of broadcloth it is invariably bereft of the fine tucks which elaborate one of the lighter material between the seams and which consequently gives greater fullness below the hips, a fullness that can be readily disposed at the most becoming line of the figure. The severity of the first named is because of the weight gained even from a little fullness in the material. and as long coats are prophesied also any-thing unnecessarily heavy is not to be thought of. Velvet is a fabric to be fash-ioned into severely plain costumes, as the richness of the high lustrous surface suffers from any small pinched lines and is entirely lost in shirrings. Velvet, too, is to be extravagantly used this winter and combined with it any one of the many furs.

When, twenty years ago, the oval extension dining table gave place to its square-cornered successor, there was a universal sigh of relief, and again when the round table, with its single heavy pedestal, succeeded the square top, there was a sigh of general approval, because a square table is an awkward shape for the small dining room of the modern house or flat.

But again fickle fashion, having gone through all the secondarial shapes receible.

But again fickle fashion, having gone through all the geometrical shapes possible upon so practical a piece of furniture, has again turned to the oval top. It is a glorified rejuvenation. The four ugly legs, formerly its supports, have given place to a single supporting column with a clawflooted base, safely out of the way of those seated at the board. But the oval top is to all outward appearances the same of its to all outward appearances the same as it was twenty or twenty-five years ago.

It certainly is better suited to a long, narrow room than either the square or round tops, and for such an apartment the success of the oval is assured.

There is a wrong and a right way to put on gloves. To learn the right way, watch an experienced saleswoman while she tries a pair on a customer. Invariably she will first push the glove on the four fingers be-

MASSACRES RESUMED IN RUSSIA Attack On Police and Soldiers Starts

Slaughter of Jews. Siedlee, Russian Poland, Sept. 10 .-A massacre of police and soldiers began Saturday night. Immediately afterward the troops attacked the Jews.

All Sunday the soldiers have attacked civilians, Christians or Jews, robbing and plundering them without discrimination. Hundreds of persons were killed or wounded. Three streets were devastated.

It is reported that drunken reservists started the masacrse.

Troops have surrounded the city and refuse access to it.

Over 100 Killed; Town In Flames. Warsaw, Sept. 10.-Terrorists Sat urday evening shot and killed two soldiers guarding a government alcohol store at Siedlee. A detachment of infantry rushed up and fired a volley into the crowd, killing two persons and wounding two. The terrorists retaliated by begining a masacre of policemen and soldiers patrolling the street, and the infuriated troops attacked the Jewish quarters of Siedlce, destroying the houses and shops.

It is reported that over 100 persons were killed or wounded and that the town is in flames.

DELAWARE SUSPECT ARRESTED Alleged Assailant of Mrs. Frankish

and Daughter Caught. Wilmington, Del., Sept. 11.-Detec tives Gray and Hawkins arrested Wal ter Russell, colored, on suspicion that he is the negro who committed the terrible assault on Mrs. Beatrice Frank ish and her daughter, Miss Gussie Leech, near Price's Corner. They found Russell near Centreville and brought him at once to the police station in Wilmington to avoid the danger of an attempt at lynching.

Russell denies guilt and says he spent the evening with a colored girl who lives on the Kennett pike, near Wilmington, several miles from the scene of the assault. He has had trouble with Mrs. Frankish recently, and she had a warrant issued for his ar rest on the charge of attempting to entice a colored girl from her em-and Her Body Hid In Closet. Philadelphia, Sept. 11.-Left alone with her infant child in the house in which she occupied rooms, Mrs. Mor. ris K. Lewis, an attractive woman, 26 years of age, the wife of a travelling salesman, was brutally murdered. Her body, with a bullet wound in the throat, was found in a hall closet. Mrs. Kelly, the proprietress of the house, had a vacant room to rent, and when she went out she authorized Mrs. Lewis to let the room should an applicant appear! Not seeing Mrs. Lewis when she returned, Mrs. Kelly became suspicious and summoned a policeman. A search revealed the body of Mrs. Lewis, which bore evidences of a desperate struggle, in the closet. There is no clew to the murderer.

WOMAN BRUTALLY MURDERED Was Killed After Desperate Struggle

KILLED BY GAME WARDEN

Fired On Officer Who Tried to Arrest Him and Was Shot Through Heart. Wilkes-Barre, Pa., Sept. 10 .- An investigation of the shooting affray on the mountain near Sugar Notch shows that Adam Ruscas, the man found dead, had been shot by Game Warden Frank Rowe. The latter claims while passing through the woods he came upon Ruscas and a companion. Ruscas carried a gun and had a bag well filled with game. The warden demanded that both men surrender, but they refused. Warden Rowe claims that Ruscas opened fire on him, and he returned the fire, shooting Ruscas through the heart. The game warden received a number of buckshot in the legs, and

This Hat Always In Style.

Fashions in women's headgear come and go in regular cycles, but there is one class of women in this country who stick to one kind of hat through the summer season year after year, with never a thought to the prevailing fashions in other circles of society. These are the "canalers," who invariably are seen in the sunbonnets, no matter what part of the country their homes are afloat in. Considering that most of the time they live under the awnings suspended over their cabin homes, one would scarcely think all this shade was necessary. But they stick to their favorite hats, nevertheless. It is a curiosity of the taste in headgear of the women who spend their lives working as cooks on the ves sels of the great lakes that one rarely sees a sunbonnet among them, and yet awnings on these craft are seldom used. But that is only another evidence of the fact of what variety there is among the eternal feminine.-New York Press.

A Legend of Agincourt. For many centuries we English have plumed ourselves upon the victory of Agincourt. Indeed it is from King Henry V.'s address to his soldiers on that occasion, as given by Shakespeare, that the motto of this journal is taken, "Familiar in their mouths as household words." But the French have an account of the affair not so much to our credit. It was arranged. according to this fable, by the two leaders that only the nobles on each side were to fight. King Henry V. then artfully ennobled his whole army and hence got the best of the enemy Shakespeare unwittingly gives a little countenance to the legend when he makes the king declare in the above mentioned address, "Be ye ne'er so the office, even while his body was awaiting burial with military honors. One candidate, somewhat bolder than the rest, ventured to call upon Governor Head, thinking to ascertain the bent of the governor's mind upon the important question. "Governor," he asked, "not to speak in a manner too positive, do you think you would have any objections if I was to get into Colonel Barrett's place? The answer came promptly, "No, I don't think I should have any objections, if the undertaker is willing."

Doan's Kidney Pills make strong, healthy kidneys.

Mrs. Nancy Davis, of 246 east Logan street, says: "I suffered a bad fall some years ago when living in Rochester. I thought at first I had broken my back. I was unable to get up without assistance and from that time I suffered for years with a weak back and excruciating pains through the loins and through the small of my back. Sometimes I was completely prostrated and helpless. Doctors and medicines failed to help me and the pain continued until I got Doan's Kidney Pills. I took only a few doses before I began to feel better and when I had continued using them for a while I was thoroughly cured. My back regained its strength and the pain left me. I have had no return of the trouble since." For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.
