

Man Given Up For Dead Rescued Alive From Burned Building.

WAS UNDER TONS OF DEBRIS

New York, Jan. 8.—After being buried alive under tons of debris for over 24 hours, Fireman John Seufert was rescued from the ruins of a fire that destroyed Hill's paper warehouse on Roosevelt street Sunday night.

The search for the three firemen who went down with the ruins when Hill's paper warehouse was burned was suddenly halted as the sound of some one rapping on a timber from within the debris was distinctly heard.

"I am alive and so is Campbell. We can't see anything. The debris is all about us. Get us out as quick as you can." Then later: "It is cold here. I have to keep kicking my legs to keep warm."

It was thought that the second message was from Daniel J. Campbell, but this was afterwards doubted.

With new energy the firemen redoubled their efforts until warned that overzealousness might defeat their purpose. More cautiously they proceeded, while Seufert's wife, who had been on the scene since midnight, turning from despair to hope, encouraged them.

The men were caught among the timbers about midway between the second and third floors when the upper floors of the five-story structure went down. The third man, Thomas Lennon, apparently was instantly killed. His body was located after hours of digging. At that time it was not believed possible that the other two men had survived their injuries.

Lennon, Campbell and Seufert, all members of Engine 32, with J. J. Quinn, were on the fourth floor, when the floors buckled in from each corner. The men in the center of the floors were carried down with the falling timbers. Quinn was half buried in hot brick and burning timbers, but as luck would have it his head was not covered. There he was found and carried to the street.

When Quinn regained consciousness he cried out: "Where is Dan Campbell?" and before he could be controlled darted back into the trembling building calling: "Dan! Dan Campbell! Where are you?"

"Here's Campbell, No. 32." The voice was faint and far down under the debris. Quinn recognized it and he screamed for the other firemen to come to the rescue. Battalion Chief Duffy was badly injured in trying to dig down to the man, whose voice was fast sinking into a whisper. Battalion Chief O'Connor was overcome by smoke.

Once out of the building, the firemen set to work to put out the flames. When the fire was under control a round-up of the firemen showed that Thomas Lennon, Daniel J. Campbell and John Seufert were missing. A search for them was at once begun, but it was soon believed positively that all three were dead. Hours afterwards Lennon's body was found, and it was night when the startling communication from Seufert was recognized.

As quickly as possible after Seufert's voice was heard an ambulance, with Dr. Bouwkes, was called from the Hudson street hospital. A rubber tube three feet long and half an inch in diameter, with a funnel arrangement at one end, such as is used in the hospitals as a stomach pump, was introduced into a hole in the debris, which the workers made, and lowered so that Seufert could apply his mouth to it. Through this he was given a stimulant and afterward two cups of strong hot coffee. After receiving the stimulant Seufert said he felt better and could await with patience until his rescuers got him out.

Father Rafferty, of St. James church, and Father Smith, the fire department chaplain, were called to the building soon after Seufert's voice was heard. Through the tube Father Smith heard the buried fireman make his act of contrition, according to the rites of the Catholic church, of which Seufert is a member, and gave him absolution. Fire Commissioner Lantry appeared at the building and also had a talk with the fireman. He called down to Seufert, and the buried man said: "Oh, is it you, Mr. Commissioner? I feel as if I had been down here about five years."

"Are you hurt?" asked the commissioner. "No," said Seufert. "I don't think so, but I feel cold and hungry." "Well, be patient and keep a stiff upper lip," said the commissioner. Then the commissioner asked Seufert about Campbell. Seufert said he thought Campbell was lying about eight or 10 feet away, but he had heard nothing from him since they both, with Lennon, were overwhelmed in the falling floors Sunday night.

FRIGHTFULLY HURT IN RUNAWAY

Baby Killed and Woman and Three Children Trampled Upon.

New York, Jan. 8.—A runaway team dashed into a crowd at a First avenue crossing, killing a baby in its carriage, and so injuring the child's mother and three other children that they can hardly survive.

As the driverless team, drawing a heavy truck, turned into the avenue, Mrs. Minnie Klappel, pushing a carriage occupied by her 16-month-old boy, Sidney, and with another son, Harry, aged 4, and a daughter, Millie, 6 years old, on either side, started for the opposite curb. With them were Frank Sohn, aged 3, and Frederick Leachman, 7 years old. The woman saw their peril and made a frantic effort to get her charges back to the curb. Only Millie escaped. The baby was crushed to death, while Mrs. Klappel and the other three children were trampled upon.

Removed senseless to a hospital, all were found to be frightfully injured. In each case internal wounds being probably serious enough to cause death.

The momentary check to the runaways as they stumbled among the victims permitted others in the avenue to escape. The team was stopped by policemen, who arrested Alexander Taggart, the driver, who is alleged to have left his horses in the street. He was charged with homicide, after he had been dragged through a threatening crowd to a police station.

GAS KILLS ENTIRE FAMILY

Six Persons Asphyxiated As They Slept in Vermont Town.

Burlington, Vt., Jan. 7.—The entire family of George Devino, at Winoski, consisting of six persons—the father, mother and four children—were killed during the night by a break in a sewer which entered the house through a pipe.

All were dead when Devino's brother broke into the house, but it is thought that the father had been killed when he was overcome, his body being found on the floor beside the bed, with the mouth stuffed with cotton batting. The children were: Isabel, 5 years old; Madeline, 3 years; Vonne J., 2 years; and Cecilia, 5 months.

The Devino house is not connected with the gas main, but as the odor was very noticeable about the closets and sink drains, it was believed that the gas came from a break in the main and entered the house through the sewer connection.

HEAVY SENTENCE FOR ASSAULT

Assaults of Judge Hawkins Get Seven Years Each.

Pittsburg, Jan. 8.—Robert Campbell and Augustus Delpro, two of the assaultants of Judge W. G. Hawkins, of the orphans' court, were sentenced to serve a term of seven years in the state prison. The prisoners, with Louis Goodman, set upon Judge Hawkins last summer while he was walking near his home one night, and beat the jurist into insensibility, subsequently releasing him. For a time it was feared, because of Judge Hawkins' advanced age, that he could not recover. Goodman, the third assaultant, was convicted of receiving stolen goods, and was sentenced to two years in the same institution with his companions.

After sentence was passed Campbell, when asked if he had anything to say, made a speech to the effect that he was not guilty of the crime charged.

WOULD OUST McCLELLAN

Suit Entered to Give Office of Mayor of New York to W. R. Hearst.

New York, Jan. 8.—Attorney General Jackson, on behalf of the people of the state of New York, entered suit in the supreme court against George B. McClellan, praying that the latter be ousted from the office of mayor of the city of New York, on the ground that he has usurped and unlawfully holds such office, whereas William Randolph Hearst is legally entitled to the same.

A summons and copy of the complaint in the action were served upon Mayor McClellan at the city hall. The complaint declares flatly that at the election in November, 1905, Mr. Hearst "was duly and legally elected mayor of the city of New York." It is further alleged that ballots legally marked for Hearst were counted for McClellan by these "miscellaneous" formed the basis of the returns of the vote. It is alleged that men not entitled to vote were permitted to vote for McClellan, and that in many other ways the election laws were violated. Votes cast for Hearst, it is declared, were not counted in a number of districts.

The alleged illegal votes for McClellan and the votes not counted for Hearst "greatly exceeded, but precisely how much the plaintiff is unable to state, the difference between the votes for the defendant McClellan and the said Hearst."

PROTEST AGAINST MILITARISM

Advisory Board of Jamestown Fair Are Shocked.

Boston, Jan. 5.—A lengthy protest by members of the advisory board of the Jamestown Exposition against "the diversion of the exposition to the service of militarism" has been issued. The document is as follows:

"The extravagant militarism of the program of the coming Jamestown Exposition, as developed and disclosed during the last few months, is a profound shock to a great body of the people.

Admission to the international naval and military exhibition was to have been gratuitous. The exposition program was approved by congress in a ram, as provided for in 1905, granting aid for that purpose. It was a well known and well understood thing, and was generally proper; but the purpose of this great exposition primarily to make a military spectacle for six months to the American people for six months by a 'great living picture of war' with all its enticing splendors, war was the notion that a war is encouraged, a splendor, a pageant and a thing of a horror and today almost invariably a crime, was not almost invariably a gradual evolving purpose, whose character is not advertised, can only work immense mischief against it."
