

FARM NOTES.

The stock water trough needs a thorough washing and scrubbing and flushing occasionally, if the water is to be free from disease.

When cattle chew leather, wood, or old bones, it indicates a lack of phosphate of lime in their food, which is required to supply bone material.

As long as cold draughts enter the stable the animals will demand sufficient food to create more animal heat as a protection.

Mange on swine is caused by filth and unclean conditions. It is due to minute parasites, which burrow under the skin.

The best place for all kinds of slops, soapuds, etc., is on the manure heap. It is an advantage to keep manure somewhat damp (not wet), and when all refuse matter is added to the heap, the manure will be better than when kept dry.

For very large hanging baskets the Madeira vine is very satisfactory. It is best not to give it very rich soil; its growth will not be so strong, but the leaves will be closer together and also be more attractive.

Early and late frosts are disliked by farmers, but such frosts do more harm to insects than the severe cold of winter, as they catch many of them out of the ground or just below the surface.

Labor can be saved in plowing, and the work well done by properly laying off the plot. A square acre, plowed with a 15-inch furrow, requires 84 rounds and 336 turns.

The tulip tree, one of the most ornamental of our shade trees, succeeds well when transplanted, after the leaf buds begin to appear, but it is pretty sure to fail if removed earlier.

The silo has opened advantages to dairymen in other countries where corn does not mature. In England, where the conditions are unfavorable for the production of matured crops of corn, the farmers sow corn for fodder, store it in the silo, then grow a crop of turnips on the land, from which they took the fodder.

The grazing of land by a mixed stock of cattle, sheep and horses results in the land being more easily grazed than when only one kind is kept. Where, however, many sheep are kept with cattle, the sheep pick out the finest of the grass and clovers, and the cattle do not thrive as well.

What is the proper amount of food for a cow? Such an inquiry cannot be satisfactorily answered, as each cow is an individual having peculiarities of disposition. There are preferences among animals for certain foods, as they have their likes and dislikes. A cow may have an excellent appetite to-day and refuse to eat to-morrow.

DAILY THOUGHT.

God of the granite and the rose, Soul of the sparrow and the bee, Thy mighty tide of being flows Through every creature, back to Thee.

For evenings in the Calendar Entertainment with a program of newly discovered games is an excellent choice.

For one pretty contest a ribbon is stretched across the room and on this number of wee calendars are strung.

Extremely inexpensive ones may be chosen, but all should be different, as the idea is to provide pretty souvenirs for all guests who are clever enough to cut them down.

This they must do blindfold, after having been turned three times around after the manner of a donkey party.

When the Calendar Hunt is substituted for the clipping contest, try this blindfold game: Have at one end of the apartment a blackboard on which the hostess draws the outline of a calendar with the name of the month and a blank space where the date should be.

Another entertaining round could be spent in devising Calendar Mottos. The hostess produces a specially prepared calendar for the month of January, or the current month, whatever that may be, having a special slip for each day.

A question contest, founded on the different days, is easy to prepare for. It should consist of a series of from twelve to twenty queries relating to days or months and modeled after the following:

From whom did Wednesday derive its name? From Odin (Woden), the Jupiter of Norse myth.

From whom was Thursday derived? From Thor, the thunder god of Scandinavian mythology.

Whence does the word Friday come? From Freya, the Venus of Norse mythology.

What is supposed to be the derivation of January? It is supposed to have arisen in the name of Janus, an ancient Latin deity who presided over gates, new undertakings, etcetera.

From whence comes the name of May? From Maia, a Roman goddess.

Why are October (octo, eight), November (Novem, nine) and December (decem, ten) so called, being now the tenth, eleventh and twelfth months of the year? They were so named by the early Romans, who began the year in March.

For whom was March named? For Mars (Martius) the Roman god of war.

What month derives its name from a Latin word meaning to open? April, regarded by the ancients as the season when the earth opened anew after the winter frosts.

What month was named for Julius Caesar? July. Before his time it had been called Quintilis, or the fifth month (in the old Roman calendar). The change was made at the suggestion of Anthony.

For whom was June named? For the goddess Juno to whom it was regarded as sacred.

What day was named to the moon and takes its name from this fact? Monday, or day of the Moon.

From what deity did Saturday derive its name? From Saturn.

Or a guessing contest of another character founded on famous days might be found enjoyable. Here, the guests sit in a circle and each mentally selects a day celebrated for one reason or another, the name of which he keeps secret.

This one player may choose Lincoln's Birthday and another Candlemas, another Arbor Day, and so on. The game is played like Twenty Questions, and without a prize as the hostess desires. Questions are answered by yes and no only. If a prize is awarded this goes to the player guessing most of the days correctly.

Another way to play the same game is a variation of the book party. In this case the entertainment prepares from a dozen to fifteen good-sized cards each of which has mounted upon it some picture or small object which when guessed will give the name of some celebrated day.

Each card is numbered and the different puzzles are passed from hand, or tacked upon the wall to be guessed by the company.

Of course, the meaning of the illustration must not be too patent. For example, a portrait of Washington or Lincoln would be too easily interpreted to mean the birthday of either of these Presidents.

To extend the list, feasts rendered famous by the poets, but no longer specially observed, such as St. Agnes' Eve (which in olden times possessed much of the mystic virtues of Hallowe'en) could be included.

Arbor Day. A picture of a tree or a picture or photograph of a wood.

Candlemas. A picture of a candle or a tiny wax candle sewed on the card.

All Hallowe'en. Several aureoles, an E and an N.

Mayday. A picture representing flowers or a tissue paper flower sewed on the card.

Lincoln's Birthday. Map of the United States with a scarlet line dividing North from South.

Election Day. Picture of the White House.

St. Agnes' Eve. Picture of a lamb.

Twelfth Night. Nocturnal scene, with 12 written on it somewhere.

Labor Day. Miniature top tools sewed to a card.

CALENDAR QUESTIONS. The quotation game described in the beginning of this article is also capable of being played several ways.

Pennsylvania Charged $138,000 For Work That Cost $29,000.

NOT THE IMPORTED ARTICLE

Harrisburg, Pa., March 14.—Testimony presented at the capitol investigating committee showed that the state has paid four times the market price for the special art glass furnished for the electric chandeliers through-out the new state capitol building by John H. Sanderson & Co., of Philadelphia, under its contract with the board of public grounds and buildings.

Although the schedules provided that Baccarat glass, an imported article, should be furnished for the chandeliers and standards, and for which Sanderson was paid $138,757.09, one of the witnesses testified that to the best of his knowledge and belief there was no Baccarat cut glass in the building.

This witness, Henry B. Ebberts, of Pittsburgh, secretary and treasurer of the Phoenix Glass company, which furnished all of the glass used in the chandeliers and standards, with the exception of the hollow pane and beaded glass. Mr. Ebberts said his firm had not bid on any of the work under the "per foot" or "per pound" system under which Sanderson was paid for the glass and other furnishings and fittings in the capitol.

Shown a globe, Mr. Ebberts was asked what he sold the sample for, and he replied $2.75 a dozen.

"What is the total amount of your bill for glass?" asked Mr. Scarlet.

"As some of our glass was shipped to New York, some to Philadelphia and some to Harrisburg, it is impossible to tell what amount went to the capitol. Our total for this was $29,847.79."

"Is the glass in the chandeliers in this room Baccarat glass?"

"No, sir; it is the very best glass made. It is made by the Phoenix Glass company, of Pittsburgh. Baccarat glass is made in a town of that name in France."

Mr. Ebberts was then examined by Mr. Scarlet as to the "per foot" and "per pound" system under which Sanderson was paid for the articles supplied under his contract.

"Do you know of any 'per foot' or 'per pound' measurements for glass?" asked Mr. Scarlet.

"Not in our line."

"How would you measure the globe in front of you to get the number of feet?"

"I would not know how to go about it. It is not sold that way."

"Were you asked to furnish this glass by the piece?"

"Yes, by the piece or by the dozen." Senator Dewalt then said: "I find in this bill I hold in my hand a credit of $853.20 for Baccarat glass for this room, and you say there is no Baccarat in this room?"

"There is none."

"How much were you paid for the glass in this room?"

"Two hundred and sixty dollars."

"There is a bill here for $58,444.20 of John H. Sanderson for Baccarat glass. In that proportion the glass in this room cost about four times as much as it would in accordance with your prices."

"Then you were never solicited to furnish Baccarat glass?"

"No, sir."

"If you were informed that the charge for Baccarat glass in this room was $1315.35, how much would you say was over-charge?"

"I should say between $900 and $1000."

BLAMES THE PRESIDENT

Railroad President Says He is Responsible For Wall Street Panic. Los Angeles, March 19.—In an interview in an afternoon paper President E. P. Ripley, of the Santa Fe, who is now at Santa Barbara, is quoted as saying that President Roosevelt is responsible for the present uncertain conditions in Wall street and attributes the recent semi-panic to "brush fire which the president started."

Mr. Ripley said that because of the anti-railroad sentiment in the country the Santa Fe system was prepared to begin a policy of strict conservatism in expenditures and that many contemplated improvements in the company's property would have to await more favorable conditions.

Trees by the Roadside. The German province of Hanover owns 1,907 miles of highways, on which there are 175,794 fruit trees—pear, cherry, plum and apple—sufficient to set out eighty to an acre to form an orchard of more than 300 square miles. The fruit raised on these trees is a source of income for the province, which sometimes makes $40,000 a year by selling the products of this elongated orchard.

The province maintains a nursery of 403 acres to supply young trees for roadside use and for promoting the interests of fruit culture. The profit of a tree is very small, but the Hanover people do not worry about that. Shade

Life Guards.

The Life Guards are two regiments of cavalry forming part of the British household troops. They are gallant soldiers, and every loyal British heart is proud of them. Not only the King's household, but yours, ours, everybody's should have its life guards. The need of them is especially great when the greatest foes of life, disease, and allies in the very elements as colds, influenza, catarrh, the grip, and pneumonia do in the stormy month of March. The best way that we know of to guard against these diseases is to strengthen the system with Hood's Sarsaparilla—the greatest of all life guards. It removes the conditions in which these diseases make their most successful attack, gives vigor and tone to all the vital organs and functions, and imparts a genial warmth to the blood. Remember the weaker the system the greater the exposure to disease. Hood's Sarsaparilla makes the system strong.

Nothing can be good for everything. Doing one thing well brings success. Doan's Kidney Pills do one thing only. They cure sick kidneys.

Wm. E. Haines, living at 123 W. Beaver St., Bellefonte, Pa., says: "I have had no occasion to use any kidney medicine since 1896. It was at that time I was cured by Doan's Kidney Pills and I made a statement for publication recommending them. The cure has proved to be permanent and it gives me pleasure to once more endorse Doan's Kidney Pills. Before I used this preparation I had been suffering for six years with a lameness of the back and dull, lingering aching over the kidneys accompanied with severe pains in the head. My eyes pained me. Being on night work I had to have my rest during the day but when I was in this condition I could not get any rest at all, and was, in fact, unfit to work. Reading of the many cures made in Bellefonte by Doan's Kidney Pills I got a box at the local drug store. They banished the whole trouble, and during the past eight years I have had no return of it. With this proof I am well able to recommend Doan's Kidney Pills."
