

Fine Grove Mention.

Many farmers are still replanting corn. Rev. D. Y. Brouse, of Mt. Union, spent Monday in town. Miss Bella Osman is spending the week with friends in Altoona. Mr. and Mrs. John Musser, of Main street, are visiting friends in Clearfield. Miss Agnes Harpster, who has been quite ill the past month, is not improving. George Grimes, of Oak Hall, is making a prolonged visit to his sister in Michigan. W. H. Roush has been appointed health officer for Ferguson and Harris townships. Children's day will be observed in the church at Pennsylvania Furnace on Sunday. Harry, son of A. M. Brown, who graduated at the Susquehanna University, is home again. Mrs. Joseph Wooster went to the city on Saturday morning to undergo treatment for her eyes. The Misses McCormick, of Hublersburg, spent last week with their grandmother Dannie. Miss Riley Thompson is spending a month among her friends in Jefferson and Clearfield counties. Farmer David Houser is having his house painted. Eckenroth Bros., of Bellefonte, have the job. Mrs. Oscar Martz, of Lock Haven, with her three little boys, is visiting her parents at the Roush home. Miss Sadie Glenn is having her house repapered and painted inside and out by J. B. Heberling and crew. Miss Sue F. Danniey and Mrs. J. G. Hess left Wednesday morning for a month's stay among friends in Medina, Ohio. John Hess, of Williamsport, an old Centre countian, was shaking hands with friends in this section in the beginning of the week. Wilson Cummings, the veteran stock man of McAlevy's Fort, circulated among the farmers last week and purchased quite a lot of stock. Druggist D. H. Meek, of State College, gave a party of friends a whirl in his new auto over our good roads and through town Sunday afternoon. Adam Hosterman, of Boalsburg, is traveling in the west, spending most of his time in Michigan. He reports a poor showing for wheat in that section. Samuel Wilson is putting in operation a saw mill on his farm and expects to cut over a hundred thousand feet of lumber. Frank Davis will superintend the job. The ladies will hold a festival in the I. O. O. F. hall next Saturday afternoon and evening. As the proceeds are for the church we bespeak a liberal patronage. A new concrete bridge has just been completed on the Branch, and is quite an improvement over the old plank structure. Reed Bros did the job to perfection. Miss Lucy, the accomplished daughter of Dr. L. C. Thomas, of Latrobe, is here visiting the home of her birth, a guest of her aunt, Mrs. Maggie Gates, on Church street. J. N. Bell, of Spruce Creek, accompanied by grandmother Maria Goss, came down on Saturday. Mrs. Goss will take up her old quarters at her son's home just north of town. Oliver Gibbons and T. C. Cronover, two of Stonevalley's representative men, passed through town Saturday, tarrying long enough to greet some of their old associates. They spent Sunday at Dr. Kidder's home in Boalsburg. Mrs. Kate Bronson with her sister, Mrs. Mary Smith, both of Iowa, surprised their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Adam Carper, last Saturday morning. The two ladies married and went west years ago and are now enjoying a visit to their parents and seven brothers in Spruce Creek valley. Jacob S. Reed was accompanied to Philadelphia last week by his brother David, to consult a specialist. Mr. Reed's eyes have been poor for many years and of late one has been quite painful. On Friday evening that member was removed very successfully, and now there is a possibility of saving the other.

On Sunday evening the Presbyterian church was filled to standing room with folks to witness one of the most successful Children's day services ever held here. The church had the appearance of a flower garden, being most tastefully decorated for the occasion. The little ones sang and recited without a break in the long program which was in charge of Dr. G. H. Woods. Rev. Harnish gave a talk to the little folks which was very appropriate.

One Dead, Three Injured in Mine Accident at Wilkes-Barre. Wilkes-Barre, Pa., June 18.—By a fall of rock in the No. 5 shaft of the Lehigh & Wilkes-Barre Coal company, Stephen Stephens, a timberman, aged 60, was caught and instantly killed. William L. Morgan, a fire boss, sustained a fracture of the arm and skull fractured. His condition is serious. Griffith Williams, a timberman, had arm fractured and was seriously injured about the body. Owen Griffith, helper, fractured arm.

Before Stephens could be reached several tons of coal and rock had to be removed. His body was mangled beyond recognition.

Suicide From Large Tree. Oaxaca, Mexico, June 17.—J. W. Johnson, of New York, the manager of large agricultural interests belonging to an American syndicate, died a very remarkable death near here, falling from among the branches of a great tree, said to be the largest in North America. The authorities are of the opinion that Johnson's death was suicidal.

Woman Brutally Beaten By Robbers. Niles Ohio, June 18.—Masked robbers entered the home of James Rush, a farmer, shortly after he had left the house, and brutally assaulted Mrs. Rush. After beating her severely, one of the men fired a bullet into her arm. They ransacked the house, taking what valuables they could find, and departed, leaving the woman bound to a chair.

WHY ORCHARD CONFESSED

Boise, Idaho, June 15.—The prosecution in the Steunenberg murder trial, entering in earnest upon the corroboration of Harry Orchard's testimony, showed a continuous thread of evidence connecting George Pettibone's store in Denver with Orchard at San Francisco while engaged on the Bradley murder plot, partly developed another direct line by which it is hoped to show that Haywood engaged and paid Steve Adams for the same desperate work, and added special touches of confirmation to Orchard's general story. Officers of the postoffices at San Francisco and Denver produced original records, showing that in August, 1904, a registered letter was sent under the name of "J. Wolff" from the address of Pettibone's store in Denver to "J. Dempsey" at the Golden West hotel in San Francisco. Orchard swore that he stayed at the Golden West hotel under an alias that was either "Dempsey" or "Hogan," that Pettibone used the aliases of "Wolff" and "Pat Bone," and that under the name of "Wolff" Pettibone in the month mentioned sent him a registered letter containing $100 to pay his expenses while attempting to kill Bradley. The state also produced several witnesses who confirmed features of Orchard's story as to the Bradley affair, the first descent into the Vindicator mine with the object of doing violence; the final success of the Vindicator plot and the circumstances under which Detective Lyte Gregory was killed. Aside from its fight against the admission of all the evidence offered by the state, on the general ground that it was in no way connected with the accused, the defense contented itself with showing that all of the witnesses had been found and interviewed by Pinkerton detectives. Orchard failed, when they recited to him the tale of David and Uriah, that Detective McParland related to him when he came seeking a confession. He fought to save himself, but tears filled his eyes and he rocked unevenly like a fainting woman. His voice lowered to huskiness and he hid his face in his handkerchief.

And here Orchard gave a remarkable explanation of the motives that impelled him to confess. "I thought," he said, "of putting myself out of the way, but I thought over my past life. I did not believe in a hereafter at all, but I was afraid to die, and I thought at times that I had been such an unnatural monster—my crimes had been so great that I would not be forgiven."

"Who told you that?" "No one. But after I had been sent a Bible and read it some I came to the conclusion that I would be forgiven if I made a confession of everything. I began to think that the grave did not end everything, and I made up my mind to tell the truth about the whole thing."

"So you thought you would make your peace with the future by having somebody else hung, did you?" asked Mr. Richardson. "No, sir. I think any man can make his peace with the future if he wants to. I believed it was my duty to tell the truth. I did not see any other way, regardless of the consequences to myself or anybody else. I owed it to society, I owed it to God and to myself."

For hours the defense hammered at the motive of saving his own life. They sought to show it in the force of example drawn from the immunity of informers in the Mollie McGuire cases, but this the witness would not admit. Orchard then left the stand, after having occupied it for 22 hours and a half. He will be recalled for redirect examination.

An Imaginary Trip. He—So Belle and Tom are not going on a wedding trip after all? She—No. You see, the flat they've taken is so near the size of a Pullman car that they decided they could be just as uncomfortable without the extra bother of riding in one.—Boston Transcript.
