Paris, July 15 .- The national fete day was marred by a dastardly attempt on the life of President Fallierles by Leon Maille, a naval reservist, of Havre, who, it is believed, is suffering from the mania of persecution. Maille fired two shots at the president, but did not hit him. He was at once placed under arrest.

On account of the activity of the anti-militarists, who tried to organize a demonstration against the army throughout France, especial precautions were taken to safeguard President Fallieries. The attempt on his life occurred on the Avenue Des Champs Elysees, while the president was returning to the palace from Longchamps, where he had reviewed the garrison of Paris, in the presence of 250,000 enthusiastic people. Pre-mier Clemenceau and M. Lanes, the president's secretary, were with the president in his landau, which was escorted by a squadron of cuirassiers. The carriage had safely emerged from the Bois de Boulogne, where the antimilitarists had stationed themselves with the intention of hooting the soldiers, and was descending the broad Champs Elysees, amid the acclamations of the crowds thronging the sidewalks, who were shouting "Vive Fallieries,""Vive l'armee," when at the corner of Lesueur street, Maille, from the curb fired two shots point blank at the president, in quick succession. Miraculously no one was hit. President Fallieries was cool and collected when the cortege stopped. The diplomats, who were following the president's landau, alighted from their carriages and hurried to the side of M. Fallieries. Finding that nobody had been injured, by the president's orders the cortege moved on. In the meantime two policemen seized Maille, who made no resistence but the police, with difficulty, prevented the irate crowds from lynching the prisoner, until a cordon of reserves came up and conducted him to the station. There Maille refused to give a reason for his act, saying: "The revelations I have are so grave and serious that I will only make them before a magistrate for transmission to the chief of state. It is a matter between the government and me. I am the victim of many villainies.'

Some of the witnesses of the shooting said that Maille fired in the air. It is believed that the man participated in the recent seamen's strike and that his mind had been unhinged by fancied grievances. It is believed also that he aided in the revolutionary agitation of the general federation of labor and the anti-militarists. There is no reason to suspect a plot, as Maille only ar-The corner stone laying of the new Luth- rived here from Rouen Saturday night.

MARBIAGE LICENSES .- The following CROWD WANTED TO LYNCH HIM DESCENT A LONG TORTURE

Newark, N. J., July 16 .- Sailing 7000 feet in the air, with the eyes of obeering thousands upon him, Eugene Raymond, a young aeronaut, involuntarily played the part of a human skyrocket at Belleville, a suburb of this city. His clothing was ablaze, his skin was blistered, his hair and eyebrows had been burned off and he was hanging to the bar of a swaying parachute that threatened to catch fire at any time. Unaware of his predicament, the spectators commented ad-miringly upon his clever descent. He is now in the Passaic general hospital, swathed in lint and bandages and full of wonder at his own deliver-

Raymond in his business undertakes a perilous branch of the parachute-leaping industry. Instead of ascending clinging to a parachute attached to a hot-air balloon and releasable by the pulling of a string, he goes up in a sheet iron tube fashioned to represent the barrel of a cannon. This tube is suspended from the balloon.

The aeronaut climbs into the sheet iron receptacle head first, with a folded parachute in his hands. At the closed end of the make-believe cannon there is a powerful spring. This, when touched, propels him from the muzzle with force enough to clear. As the aeronaut strikes the air and begins to descend the parachute opens-if everything goes without a hitch.

To add to the realism of the feat there is a quantity of flashlight powder placed at the muzzle of the sheet iron receptacle. When the aeronaut is ready to cut loose he pulls a string and fires the powder. Then he releases the spring and is shot out into the view of the gaping thousands beneath.

The flashlight powder was defective, and instead of dissolving in a puff of smoke it caught fire. Raymond did not know this, and released the spring. He shot out through a mass of whitehot powder that stuck to his flimsy acrobat's clothing and set him all ablaze.

For some hundreds of feet he dropped like a bullet before the parachute opened. His flight fanned the flames. They mounted from his waist to his head, seared his face, wiped off his eyebrows and hair, climbed up his arms to his tense hands clasping the parachute bar and played about the ropes and the flimsy parachute proper. It was up to Raymond to hang on and burn or drop and be dashed to pieces. He hung on. The pain was excruciating, but the knowledge that he was a mile or so in the air nerved his arms and strengthened his determination. His only hope was to keep hold of the handle bars until he reached the surface of the earth and his chief fear was that the sparks would set fire to the parachute. When 10 feet above the ground over a vacant lot at Centre and Miller streets, Nutley, Raymond let go. He was near the residence of H. T. Winfield, who Baltimore & Ohio box car, in which | hastened to his assistance and sum-
