Fruit Raisers in Colorado Reap Large Returns.

$1000 AND OVER PER ACRE

Denver, Colo., Oct. 28 .- The Colorado fruit growers have the Standard Oil company beaten for profits, according to some statistics just gathered by James B. Young, secretary of the Colorado State Commercial association. This state, according to Young, is the only one in the Union which has produced a fair fruit crop this year, and, although the amount is not so large as in previous years, because of frosts last spring, he says the farmers have received such prices for their fruit that the total aggregates as much as was received from the crop last year. In the Grand valley, around Grand Junction alone, 470 cars of fruit had been shipped up to last Saturday, including apples, pears and peaches. There was reported ready for shipment today (Monday) 45 cars of apples and pears, and the entire list of shipments has brought an average of $800 per acre, this price covering all grades of fruit. Of the higher classes, 14 cars of Bueno d'Anjou pears brought the farmers who shipped them $23,874 net,

As individual instances of profits, one man netted an average of $840 an acre on his pears, while a neighbor, with trees a year older, netted over $1000 per acre. These were on common grades. A. C. Newton, residing near Grand Junction, netted $2000 an acre on his high-grade pears. On this basis, figuring the value of his land by computing the price on an 8 per cent. income, his land was worth to him this year $25,000 an acre, although he bought it for $1000. Rev. James A. Becker, a minister in a small town in the Grand valley, netted $1000 per acre on Jonathan apples, having received $1900 per acre for his crop on land which cost him less than $1000 per acre. Although it is now late in October, the second crop of strawberries picked this year is now on the market; so that it seems as though Colorado land is not satisfied with furnishing only a single crop to enrich the husbandman, but must put forth another effort in their behalf.

Sugar beet raising also has proved profitable to Colorado farmers. The statistics just gathered show a total production this year of 2,100,000 tons, for which the farmers received a gross amount of $10,500,000, or $5 per ton. The cost of turning these beets into sugar is about one-half that sum, or, $5,250,000, making the sugar beet crop a total value to the state this year of $15,750,000. From the Arkansas valley of Colorado have been shipped daily during the season 1,260,000 canteloupes, the famous Rocky Ford district alone having shipped 168 carloads at 312 crates to the car, bringing a net return to the farmers of about $40,000. An interesting farming locality in Colorado is in Macy county, near Grand Junction, the county seat. There on 160 acres of land are now existing 15 families, with a total of 80 persons. These produced from their land two years ago an aggregate value in peaches of $48,000, taken from trees ranging from three to seven years of age. This year their product will range around $60,000.

TIED TO CHAIR BY HER HAIR

Robber Then Slashed Woman With Razor and Ransacked Room.

Pittsburg, Oct. 26-Stepping from her upstairs apartments in Belleville, a suburb, to investigate a noise in the rooms of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Adams, below, Mrs. W. M. Rogers was seized by a burglar, bound to a chair, gagged and slashed with a razor, after which the robber ransacked the Adams place escaping with $125 and other valuables.

Mrs. Rogers started to investigate the noise. As she was going through a pantry a masked man seized her, dragged her to a chair and, loosening her hair, tied it to the back of a chair. With a clothes line he bound her and proceeded to loot the premises.

The woman screamed and the robber whipped a razor from his pocket and slashed her ankle near the shoetop, at the same time warning her that if she uttered another word he would cut her throat.

There was a French count," said a lecturer in the midst of a little sermon on selfishness, "who was traveling from Paris to Monte Carlo.
