

SQUARED ACCOUNTS.

Also Won a Reputation and Saved Himself Further Trouble.

Press agents, like other individuals, have their troubles, but there is one in Philadelphia who has fewer of them than the ordinary man.

"There was one editor who had the idea that he wasn't getting all that was due. Nevertheless he published column after column of type and pictures.

"Afterward the managers of the show received a bill for $820 for advertising." They were in a rage.

"I went to the office of a friend, and, going to the type cases, I stuck the finest billhead you ever laid eyes on. I printed it in two inks. It read, 'The Two Continents Engraving Company; John Smith, manager.' Next I wrote this account, 'To Peter Jacob Schmidtheiser, Dr., to cuts for German festival, $800.'

"When Schmidtheiser received the bill he fainted. He revived and sent for me.

"For vot is it you charge me fer der cuts vot I could pay fer 40 cents abnee, yet?" he demanded.

"That's all right, old man," I assured him. "You might buy those cuts from anybody else for 40 cents apiece, but not of me."

"He refused to pay the bill, but not long afterward he was stricken with heart disease and died. His executors found the bill, with its balance of $70 in my favor. They asked me what I'd take to settle, and I told them $50. They paid it cheerfully, and since then I haven't had any trouble."—San Francisco Chronicle.

PINEAPPLES.

A Time When They Sold For $10 Each in San Francisco.

In 1851 pineapples were rare in San Francisco. One day in that year one of the passengers who had crossed the isthmus of Darien before leaving Panama purchased from one of the natives of that place a dozen pineapples for a quarter of a dollar, and when he landed in San Francisco he had six left.

How Sleep is Caused.

Just how sleep is brought about is one of the unsolved problems that have been before science since the earliest times. There are three general explanations of sleep. They are called the circulatory, the chemical and the histological theories.

Possible Population of the Earth.

By the best reckoning the earth's population for some two centuries or so has been increased at the rate of about a million a year. From now on, on account of improved material conditions and the diminution of the slaughter consequent to war, the increase bids fair to be much greater.

Mark Twain's Mean Man. "The meanest man I ever knew," said Mark Twain, "lived in Hannibal. He sold his son-in-law the half of a very fine cow and then refused to share the milk with the young fellow on the ground that he had only sold him the front half. The son-in-law was also compelled to provide all the cow's fodder and to carry water to her twice a day. Finally the cow buttered the old man through a barbed wire fence, and he sued his son-in-law for $50 damages."

Prehistoric Irrigation.

The triumphs of irrigation in the arid West are being advertised with new insistence on account of the National Irrigation Congress which is to be held in September at Sacramento, Cal., and which promises to be a more elaborate and important affair than any that have preceded it.

Proof of their irrigation works has been found in the valley of the Gila River in Arizona. Several years ago an investigation by Geological Survey developed the fact that the ruins of an ancient canal near the ruins of Casa Grande Temple were in reality the ruins of an irrigation canal constructed in prehistoric times and that, in order to prevent the seeping climate from drinking up the water before it could be distributed over the fields, the canal had been lined with some kind of cement which has withstood the elements for centuries, but which, like the colicis of some of the great Italian painters, has become a lost art, since the scientists of to-day cannot analyze it.

The canal was found about 20 feet below the level of the present earth, but has been uncovered far enough to show its original use and design. All other signs of reclamation works that may once have existed in the Gila Valley have been covered by the drifting sands of the centuries. Today in the same country, in the vicinity of Phoenix alone, there are over 500 miles of canals and ditches and over 3,000,000 acres of cultivated fields, producing cereals and grapes of every kind and even tropical products for luxury as well as necessity.

But the secret of the ancient canal builders who constructed their ditches so as to save the last drop of water still remains unsolved.

The Wedding Rice.

At a wedding breakfast, according to what to eat, a bridemaid was heard to tell the true reason for rice being used at weddings. It was once believed that if on their wedding journey a newly wedded couple saw a flock of doves it would mean a long life of peace and happiness to them.

There was a young man who started in life with the proposition that he would believe nothing he could not prove for himself or see with his own eyes. For that man history was a sealed book, foreign lands did not exist, astronomy was a fable, chemistry a fairy tale. For the foundation of all knowledge is the acceptance of facts which have been proven by other people and belief in the records of history and geography written by chroniclers and travelers long dead. That young man would be doomed to perish by his own ignorance.
