Sunday and Monday's rains played havoc with the big snow which fell last week and as a result the good sleighing which farmers and others were hoping would continue for a month or so, was completely ruined. Fortunately with all the rain and melting snow the streams were raised but very little and no damage was caused anywhere by high water.

BAD WRECK ON LEWISBURG AND TYRONE RAILROAD.—One of the worst railroad wrecks that has occurred in this section in years took place on the Lewisburg and Tyrone railroad, near Griffiths about a mile south of Bellefonte on Wednesday evening, and as a result one man is dead, another in the Bellefonte hospital and one went to his home in Sunbury to nurse his injuries, which are very slight. The casualties are:

Dead.—E. Graeff, engineer, of Sunbury; drowned, and leaves a wife and three children.

Injured.—William H. Winegardner, brakeman, of Sunbury. In the Bellefonte hospital with an abrasion of his left shoulder and elbow and left ankle sprained. Fireman Roy Inkrote sustained a few cuts and bruises on the leg but was able to go to his home the same evening.

Just exactly how the accident happened or the cause thereof will probably never be definitely known. The train was on its trip to Bellefonte. The crew was composed of E. Graeff, engineer; fireman Inkrote, conductor C. H. Snyder; brakeman W. H. Winegardner, and flagman I. Iffred. It was Graeff's first run as an engineer over the road although he had been over the road some time ago as a fireman for about a week, it is alleged. The train took on two car loads of stone at the Whitecroft quarries and left there on its run to Bellefonte. Though the trainmen claim they were not running at high speed persons who saw the train and the wreck claim that they were running very fast. The place where the accident occurred is on a sharp curve and from the best information obtainable it appears that the third car from the engine, a box car, was the first to leave the track, and it is claimed it was caused by the rails spreading.

Back of the box car were two big steel cars loaded with stone. These also left the track and tumbled down over the embankment and the combined weight pulled the two box cars next the engine, as well as the engine and tender off the track and down into the creek. In addition to the engine and fireman brakeman Winegardner was on the engine. The latter attempted to jump and was thrown to one side sustaining the injuries above mentioned. The fireman was thrown into the creek and wading down stream got out and went back to the wreck. The engine was thrown into the creek and pinned down under the cab of the engine, which fell on its right shoulder. The fireman and flagman, as well as Thomas Shearer, who was one of the first men on the ground after the wreck occurred, they endeavored to release the engine and get him out of the water but could not do so. For fifteen minutes or more they held his head above the water to keep him from drowning. The man was fully conscious and talked, but so excited was everybody that the only words anyone can remember of him saying is that his arm was fast and he could not get up.

The piled up cars in the creek dammed the water back but as soon as it began to rush through it got so high that the men could not keep the engineer's head above it and they were compelled to stand there and see him drown.

While it must have been awful for the three men who tugged in vain to get the pined engine out from under the wreckage before the water raised there was really little chance to save him. The fact that he was not drowned instantly was only because the stone and coal that had fallen into the stream above the engine suddenly lowered the flow of water below this dam, but when the natural flow came over it again the water rose so that Graeff's head was fully a foot under water. For four hours his leg could be seen floating on top of the water, also his one gloved hand. When the wrecking crew hoisted the engine so that he could be released it was found that his right forearm was broken and a dent in his upper arm, near the shoulder, that looked as though it had been a round rod that was holding him. Otherwise he did not appear to be injured much.

All the talk about the possibility of saving a life by cutting off his arm or building a dam around him is beyond reason, for neither would have been possible. It must be remembered that from the time the train went over until the man was completely submerged was not more than ten or fifteen minutes and much of that time was consumed in locating him, after the others had gotten over the first shock. Dr. J. D. Seibert, of this place, who happened to be there within five minutes after the accident, as the train had passed him only at Rishel's crossing above, said that all that could possibly have been done was done to save him.

As soon as possible the injured brakeman and fireman were brought to the Bellefonte hospital but after having his slight injuries dressed the fireman came into town and left on the night train for his home in Sunbury. In the meantime railroad officials at both Sunbury and Tyrone had been notified and the wreck train from Tyrone was sent down. It arrived here a little after seven o'clock and it was after eight o'clock when they succeeded in recovering the body of the dead engineer. It was taken to the Harris undertaking establishment and prepared for burial and yesterday was taken to his late home in Sunbury.

The crew of the wreck train worked all night cleaning the road and relaying the track and yesterday morning the wreck train from Sunbury came up and the two crews worked all day cleaning up the wreck.

An incident in connection with the wreck was that Donald Potter was at Lemont and wanted to come down to Bellefonte on the engine but the engineer refused to allow him to do so, and to this fact he probably owes his life.

Fireman Inkrote has resigned his position, saying that this being the fifth wreck he has been in he thinks rail roading is not a safe business for him.

The World's Signal company, of Phillipsburg, was recently incorporated at Dover, Del., with a capital of one million dollars. Charles H. Rowland, of Phillipsburg, and Lawhe Baird, of Osceola Mills, are two of the incorporators of the company, the purpose of which is to manufacture and install railway signals, etc.

Miss Collins will move to Bellefonte after Dr. Hayes and family have vacated their old home on Spring street and will occupy rooms there. Drs. Hayes and Dale will retain their offices in the Hayes building on Spring street where they are now located.

Cal Armstrong, of Lock Haven, and who is well known in Bellefonte, with C. W. Lee, his chauffeur, left on Monday night on quite an extended trip, their destination being Mexico, where Mr. Armstrong has mining and oil interests. En route they will stop for several days at Chelesia, Oklahoma, where Mr. Armstrong will inspect a refinery in which he is interested. After that they will proceed to Mexico where they will spend several months.

The Pennsylvania railroad company is about to begin work on widening the big fill at the horseshoe curve on the Tyrone and Clearfield railroad. The work will be done by Charles A. Campbell, of Phillipsburg, under the direction of supervisor Haultgren. It is planned to widen the fill eight feet on either side, but whether the object is to eventually double track the road has not yet been divulged. It is expected it will take six to eight months to complete the work.

John S. Walker has been confined to the house the past week and is quite sick. Mrs. Frank Montgomery and Miss Emily Natt are both in bed with the grip. Mrs. David Peters, of Bush Addition, is in a serious condition with cancer and Mrs. Alfred Beezer has an attack of appendicitis and may have to undergo an operation. Miss Marjorie Lieb is seriously ill with consumption and Orrin Miller is very sick at his home on Bishop street, with slight chances of his recovery.

We are much gratified to record the fact that our old-time friend, John T. Todd, of Phillipsburg, has almost recovered from a severe attack of pneumonia, but the disease has unfortunately left him in a somewhat weakened condition physically so that his physician has advised his going south for the winter and this week he and Mrs. Todd went to Midland, Va., where they will make their headquarters; unless the climate there is considered too cold when they will go on south to Ashville, N. C.

Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Keely, of Franklin, Pa., want information concerning their son Wallace who disappeared from home in the afternoon of Sunday, Dec. 29, 1907. He is described as follows: Age 14 years; height 5 feet two inches and slender; face rather full; dark hair; gray eyes; when he disappeared he wore a grey plaid suit with knee trousers, and a cap almost matching the suit, soft white shirt with no necktie, and lace shoes. The lad is very bashful and may be slightly demented. Any information concerning him should be sent to Mr. Keely or E. T. Stevenson, Franklin, Pa.

Counting on there being good sleighing Misses Helen Hamilton and Marjorie Richards got up a party for a sled ride to Hecla Park on Monday evening but the rain and warm weather took the snow away so that there was no sleighing. But the girls were not to be outdone so they took their sled ride on a load of straw on a big wagon and forty young men and women composed the party who went down to the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Workman, at Hecla and spent the night, as it was five o'clock in the morning when they arrived home. Of course it is hardly necessary to say that all had a good time. A big supper of an endless array of good things was a feature of the night thoroughly enjoyed by all present.

VIOLA TELLER WANTED FORTY MILLION DOLLARS.—Quite a sensation and no little excitement was caused last Saturday afternoon when the fact became known that Viola Teller, of Milesburg, had demanded forty million dollars from Mrs. Lillie G. Reeder and threatened to take her life if she refused to pay. Fortunately any direct attempt at a tragedy was averted by the coolness and presence of mind of Mrs. Reeder and Miss Teller was safely landed in jail to await the verdict of a commission which will likely be appointed to inquire into her mental condition.

For some time past Miss Teller has acted queerly, a fact duly noted by everybody with whom she came in contact. She had an agency for sewing machines and pianos and weeks ago made daily trips to Bellefonte, driving a mouse colored pony. Finally she sold the pony and bought a bicycle but pushing a wheel must have been too hard work as about six weeks ago she bought a second-hand automobile in Philadelphia and had it shipped to Milesburg. It came with a bill of something over nineteen dollars freight charges attached and she refused to lift the machine on the grounds that it was to have been delivered free. She came to Bellefonte and got out a writ of replevin but the railroad company through its attorney moved to quash the proceedings and the action is still before the court and unsettled.

This seems to have preyed on her mind to such an extent as to render her actions unquestionably those of a person of unbalanced mind. Saturday afternoon she came to Bellefonte and going upstairs in the Bush house started a search for Mrs. Reeder. She finally got into the room occupied by Mrs. Sheldon and accosted her as Mrs. Reeder. Mrs. Sheldon told her she was not the woman in question and that Mrs. Reeder was not living at the Bush house but at Mrs. Louisa Harris' on Allegheny street. Miss Teller then proceeded to Mrs. Harris' but upon knocking and being recognized she was refused admittance. She did not leave the house, however, but remained upon the porch until mail carrier Woodring came around and opened the door to deliver the mail when she rushed in and up the stairs.

By some instinct she singled out Mrs. Reeder's room and waited outside until the door was opened by the latter woman, who had just finished dressing to go down town, when she rushed across the threshold and demanded an audience. She told Mrs. Reeder that she had forty million dollars of her money and that she needed it and must have it; and if she didn't get it she would kill her. She also referred to the trouble about her automobile and declared that it was the fault of either F. W. Cridler, Col. W. Fred Reynolds or Thomas A. Shoemaker that she could not get it. It was at this juncture that Mrs. Reeder displayed rare presence of mind. Realizing at once the character and condition of the woman she told her that she knew her claim was just and all right and that she would pay it, but that she would have to go along down town to her attorney's office as all the papers, etc., were there. To this Miss Teller readily agreed. When they got out on the street Mrs. Reeder did not relish the idea of walking close to the woman or in front of her, fearing she might take a crazy notion to stab her in the back, so she politely asked Miss Teller to walk a few steps in advance. Miss Teller replied: "No, you walk ahead and if you make any attempt to escape I'll take your life," and thus the two made their way to the office of attorney J. A. B. Miller.

On being told by Mrs. Reeder what they were there for Mr. Miller said he had taken the papers to Keioblino's office and they would go there and get them. He accordingly escorted the two there and once in Keioblino's office the story was told. Mr. Miller then went out to hunt a policeman but did not return and Col. Taylor was sent for. He went into the squire's office and heard the story and finally a policeman was secured and Miss Teller taken to jail. Miss Teller made no open display of a weapon of any kind during her escapade, but carried in her hand a small hand bag. This she held in such a manner while in the squire's office as to lead those present to fear she might have a bomb, dynamite or something concealed therein and to be on the safe side Col. Taylor stood close behind her and as the slightest motion would have grabbed the handbag. But no attempt at the tragical was made although when the woman was taken to jail and her handbag searched it was found to contain a loaded revolver and a number of extra cartridges. However, the incident closed without anybody getting hurt in the least.

"RONEY'S BOYS" IN NAME ONLY.—Many amusing incidents have occurred on account of the name "Roney's Boys," by which are known all over the country the five wonderful youngsters which Mr. Roney will bring to Bellefonte for a concert on January 27th. Being from different families in different States the boys are, of course, not related to Mr. Roney, their trainer and manager, but conductors and hotel men persist in talking to the boys in all seriousness about their "Papa," and the youngsters find the mistake an endless source of amusement. The first "Roney's Boys" chose the name themselves many years ago, before the lads of the present company were born. The name has become a trademark of immense value to Mr. Roney, who is indefatigable in his efforts to keep his company up to the standard he has established, notwithstanding the yearly changes in his personnel. These boys will be in Petriken hall for the benefit of the Y. M. C. A., and should have a good house. Go and hear them.

A JOLLY SLEDDING PARTY.—One of the jolliest parties to enjoy a sled ride while the big snow was at its best last week was made up of the officials, employees and operators of the Pennsylvania telephone company in this place, who went up Bald Eagle valley to the very hospitable home of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Hall, at Unionville, last Thursday evening. Farmer Tom Beaver not only furnished the team and sled and officiated as driver but did it all as a free compliment to the party and quite naturally he did it to perfection, too. A big sled equipped with hay ladders, piled full of straw, with piles of blankets and robes, sufficed to keep everybody warm and comfortable, even if the night was the coldest we have had this winter, with the thermometer at the zero mark.

Nothing could have been heartier than the reception the party received on their arrival at the Hall home. Every preparation had been made for their entertainment, even to a big supper, for the preparing of which Mrs. Hall would accept only the thanks of her guests. Under such circumstances is it any wonder the young people had a most enjoyable time, and that it was with feelings of regret they parted, even though it was 2.30 o'clock in the morning when they arrived home. Those who composed the party were Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Mallalieu, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Brown, Benton D. Tate, and Misses Myrtle and Violet Longacre, Rose Haupt, Katharine Sheffer, Helen Landis, Emma Waite, Neda Bryan and Helen Dennis, just thirteen, but then none of them were the least bit unpretentious because of that fact as Tom Beaver was equal to two others and just as much a member of the party.

One of the WATCHMAN's callers on Monday morning was Col. Emanuel Noll, the very efficient baggage master at the Pennsylvania railroad depot. To him are we indebted not only as being one of the old time subscribers of the WATCHMAN but as one of the many Bellefonters who send the paper to a number of friends in various parts of the United States; and as he is also one of that class of men who don't ask the newspaper man to take his expense he simply dropped in to fix matters up for another year.

A GENUINE COMEDIAN.—Al. H. Tyrrell, "that phunny pheller" with John W. Vogel's Big City Minstrels, which comes to Garman's, Wednesday, January 22nd, is a wonder. Mr. Tyrrell is unique as a monologue artist, as he possesses a singing voice of much clarity and sweetness, something very few in his special line of stage work enjoy.

He is as clever as the best and performs with much more ease than any other performer in his line. He responds to his encores and exhausts his responses to the audience. Wherever Mr. Tyrrell appears he wins a loyal clientele. He is only one of the many who will be on the stage when the curtain rises, and from that moment until the finale you have fun without a blush. Songs of sentiment by the world's greatest vocalists, comic ditties by the best comedians on earth, who also furnish humor without a taint. The songs have been sung; jokes have been told; the Adon-like person in the middle has his friendly repartee with the various comedians with the "bones" and "tambos." Personal grace has been shown and beauty added because of the handsome paraphernalia used in the first part settings. There's no tiresome overture, but on the contrary the various novel feats gathered from all quarters of the globe commence, and ere the final has been reached, you have, with your brother auditors, proclaimed minstrelly the king of amusements. Watch for the big street parade at 3.30 p. m.

McFEATERS—LEBKREKER.—Miss Nellie J. Lebkreker, formerly of this place, but who the past year has lived with her mother in Johnstown, was married on Wednesday morning to Mahlon V. McFeaters. There were no attendants only the requisite number of witnesses being present. Mr. and Mrs. McFeaters went to housekeeping at once in Dale borough.

SHANER—HAWKINS.—Miss Lilly Hawkins, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Hawkins, of Phillipsburg, sprung a surprise on her friends this week when she announced that she had recently been married to Harry Shaner, a machine operator on the Philadelphia Press. The two young people had been engaged for some time and their wedding occurred while Miss Hawkins was on a trip to the Quaker city.

NEWCOMER—WAYS.—Bellefonters will be interested in the announcement of the marriage of Charles Newcomer, son of Mr. and Mrs. D. B. Newcomer, of this place, and Miss Bertha Ways, of Scranton, the wedding having taken place on Saturday, January 4th. Rev. Elias Kremer performed the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Newcomer will make their home in Scranton.

Apples Wanted.

He will pay from 50 to 70 cents, per bushel, cash, for good hand picked apples, according to quality. Any person having apples to sell please call Mr. Bodinger by phone, write him at once or bring apples to car at time stated. Apples in barrels preferred but bring the apples whether barrelled or not. It will take from seven to eight hundred bushels to fill the car.

Centre Hall people are somewhat elated over the announcement that a new industry is soon to be established there by George O. Benner and his brother-in-law, John Miles, although the nature of the industry has not yet been made public.
