

Never a One Day President.

The periodic assertion is made that on Sunday, March 4, 1849, Senator David Rice Atchison of Missouri, who was then president pro tem. of the senate, was president of the United States "virtually." He never was, "virtually" or otherwise.

A Little of Everything.

"The weather used to be in four acts—spring, summer, autumn and winter." "Well?" "But now nature seems to have gone into vaudeville."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

A Pleasant Change.

"So you enjoyed Venice?" said the traveler. "Yes," answered Mr. Cumrox. "It was kind of pleasant, for a change, to be robbed by a gondolier instead of a hack driver."—Washington Star.

Ancestry.

Don't step hard on a struggling mortal because his grandfather once robbed a stagecoach. None of us can go too far back in the family record without a shiver of apprehension.—Manchester Union.

Pants and Trousers.

Everybody talks well when he talks in the way he likes, the way he can't help, the way he never thinks of. The rest is effort and pretense. The man who says "trousers" because he likes to say it and the man who says "pants" because he likes to say it are both good fellows with whom a frank soul could fraternize, but the man who says "trousers" when he wants to say "pants" is a craven and a truckler, equally hateful to honest culture and wholesome ignorance. He belongs in the same sordid category with the man who wears tight shoes and high collars that are a torment to the flesh, who eats olives that he doesn't relish and drinks uncongential clarets in imitation of his genteel neighbor in the brownstone front.—Atlantic.

The Trapdoor Spider.

One of the most singular specimens of insect life is the trapdoor spider of Jamaica. His burrow is lined with silk and closed by a trapdoor with a hinge. The door exactly fits the entrance to the burrow and when closed so precisely corresponds with the surrounding earth that it can hardly be distinguished even when its position is known. It is a strange sight to see the earth open, a little lid raise, some hairy legs protrude and gradually the whole form of the spider show itself. These spiders generally hunt for food by night, and in the daytime they are very chary of opening the door of their domicile, and if the trap be raised from the outside, they run to the spot, hitch the claws of their forefeet in the lining of the burrow and so resist with all their might. The strength of the spider is wonderfully great in proportion to its size.

He Could Run Putty.

A laborer in search of work was asked by a builder to whom he applied if he could run putty. He replied that he could and was told to be at the works at 6 o'clock next morning. He arrived at the time stated, and when asked if he were ready stripped off his overcoat and disclosed himself to the astonished builder clad in running costume and pumps. "What are you going to do in those things?" inquired the employer. "Run 'Putty,'" answered the man. "But I want you to run it down into this hole," said the builder. "Oh don't care if it is down a drain," replied the man. "Throt him out, and O'll run him."—London Telegraph.

For a 2ct. Railroad Rate.

In November, 1906, the people of Pennsylvania spoke almost as a unit demanding a maximum passenger rate of two cents a mile. After having the advantage of the rate from Oct. 1st, 1907, to Feb. 1st, 1908, it was arbitrarily taken from us and the old rate of two and one-half cents per mile restored, for the reason that four of our Supreme court judges declared that the constitution forbids our making any such law. Now the people that makes constitutions should certainly have power to change or amend them and I think we should demand of our would-be Legislators a pledge, that if elected, they will use their influence to have the machinery of legislation started in the direction of having an amendment made to the constitution in such plain language as will leave no ground on which the four Judges referred to can stand.

Tame Your Rattlesnakes.

A tame rattlesnake belonging to an Arizona farmer sleeps every night on the front gate of its owner's garden, coiling himself around the gate and gastropod, so that a lock and chain to keep out intruders are not needed.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

Fauble's Great Clothing House

The Smart Little Touches that Make the Fauble Clothes Smart

Not only are the Fauble Clothes fashioned after smart models with style and grace evident in every line and curve, but they are also characterized by those nobby little conceits which one only expects to find in High Class Custom Tailored Garments. Among this Spring's models are coats with fancy cuffs, slanted pockets, long lapels, concaved shoulders, creased side seams, belt straps and all the Latest Tailoring Fads that bespeak perfection of style and cut.

No wonder the man who has the habit of getting the most for his money wears the Fauble clothes.
