The President Further Outlines His Views as to Legislation.

STRENGTHEN ANTITEUST LAW

Government Should Control Large Cor porations and Limit Should Be Placed On Labor Injunctions - Legitimate Combinations Should Be Permitted

' Washington, April 28-The president sent a special message to congress further outlining his views as to legisla tion. The message in part follows:

In my message to the congress of March 25, 1908, I outlined certain meas ures which I believe the majority of our countrymen desire to have enacted into law at this time. These measures do not The second secon ers' liability law has been enacted which it is true, comes short of what ought to have been done, but which does represent a real advance. Apparently there is goo ground to hope that there will be furthe legislation providing for recompensing all employes who suffer injury while engaged in the public service; that there will be a child labor law enacted for the Distric of Columbia; that the waterways com mission will be continued with sufficien financial support to increase the effective ness of its preparatory work; that step will be taken to provide for such investi gation into tariff conditions by the ap-propriate committee of the house of rep-resentatives and by government experts in the executive service as will secure the full information necessary for imme-diate action in revising the tariff at the hands of the congress elected next fall, and, finally, that financial legislation will be enacted providing for temporary meas-ures for meeting any trouble that may arise in the next year or two, and for a commission of experts who shall thor-oughly investigate the whole matter both here and in the great commercia countries abroad, so as to be able to recommend legislation which will put our financial system on an efficient and permanent basis. It is much to be wished that one feature of the financial legis a tion of this session should be the establishment of postal savings banks. Ample appropriations should be made to enable the interstate commerce commission to carry out the very important feature of the Hepburn law which gives to the commission supervision and control over the accounting systems of the railroads. The president then says a law should be passed limiting the use of labar injunctions, as he does not wish to see an embittered effort made to destroy it. He then says:

The strengthening of the antitrust law is demanded upon both moral and eco-nomic grounds. Our purpose in strengthening it is to secure more effective control by the national government over the business use of the vast masses of individual, and especially of corporate wealth, which at the present time mo-nopolize most of the interstate business of the country, and we believe the con-trol can best be exercised by preventing the growth of abuses rather than merely by trying to destroy them when they have already grown.

Fauble's Great Clothing House

Power should unquestionably be lodged somewhere in the executive branch of the government to permit combinations the government to permit combination: which will further the public interest, but it must always be remembered that as re-gards the great and wealthy cormbina-tions through which most of the inter-state business of today is done the bur-den of proof should be on them to show that they have a right to exist. The measures I advocate are in the in-terest both of decent corporations and of terest both of decent corporations and of law-abiding labor unions. They are more-over pre-eminently in the interest of the public, for in my judgment the Americar people have definitely made up their minds that the days of the reign of the minds that the days of the relation of the great law defying and law evading cor-porations are over and that from this time on the mighty organizations of capi-tal necessary for the transaction of busi-ness under modern conditions, while encouraged so long as they act honestly and in the interest of the general public, are to be subjected to careful supervision and regulation of a kind so effective as to in-sure their acting in the interest of the sure their acting in the interest of the people as a whole. Allegations are often made to the effect that there is no real need for these laws looking to the more effective control of the great corporations upon the ground that they will do their work well without each control L call your attention to the that they will do their work were written such control. I call your attention to the accompanying copy of a report just sub-mitted by Nathan Matthews, chairmar of the finance commission, to the mayou and city council of Boston, relating to certain evil practices of various corpora-tions which have been bidders for fur-nishing to the city iron and steel. This report shows that there have been ex-tensive combinations formed among the various corporations which have business with the city of Boston, including, for in-stance, a carefully planned combination embracing practically all the firms and corporations engaged in structural stee work in New England. It affected the states, the cities and towns, the railroads and street railways, and generally all persons having occasion to use non of steel for any purpose in that section of the country. As regards the city of Bos-tionation resulted in parcelton, the combination resulted in parcel
