PENNSYLVANIA DAY AT STATE COLLEGE.

One Congressman, three State Senators, forty-three Members of the Legislature, Gen. John A. Wiley representing Governor Stuart, Mayor Reyburn, of Philadelphia, and hundreds of other prominent citizens of the State were present to help celebrate Pennsylvania Day at the Pennsylvania State College last Friday and every one of them not only showed their fealty to the institution but so far as they could do so pledged their support in its behalf in the future.

It was not only the biggest Pennsylvania Day ever celebrated there but it was a big day for the College as well. It marked an era which it is believed will prove the beginning of even a greater growth in that institution than even its wonderful strides of the past decade. The very fact that over two score Members of the Legislature from all over the State have the interest of the College enough at heart to travel from one to two hundred miles to be present at last Friday's gathering is evidence that they conscientiously realize that as a ward of the State it is entitled to greater support than it has been given in the past and that they will unite in doing what they can to give it. In fact Senator Edward F. Blunette, of Lackawanna county, who is a member of the Appropriations committee, pledged himself to vote for anything the College asked for, and that after a member of the board of trustees had stated that they ought to have one and a half million dollars.

The visitors began to arrive at the College as early as Thursday afternoon when a private car filled with the delegation from western Pennsylvania passed through Bellefonte for that place. Friday morning Mayor Reyburn and the eastern delegation reached the College in general manager W. W. Atterbury's car, over the Pennsylvania railroad. Large delegations from Bellefonte and the nearby surrounding towns were taken up over the Bellefonte Central so that the crowd was a record one.

The meeting of the day was held in the new auditorium and the spacious building was well filled. Dr. Edwin Eric Sparks, president of the College, called the meeting to order and after referring briefly to the history of the College and speaking confidently of the hopes for its future, introduced General James A. Beaver, president of the board of trustees, as the presiding officer. The general very plainly stated that the object of Pennsylvania Day was to get together at the College as many of the Senators and Representatives, the Governor and other prominent men of the State as possible in order to show them what a big institution the College is and to impress upon them the fact that it is fast outgrowing—in fact, has already outgrown—its present capacity, so far as the student body is concerned, and it is absolutely necessary to have more and larger buildings and greater and more modern equipment in order to keep pace with the College growth.

He stated that when Governor Stuart was at the College one year ago he stated that the institution needed twenty million dollars and he was afraid they were going to get it. That the Governor's remark fitted in exactly at this time, and that they ought to have one and a half millions of that amount appropriated by the next Legislature. Other speakers of the day were Mayor Reyburn, of Philadelphia, who confined his talk principally to the needs of the College; Dr. M. L. Wilson, of Philadelphia; Gen. John A. Wiley, Senator Edward F. Blunette and Representatives W. T. Creasy, John F. Cox and William S. Morrison. It was during Senator Blunette's talk that he pledged himself to vote for any appropriation the College might ask. Everyone of the speakers, in fact, pledged themselves to do all they could for the College.

Prior to the meeting in the auditorium the visitors had been taken on a hurried trip of inspection through all the buildings and various departments. After the meeting an exhibition drill was given by the regiment of cadets and this was followed by the annual football game between the Sophomores and Freshmen, in which neither side was able to score. A big dance in the armory in the evening closed the days program. The State Senators, Representatives and Members-elect present were as follows:

Tell your friends what a good, clean, newsy paper the WATCHMAN is. There are plenty of people who should be subscribers who are not and, possibly, if you were to tell them that you take the WATCHMAN it might persuade them that they are missing a good thing.

Ever since the second day of the deer hunting season a story has been going the rounds of the press that John Everett, of Madisonburg, had been attacked and killed by a large buck he had wounded while hunting in the mountains back of Coburn. The story is one of those fairy hunting yarns that the irrefragable start every season and has no foundation whatever, as Mr. Everett is alive and well as usual.

Go see the pictures tonight and tomorrow night, as well as all of next week.

Miss Emma Louise Kinsely is the name of a quite young lady who made her appearance at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Kinsely on Wednesday morning. Of course the little guest was made exceptionally welcome as she is the only girl in the family and will naturally be the pet of all before she is many days older. Naturally George has been kept busy ever since tipping more than his hat to his numerous friends.

Saturday afternoon when the train on the Lewisburg and Tyrone railroad was on its way to Bellefonte one of the trucks under the tender jumped the track a short distance below Coburn. Fortunately the train was stopped before any of the cars were thrown from the track or any damage done with the exception of tearing up a number of ties. It required the services of the wreck train from Sunbury to replace the derailed tender and in the meantime the passengers were transferred to the train which left here at 1.50 and were brought to this place about seven o'clock in the evening.

Frank Davis, the cigarmaker who works for Kinsely brothers, is extremely puffed up over the fact that he was one of the first butlers to bring some venison to Bellefonte, and that because of his own unerring aim. The big buck he shot last week on the mountains near Coburn weighed 185 pounds. It had four prongs on one side of its antlers and five on the other. The head and hide he brought to Bellefonte on Monday, sending the former to taxidermist Eldon, in Williamsport, to have mounted and the hide away to be tanned. He also brought enough of venison along to give a few of his friends a mess of same.

Yesterday morning's fire emphasizes the necessity of keeping the fire plugs in Bellefonte in a better condition than some of them, at least, are at present. At a recent meeting of council the water superintendent was instructed to test all the plugs and see that they were in good working order. He later reported that the work had been done. Whether it had or not, the writer is not prepared to say but he does know that when the Logan fire company arrived on the scene of the fire yesterday morning and attempted to get a stream from the fire plug on the corner of Lamb and Ridge streets the valve could not be turned by hand and it required several minutes to hammer it loose. The minutes wasted gave the fire a big start on the firemen and doubtless resulted in a greater destruction of property than would have occurred could water have been had at once. Every fire plug in town should be tested often enough to assure it being in good condition when needed. To assure this a thorough test will be made of them today by the water superintendent and fire marshal.

BOROUGH ELECTRIC PLANT ASSURED.

As stated exclusively in the WATCHMAN last week the deal was consummated in Tyrone last Thursday evening whereby the borough of Bellefonte purchased from J. R. Simpson, of Huntingdon, and Dr. E. H. Green, of Mill Creek, the property in Miesburg known as the estate of the late Joseph Green, consisting of between thirty and thirty-five acres and which includes the large brick grist mill and the dam and water power rights. Though the exact figures cannot yet be stated the purchase price is in the neighborhood of $13,000.

The property was purchased with a view of establishing a hydro-electric plant there for the purpose of supplying electricity to light the streets of Bellefonte as well as to furnish power to pump the water from the big spring into the reservoir. As figured now the entire cost of installing the plant at Miesburg, stringing the wires and equipping the streets with lamps, furnishing a motor to run the pump at the water works and including the cost of the land may not exceed $30,000, with a maximum of $35,000.

As to the judiciousness of the investment it can be stated that it now costs approximately $5,000 to light the streets of Bellefonte. A rental of $1,500 a year is paid for the Phoenix pumping station while the coal bill this year for the old station will aggregate $500. Add to this the sum of $1,500 a year paid for labor at the pumps and it will be seen that for lighting the streets of the town and furnishing water to its residents costs practically $8,500 a year. With the new plant once installed the only expense will be for labor, say $1,500; street lights, carbons, and other incidentals, about $500. Counting in addition five per cent on a total of $18,000 as the cost of the plant, for the natural depreciation by wear and tear, or $900, there will be an aggregate of $2,900, as against the present expenditure of $8,500, or a saving of $5,600. Even allowing an additional thousand dollars to be added to the expenditures the saving would still be fifty per cent of the present expense account.

In addition the plant to be installed will be one of ample capacity to furnish all the power needed to permit of double the number of lights on the streets that are now in use, and still have an abundance of power to spare. The special committee of council who conducted the negotiations for the purchase of the Green property had a survey of the same made several weeks ago and a computation of the maximum and minimum power of the plant made by J. Murray Africa, of Huntingdon, one of the best versed men on hydro-electric plants in the country.

He figured on about a five foot high breast at the dam and dredging out the tail race to a depth of two feet or more, which can easily be done. With the above work completed there is ample water power to furnish electric power equal to three hundred horse power at least eight months in the year. And in the driest season, as it is now, the minimum would be one hundred and sixty-five horse power. It is estimated that to furnish the lights as they will be placed on the streets will require seventy-five horse power and for pumping the water not over fifty horse power, which would give an excess of forty horse power at the minimum of the plant.

The above are the main points of what a municipal hydro-electric plant will mean, while there are quite a number of minor features, though important enough when taken together, which may slightly reduce the first cost of the plant from the figures given above, and, if they are successfully carried through will reduce the cost of operation to considerable less than the amount given above.

Work on the plant in general will not be commenced before next spring though a new roof will be put on the old mill building at once. Aside from the roof the building is in a splendid condition and will make a first class power house. The dam, which will be built as early as possible next spring, will be of massive concrete work so that it will withstand all kinds of floods and last for years.

The entire project will be financed by one individual in Bellefonte who will be paid back in yearly rentals or instalments.

BORROWED RIG TO DRIVE HOME.

On Saturday the Misses Corman drove down from their home on Buffalo Run to do some shopping. They tied their horse in front of the house occupied by George A. Bezer on Howard street and when they were ready to start home about five o'clock they were completely dismayed to find both horse and buggy missing. The affair was reported to the police and in a short time it was learned that a certain individual from State College, whose name is known, by the way, had been in Bellefonte and after filling up on liquor had taken the rig to drive home. He was seen going out of town but at the time it was not known he had stolen the rig. Word was telephoned to Lemont to apprehend him if he was seen but he got through there without anybody noticing him. Late in the evening, however, the buggy was found on the road to State College and the horse tied in an alley. The young ladies, being unable to get home that evening, spent the night with friends in Roopburg. Both the horse and buggy were returned on Sunday in good condition. The man who took the rig was arrested on Monday and brought to jail.

DON'T FORGET.—Within the next few weeks we will have to get a lot of subscription returns or on the first of the year a lot of readers will have to be dropped. If your label reads any time in 1907 you had better mail us $2.50. It will take that much, $1.50 for the past year and $1.00 for the year in advance.

The bride also owns a small farm on the Halfmoon pike in Robb township, though she made her home with the family of Mr. and Mrs. Simon Thompson, in Philipsburg. The bridegroom was formerly a resident of Milroy but is now bookkeeper in the Harrisburg office of Swift & Co., and it is in that city the young couple will make their future home.

TWO FAMILIES BURNED OUT.—Just a little before three o'clock yesterday morning the double frame house on Lamb street, occupied by the families of William Miller and A. L. Landis, caught fire and before the flames could be conquered the roof and upper story of the house, and the rear double kitchen were burned. Both families succeeded in saving the most of their household effects, though some of their furniture and clothing were burned. The fire was first discovered burning through the roof between the kitchen and the main part of the house, but just how it started is not known.

The house belonged to Boyd Noll, of Zion, and is a complete wreck. The loss on same will be from $1,500 to $1,800, with partial insurance. Neither the Millers nor Landis had any insurance on their household goods. Lack of water pressure prevented the fire companies getting control of the flames as soon as they would have had there plenty of water.

Mr. Miller yesterday rented one of the houses in what is known as the Rhoads row further east on Lamb street and moved into it at once. Mr. Landis rented the house on east Currier street belonging to Hon. Harry R. Curtin and will move into it as soon as possible.

The Ladies Aid Society of the Methodist church of Pleasant Gap announces that an apron and fancy work bazaar will be held in Noll's hall at that place during the afternoon and evening of Friday and Saturday, December 4th and 5th. Ice cream, cake and candies will be served and on Saturday evening a specially pleasing entertainment will be provided. All are cordially invited to patronize the bazaar.
