

we have had this season, and it did much damage to fences and corn fields but the hail that fell at the same time did very little damage.

There will be preaching in the United Evangelical church on Saturday evening, July 17th, by the general secretary of Foreign Missions, and everyone is invited to attend with the assurance that they will be interested.

Spring Mills

Congress might just as well adjourn and go home. The tariff bill seems to have no end and has become a nuisance.

Roadmaster Andrew Corman is still busy repairing the roads. He knows exactly what is needed and acts accordingly.

Mr. and Mrs. James Crawford and son, of Illinois, formerly of this place, are visiting relatives and friends in the valley.

An automobile running along at an ordinary speed will raise as much dust and dirt as a drove of cattle. Is there no way of getting rid of the intolerable dust nuisance? That will be a job for an inventor.

Some of our neighbors reported having had new potatoes for dinner for a week past. Of course it seemed a trifle previous for this valley, but it was afterwards discovered that they were bought in the store—southern stock.

We will have no celebration here on the Fourth of July, excepting with the boys. Of course they will supply themselves with the usual fire crackers and other explosives—just so that none will have their fingers blown off or be otherwise injured.

William Meyer, after retiring from the meat business and closing the market house for several months, to the regret of our citizens, was urged repeatedly by his friends to resume the business as a meat market here was almost a necessity. Finally after considerable persuasion he consented and had the meat department and slaughter house thoroughly renovated, repaired and painted and has also introduced several modern improvements and conveniences. Everything looks new, inviting and is as clean and bright as the proverbial new pin. The market was opened on Saturday last with the large refrigerator well packed with choice meats and a lively business was done all day and evening.

Mr. Meyer's brother Joseph, a gentleman of large experience in the business, affable and pleasant, will be his assistant and one of them will be always on duty at the market to attend to the wants of customers at any time. The meat wagon will be run regularly on the road every Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday, and will cover considerable territory including Centre Hill.

The Children's day services in the Reformed church on Sunday evening last was a most delightful and pleasing entertainment. Notwithstanding the threatening condition of the weather the building was crowded to its utmost capacity. The church was beautifully decorated with spruce and a profusion of flowers, evidently the work of dainty and skillful hands, while the platform for the speakers was a huge bower of plants and flowers artistically arranged and presenting a charming scene. Dr. Wolf, the venerable livelier and very able and appropriate address. To the children belong all praise, the recitations and dialogues were delivered like orators. The little speakers evidently were thoroughly trained and ably instructed. It must be mentioned, however, but with no disparagement to the rest, that the beautiful song of "You and Me" sung by Rebecca Myer, a little Miss of eight or nine years of age, was remarkable for its fine execution for one so young in years. She sung it so soft and sweetly, with so much feeling and every gesture so graceful, that it was difficult to suppress an applause. The music and general singing were especially excellent. The teachers and managers are to be congratulated on the entire success of the entertainment. There was no halting or delay, but owing to the admirable manner in which everything was arranged all moved along almost with the regularity of a clock. At a reasonable hour the vast throng retired to their respective homes, regretting that the entertainment was at an end.

Motor Cyclist Killed.

While he was returning from Atlantic City on a motor cycle, Fred Seiter, aged twenty years, of Vineland, N. J., collided with an Atlantic City express train near Mays Landing, N. J., and was instantly killed. His body was picked up by the crew of another train and removed to an undertaker's at Mays Landing.

Murdered While Kneeling in Prayer.
While J. E. Moser, aged forty-seven, was kneeling in prayer in church near Chicot, Tex., Roy E. Burnham, aged nineteen, his son-in-law, rose in his pew and fired three shots at Moser, killing him instantly. Burnham's wife, who had recently left him, was beside her father when the shooting took place.

Thrust Head Through Glass to Kias.
In her anxiety to kiss her husband farewell at the Charleroi station, near Pittsburgh, Pa., Mrs. Marie Antonio, of California, neglected to take the car window into account and thrust her head through the glass. She was severely gashed on the neck and is not expected to survive.

Coloring of Stocking Kills Woman.
Mrs. Phoebe Clayton, of Freehold, N. J., a widow, thirty years old, is dead at Long Branch of blood poisoning caused by dye in her stocking. Her leg was broken in an accident, and some of the dye got into a wound. The amputation of her right leg failed to save her.

Farmer Killed Mowing Grass.
While Herbert B. Loose, twenty-four years of age, a farmer on near Hamburg, Pa., was mowing grass with a machine, his horses ran away. His arms and body were so badly lacerated that he bled to death.

Bull Fighter Killed.
Alfredo Sanchez, a bull fighter, was killed at the bull ring in Mexico City, Mex., by a bull that knocked Sanchez down and hooked one horn into his body, penetrating a lung.

Authorities Believe That Mrs. Woodill Threatened to Expose Eastman, and in Fear of Serving a Prison Term He Killed Her—Widow Visits Grave, Where Some Vandal Planted a Tomato Vine.

St. Michaels, Md., June 29.—With the compromise verdict of the coroner's jury that Robert E. Eastman either killed or was accessory to the murder of Edith May Woodill, and the declaration of State's Attorney Taylor that he was through with the case, the strange dual tragedy which has for nearly a week focussed the eyes of the entire country upon this little out of the way hamlet of Maryland's famous eastern shore became a closed incident.

Four of the twelve jurors who listened to the testimony at the reopened inquiry refused to sign the verdict until the words "or accessory to the crime" were added to the draft which, approved by the majority, bluntly accused Eastman of the murder. None of the four dissenting jurymen would say that any other person than Eastman was responsible for the girl's death. They merely wished to protest, they said, against the manner in which the inquiry was conducted, declaring that much available evidence was not adduced.

There was no evidence to show that anyone but Eastman and his victim were in the bungalow. The jury sat for a time in the lonely bungalow itself, within sight of Eastman's unmarked grave not fifty feet away. Mrs. Eastman visited the place and stood dry-eyed for a time beside the new-made mound. Some one with ill-judged humor had planted a tomato vine on the grave. Mrs. Eastman, thinking the vine a native flower, asked what it was. No one had the temerity to tell her. She stood by the grave until at last a convulsive shudder shook her shoulders. Then she was led away.

And the final theory of the authorities is this: That Eastman was in need of money; that he probably had been getting money from Mrs. Woodill for some time; that he undoubtedly knew something of her past life, and that he had been blackmailing her; that he attempted to continue this practice and that the woman rebelled, intimating that she, too, had found out certain things about Eastman, and that if driven to it would expose him.

Eastman's dread of serving a term in the penitentiary is well known. His wife has said that he told her he would rather commit suicide than be confined in prison. The pawning of the jewelry the authorities set down to the desire of Eastman to get away. When cornered the man decided that his race had been run and that he had better make an end to it all. As to why Mrs. Woodill went to the bungalow there was no evidence.

Letter Tells of Alleged Orgy.
A letter found upon Eastman's body, addressed to Miss Vinnie Bradcome in New York, gave Eastman's ill-stated excuse for the crime. It was a rambling account of how he had been out in a launch with a party of men and women, all of whom had been drinking to excess with the exception of himself and Mrs. Woodill; of how one of the women in a fit of jealous frenzy had attacked Mrs. Woodill with a wine bottle and killed her; how the remainder of the party had taken to flight, leaving him to dispose of the body, and how as a means of escape from all of his troubles the writer had decided to end his life. Eastman asked Miss Bradcome to hurry to Maryland to take charge of his body and his property. Miss Bradcome is Eastman's wife. They were married in 1908, and lived together only a week.

As for motives, many have been advanced. That Eastman was infatuated with the girl was well known. She in turn, it would seem, was fascinated by him at times and possibly frightened by his attentions. In a note addressed to "Dear Wobby," declining to see him at the particular time, but not wishing to anger him, she said: "It is only an intermittent delirium, anyhow, and you had better go and wash your dishes."

After this Eastman evidently prevailed upon the girl to visit his farm, which was near that of her foster father's, to see the new bungalow which he had built. The girl met Eastman Saturday, was seen to leave the McDonald wharf in a launch with him, and Wednesday her nude body was found floating on the surface of Rose creek, crudely tied to a rope and weighted with iron bricks. There were evidences of a struggle in the bungalow—a bloody sheet, some blood-stained boards, some half-burned clothing—but the real story of the bungalow can never now be known.

Explosion in Tunnel Kills Two.
Hazleton, Pa., June 29.—Thomas McAloose, of McAdoo, a miner, and John Termain, of Onedia, his laborer, were instantly killed by a premature blast in the Onedia tunnel of the Lehigh Valley Coal company.

Bolt Falls Boy as He Grasps Tempting Piece.
Franklinville, N. J., June 29.—Struck by lightning, little Henry Richman, son of William Richman, was found unconscious in the pantry after the severe electrical storm that passed over this place.

Under cover of the darkness of the storm the lad crawled to the pantry, quietly opened the cake box and seized a cake just as lightning struck the house. After passing through several second-story rooms the bolt ran down the boy's arm into the cake box.

He fell unconscious to the floor and was revived only after an hour's hard work. He still retained his grasp on the cake.

Italian Woman, Seeking Vengeance, Waylays Italian, Who, She Says, Stabbed Her Husband to Death, and Shoots Him Down.

New York, June 29.—While several thousand girls and women were on their way to work in the west side lofty buildings there was a shooting in the thick of the hurrying crowd at Spring and Sullivan streets.

With five bullets, all of which entered her body, Mrs. Luisa La Bartia, a widow, twenty-five years old, of 113 West Houston street, shot Dominic Versaglia, nineteen years old, of 71 Sullivan street.

No one in the crowd was hurt, but the girls and women, screaming, fled into doorways, while Morris Becker sprang upon the woman and disarmed her.

Versaglia was taken to St. Vincent's hospital, where he died.

Black Hander, She Said.
Mrs. La Bartia declared that her victim was a Black Hand, and that he had stabbed her husband to death in the hallway of their home last June. She said she had tried for a year to get Versaglia punished, but all her efforts had been in vain, so she decided to take vengeance upon the Italian with her own hand. She was locked up.

The police records showed that on June 21, 1908, Bruno La Bartia was found lying at Varick and Dowling streets with a long knife in his heart. The man was identified, but no clew was obtained as to his taking off.

Mrs. La Bartia took her stand at Spring and Sullivan streets half an hour before the time for Versaglia to pass there on his way to work, and had her revolver under her apron.

As the man approached he recognized her, Mrs. La Bartia declared, and reached back as though to pull a revolver from his hip pocket. She fired instantly, and the bullet struck him in the abdomen. He turned and his side. A third shot struck him in the back, a fourth in the face, as he fell convulsively to the ground, and the fifth entered his left hand.

The woman was in the act of pulling the trigger the sixth time when Morris Becker disarmed her.

The Woman's Story.
Mrs. La Bartia told the police that her husband was waylaid in a hallway and killed by a Black Hand agent just a year ago Sunday. She said she did not know who killed him until last April, just after her twenty-two-month-old baby died. This was the sixth child she had buried, she said.

Mrs. La Bartia is a handsome young woman, with jet black hair and flashing black eyes.

"Well, I'm glad I shot him," she said through an interpreter. "I'll be sorry if he doesn't die."

Later, when told that Versaglia was dead, her eyes flashed and she drew herself up proudly.

Man Electrocuted in Attempt to Put Out Fire.

New York, June 29.—During a thunder storm John Freeman tried to put out a fire which had been started by lightning in a pile of rubbish around an iron telephone pole in Brooklyn. Freeman threw a pail of water on the fire and fell back dead, killed by the electricity, which traveled back to him on the water from the pole.

Summing up the results of the heat wave which has held New York in its grip for a week or more, Health Commissioner Darlington, in his weekly mortality report, noted an increase of nearly 200 deaths over the figures for the corresponding period last year. An average of five deaths a day from sunstroke for the period of high temperature was reported.

Nine More Heat Deaths in Philadelphia.
Philadelphia, June 29.—Nine more deaths were added to the list of heat victims in this city. This makes the total for the present hot spell more than two score. The humidity was 91, while the temperature increased hour after hour, reaching its maximum of 90 at 4 o'clock in the afternoon.

Perished After Being Left in Bed by Its Mother.

Danville, Va., June 29.—Smothered to death between two pillows was the fate of Louise, the twelve-month-old baby of Herman Cunningham. The mother placed the sleeping child in a bed while she attended to her usual household duties.

The baby was sleeping between two pillows, across which was suspended a mosquito net. Mrs. Cunningham returned to the room an hour later and was horrified to find that one of the pillows, which had been elevated, had toppled over and that the baby was dead.

Big Snake Killed by Train.
Williamsport, Pa., June 29.—The big snake ever seen in this section outside of a cage was cut into three pieces by a train at Utecter. It was of the black species. The pieces were placed end to end and the snake measured 14 feet, 7 inches. One day last week trackmen saw the reptile going through a hay field, its head raised two feet above the grass.

Pin Prick Causes Death.
Pottsville, Pa., June 29.—Picking up a little child playing in the street on his way home from work, James Wentzell, aged thirty-eight years, a Philadelphia & Reading fireman, living in a suburb of this place, pricked a finger of his left hand on a stickpin in her dress. Blood poisoning resulted. Surgeons could not allay the poison's progress and death resulted.

Killed With Little Granddaughter.
Interlaken, N. Y., June 29.—John Freestone White and his little granddaughter were killed, their buggy being struck by a Lehigh Valley train at a grade crossing near here.

Hanged Self Before Helpless Husband
Deprived of the use of his limbs by paralysis, John Bennett was compelled to witness in helpless terror the deliberate suicide of his wife in Chicago. Unable to move a finger, he was able to shout, but none heard his cries.

Mrs. Bennett calmly placed a chair under a gas jet near her invalid husband's bed, and to the excited tude of her neighbors she stepped upon the gas. Unheeding her husband's frantic screams, she affixed the noose and kicked the chair from under her feet. There she hung until life was extinct, her husband at last exhausted by his cries, dumbly following with his eyes the slow turning of her form as the rope twisted and untwisted. This motion had ceased when the first neighbor happened in and discovered the tragedy.

Seventeen Dead in Mine Blast.
As the result of an explosion of gas in mine No. 4 of the Lackawanna Coal and Coke company at Wehrn, Pa., near Pittsburg, seventeen miners were killed and sixteen were injured. With the exception of one those killed were foreigners. With few exceptions those injured were Americans. It was stated all would probably recover.

Superintendent A. M. Johnson stated that while the mine has always been regarded as non-gaseous the explosion was due to the ignition of a pocket of gas by the open lamp of a miner.

The mine has only been operating two days each week, Tuesday and Friday. Those in the mine had entered the shaft for their daily allowance of coal for family use.

Mrs. Gould Gets Her Decree.
After a trial which lasted nearly three weeks in New York, Mrs. Katherine Clemmons Gould has obtained a legal separation from her husband, Howard Gould, third son of the late Jay Gould, by a decision of Justice Dowling in the supreme court. With the exception of alimony, her victory was complete, but in this phase of the case the court decided that $36,000 a year was sufficient, although in her suit Mrs. Gould asked for $250,000. She had been receiving $25,000 a year from Mr. Gould, so that the amount fixed by the court is but a slight increase compared with the amount sued for.

Black Hand Signal Stops Murder Trial
The trial of Joseph Bertucci, an alleged Black Hand murderer, came to a sudden halt in Chicago, when an Italian entered the room, waved a handkerchief at Bruno Nardi, star witness for the state, who had taken the stand to tell of the murder.

After waving the handkerchief the signaling Italian fled, and detectives could not find him. Nardi refused to answer any more questions, saying he would be killed if he testified against Bertucci. The same fear was expressed by Nardi's wife, also a material witness, and the prosecutor was forced to adjourn the trial.

Secret of the Record's Success.

The Philadelphia Record, now entering upon the fortieth years of its acquaintance with the world, seems to have won its great prestige by a stubborn refusal to be dragged away from the simplest principles of journalism. Strange as it may seem in these days of varied emanations from the printing press, the Record has never been able to disabuse itself of the notion that the main duty of a newspaper is to print the news.

From its first page, to the last line of its last page, the Record is always chock full of news. Not content to carry the service of the Associated Press, which it prints more fully than any other Philadelphia paper, the Record is recognized by correspondents all over Pennsylvania, as the best buyer of special news dispatches in the State of Pennsylvania. And its country-side news, as well as its dispatches from afar, has the virtue of being reliable.

A Sustaining Diet.

These are the enervating days, when, as somebody has said, men drop by the sunstroke as if the Day of Fire had dawned. They are fraught with danger to people whose systems are poorly sustained; and this leads us to say in the interest of the less robust of our readers, that the effect of Hood's Sarsaparilla is such as to suggest the propriety of calling this medicine something besides a blood purifier and tonic, say, a sustaining diet. It makes it much easier to bear the heat, refreshing sleep, and will without any doubt avert much sickness at this time of year.

Things Are Different Now.
From the Johnstown Democrat.

Some of those southern senators who voted with Aldrich in the hope of getting free cotton ties know now where they got off. They helped Aldrich get what he wanted all right. But when it came to Aldrich helping them to get what they wanted the switch slipped.
