--- When it comes to farming Tom Beaver is just as much of a hustler as he is at any other kind of work he undertakes. He is a member of Col. H. S. Taylor's staff, of the Fifth regiment, and knowing that he would have to go to camp this week, he finished making hay and cut and hauled in all his grain last week, and on Monday he had his entire crop threshed and by Tuesday poon it had been delivered at the mill of Gamble, Gheen & Co. This enabled him to leave on Tuesday evening with the advance detail for Somerset, where the Second Brigade will go into camp today. Col. Taylor, company B, the hospital corps and Fifth regiment drum corps left for camp on the 4.44 train last evening.

-About ten o'clock on Saturday night two quite young men engaged in a lively scuffle on the corner of Allegheny and Howard streets, with the result that one of them had one tooth knocked out and was otherwise pretty badly used up. The victor in the scrap had two companions with him and, alleging that the three of them had jumped on him at once the young man who got the worst of the encounter had them all arrested for assault. They were given a hearing before justice of the peace John M. Keichline on Monday evening and the evidence showing that inasmuch as they had knocked a tooth out of the plaintiff's mouth they ought to chip together and buy him another. This they readily agreed to do.

-The trout fishing season is almost at an end, there being just one more week of sidered a very successful one for the fishermen in this locality. True it is, that quite the Schenck cemetery on Tuesday. a number of trout were caught by those who had the patience and persistence to put in day after day along the streams but there were no record catches at any time during the season. Whether it is because the trout are becoming scarcer or more wily is hard to tell. It is a fact that the first half of the season was spoiled by the hard rains and high water but these reasons could not be considered during the past month or so. The only good fishing of the season was on Fishing creek and as scores of fishermen were there day after day it was only the lucky few who made good catches. Spring creek and Logan's branch yielded fewer trout this season than they have for years, notwithstanding the fact that they have been stocked with thousands of fry in the last decade. BEEZER.-Not in years has the death of a child in Bellefonte caused such universal and profound sorrow as did the death of Eleanor Beezer, the bright and interesting little girl of Mr. and Mrs. George A. Just three and one-half years old she was not only the idol of her parents, but because of her rare intelligence for one of her years and her sweet, sunshiny nature she was adored by all who knew her. In fact she always appeared more ethereal than mortal and it was this delicacy of constitu tion that rendered her unable to withstand a four day's siege of cholera morbus, her - Monday will be the last day for the system not having the necessary reserve strength to withstand the insidious disease. And the fact that they will be entertained without any expense to them while in Bellefonte is at least a minor reason why there should be a good turnout.

The committee who are arranging for the convention have secured state highway commissioner Joseph W. Hunter, of Harrisburg, to come here that day and make the principal address. In addition Judge Orvis will make a short talk, while there will probably be brief speeches by several others.
