President Fallieres asked M. Briand to form a new ministry, and the latter accepted.

A strong Republican majority in the chamber voted confidence in the government, but at a meeting of the ministers dissensions developed and M. Briand announced that new and serious problems had grown eat of the fabor trouble that must be met by a united ministry. Accordingly he suggested the retirement of himself and associates. It is expected that Briand will remodel the retiring ministry in harmony with his views on a parliamentary program to meet crises resulting from strikes.

Millerand especially was dissatisfied insisting that the principle of arbitration should be recognized more broadly by the government.
