

Taft Promises

Tariff Revision.

Reciprocity Cuts Secondary Figure, as Democrats Have Outlined a Pretentious Political Program.

With vociferous demonstrations of exultation on the part of the militant Democrats of the house of representatives, over which they have gained control after sixteen years of defeat, and calm, dignified and routine proceedings on the part of the senate, which barely remains Republican, the Sixty-second congress met for the first time, convened in extraordinary session by President Taft to consider his reciprocity pact with Canada.

Champ Clark, who received an ovation, was elected speaker of the house, polling 217 votes to 131 for James R. Mann, of Illinois; 15 for Henry A. Cooper, of Wisconsin, and one for George W. Norris, of Nebraska, all Republicans.

The votes for Cooper were cast by insurgent Republicans and indicate that they intend to maintain a separate working organization.

The day marked the opening of the trial of the Democratic party to demonstrate its willingness to receive "the wider confidence" of the voters of the country. Asking his colleagues to keep that fact uppermost in their minds during the present session of congress, Clark, in his speech accepting the speakership of the house, outlined the measures through which the Democratic party hopes to continue to enjoy the faith of the people.

Intelligent revision of the tariff, election of United States senators by popular vote, changes in the house rules to permit proper consideration of public measures, economy in handling the purse strings of the country, the publication of campaign contributions, and the early admission of New Mexico and Arizona to statehood, were some of the things which Speaker Clark emphasized in the Democratic program as measures which would be undertaken by the majority party in the house.

The ceremonies of the house held an unusual interest. New hands were at the wheel, while the helmsmen of former days were about to engage in the pastime of rocking the boat. The transition from a month ago was complete.

New faces were everywhere to be seen. Democrats not only filled the side of the chamber allotted to them, but poured over into the erstwhile sacred precincts of the Republicans.

Everybody appeared to be in the best of humor. The Democrats wore smiles that would not come off, while the Republican minority also smiled—a grim kind which meant that they were going to try to even up for the troubles the Democrats gave in days of Republican supremacy.

The program, always an interesting spectacle, was followed with uncommon keenness. It included the calling of the house to order by Major McDowell, veteran Republican clerk, who is soon to be replaced; calling of the roll, election of the speaker, his speech of acceptance, swearing in of the members by state delegations and drawing for seats.

There are always a few privileged members who are allowed to choose their seats in advance of the drawing. They include usually the oldest member of the house, in point of service, General Bingham, of Pennsylvania, the minority leader, and one or two others as the house leaders may designate.

Notwithstanding that the opening of the extra session in the senate was quite secondary in interest to that of the house, there was a large attendance in the galleries.

Of the senators sworn, seventeen were men who never before had occupied seats in the senate. Twelve were Democrats and five Republicans, the new Democrats being Messrs. Bryan, Florida; Chilton, West Virginia; Hitchcock, Nebraska; Johnson, Maine; Kern, Indiana; Lea, Tennessee; Martine, New Jersey; Myers, Montana; O'Gorman, New York; Pomerene, Ohio; Reed, Missouri, and Williams, Mississippi.

New Republicans were Messrs. Lipple, Rhode Island; McLean, Connecticut; Poindexter, Washington; Townsend, Michigan, and Works, California. The senators were sworn in by squads of four, colleagues of new men escorting them to the vice president's desk.

As soon as the last of them had left the vice president's desk the roll was called. Eighty-six senators, within five of the entire membership, were in attendance.

The political complexion of the Sixty-second congress follows: Senate—Republicans, 50; Democrats, 41; vacancy, 1. House—Democrats, 228; Republicans, 160; Socialist, 1; vacancies, 2.

PINE GROVE MENTION.

Winter is still hanging in the lap of spring. D. L. Fitzgerald, of Manor Hill, was seen on our streets on Friday.

Mrs. M. L. Houser was a Tyrone visitor in the early part of the week.

Mrs. M. E. Heberling has been very ill the past few days but is better now.

Capt. J. M. Kepler is rather indisposed of late but able to be in his easy chair.
