King Solomon's Ring and Crown Loot. The operations of the Anglo-American syndicate of excavators at Jerusalem threaten an interesting diplomatic affair.

According to Constantinople dispatches, the Turkish government takes a serious view of the incident and has sent high officials to Jerusalem to investigate charges that the foreigners carried away sacred relics hidden in the Mosque of Omar from the Romans in A. D. 70, when the city was sacked by Titus.

Meantime the whereabouts of the archaeological and the nature of their spoils is a mystery. The expedition with the prizes embarked at Jaffa, fifty-four miles northwest of Jerusalem, on April 19, boarding Captain Parker's yacht, which had been awaiting them, and setting sail before the people of Jerusalem learned what they had done. It is probable the yacht is now headed for England.

There is no doubt that the excavators hoped to discover the Ark of the Covenant and the Seven-Branches Candlestick, but a dispatch says it is believed the explorers found Solomon's crown, his sword and his ring, and an ancient manuscript of the Bible.

The Duchess of Marlborough and members of the Armour family of Chicago are reputed to be among the backers of the expedition.

Forest Fires Sweep Village. Forest fires are raging with unparalleled fury in the vicinity of Williamsport, Pa. Hundreds of fire fighters are combating the flames, and the outcome is doubtful unless rain falls soon.

Sonestown was swept by flame and sparks from forest fires started the conflagration. The village to the north of this city is the center of State Senator Sones' lumber operations and his loss will be heavy.

In the absence of the male population of Sonestown, who were fighting forest fires nearby, the women fought the flames that were devouring their homes. When the men arrived the fire had destroyed several residences and a dozen barns. Help was summoned from Muncy and Nordmont, and a portion of the village was saved.

Dies in Pit of Hot Glass. George Dehaunt, a blower at the Fairmont Window Glass plant in Fairmont, W. Va., met a fearful death when he fell into a pit of molten glass.

He was blowing a piece of glass, when suddenly it broke and he lost his balance, falling into the pit. In his fall he came in contact with a lot of broken glass that split his skull, tore out an eye, cut off an ear and almost severed one arm.

Taft Promotes Accused Captain. President Taft sent to the senate the nomination of Captain Austin M. Knight to be a rear admiral.

Over the protest of Secretary of the Navy Meyer Captain Knight was acquitted by court martial of responsibility for the sinking of the monitor Puritan in Hampton Roads during the tests of high explosives.

Bill to Pension Widows of Presidents. A bill, the object of which is to give pensions of $5000 each to Frances F. Cleveland and Mary Lord Harrison, widows of former presidents, was introduced in the senate by Senator Root, of New York. A similar measure received favorable action in committee at the last congress, but failed of passage.

Found Drowned After 17 Days. The body of Eugene Gould, of East Stillwater, was found in Swartswood lake, near Newton, N. J., after a hunt of seventeen days. It was believed that he had been drowned with a companion, but no trace of the bodies of either was discovered until Squire Unangst discovered Gould's body.

Refuse Bail For McNamara. The application of John J. McNamara for the fixing of bail on the charge of dynamiting was disallowed by Superior Judge Bordwell in Los Angeles, without prejudice and with leave to renew it at any time.

Mexican Rebels Capture Juarez.

General Navarro Surrenders After Fierce Fighting.

Deserted by his captains and afraid that his men would go over to the insurgents if they were given a chance to mingle with them: his two principal commanders killed or wounded, General Juan J. Navarro surrendered the city of Juarez to the rebel army of Francisco I. Madero. With 480 of his men he is held by the rebels.

Navarro remained with his men to the last, and after many of his officers had quit and the command had been shot to pieces the old general retreated into the barracks on the southwestern edge of the city, where the rebel advance was fought off as long as possible.

The rebels took the city in the morning, but it was afternoon when Navarro surrendered with his command, and this was only done after five shells from a heavy cannon had struck the adobe building in which they had taken refuge.

Colonel M. A. Tamborel was killed during the Tuesday fight. He was the commandant of the federal garrison and second in command of the city.

Colonel Manuel Puebla, second in command, was wounded.

Federal Troops Desert. Then the captains and minor officers began to desert. The soldiers followed the example, and Navarro was forced to retire with his men in a body to keep them all from leaving him. From place to place the federals moved, retiring slowly as the rebel fire drove them back.

Tuesday night and Wednesday morning the federals occupied the old church in the center of the city, the municipal building, the jail and surrounding buildings. These the insurgents forced them out of and they fell back for a last stand in the barracks as the insurgents ran up their flags on the different buildings and their comrades began to pour in from all sides of the town.

Navarro is to be traded for Eduardo Hayes, one of the insurance board of strategy, now a prisoner in the state penitentiary at Chihuahua. Francisco I. Madero when he reached Juarez after the surrender said so.

Colonel Tamborel was killed in his own home. His body is lying on a bed in a room in his home shot full of holes. Several newspaper correspondents who knew and admired the little commander, who taunted the rebels with being afraid to attack, identified the body.

Lieutenant Colonel Manuel Puebla, second in command, was wounded in the cheek and eye.

All Saloons Closed. As soon as the insurgents took the town the officers made every possible effort to close the saloons and prevent the men drinking. A great deal of liquor was destroyed at once and guards were placed over all the saloons. However, the men got hold of much of it.

Lieutenant Colonel Garibaldi led the charge of the men through the town after Colonel Blanco's command had worked its way up behind the jail, had gained it and after having used it as a fortification had driven the federals out of the old church and the city buildings. Garibaldi later ordered the liquor destroyed. Later General Pascual Orozco gave orders to have all saloons kept closed. So far there is almost perfect order and a minimum of drunkenness. Guards watch the doors of all saloons and the anti-liquor law is in complete force. Juarez is designed to be the first prohibition town in Mexico.

Abram Gonzales, provisional governor of Chihuahua, declares that Juarez saloons will be closed continuously until the insurgents leave the city. Every precaution is being taken to prevent disorder. Many of the insurgents entered saloons at the beginning of the fight and secured bottles of liquor, but in their hilarity they distributed it among their friends, so that altogether no one man got very much to drink.

The lid is down tight and will be held so, declare the authorities. The killed and wounded are found in all sorts of out of the way places in Juarez. Blood spots appear everywhere on the streets and on the sidewalks, and dead and dying men and men wounded seriously and slightly are found at every turn.

It is believed from careful estimates of Americans who have gone through the town very thoroughly that the total dead will be 50 or 75 and the total wounded will not be over 300. The list will likely run that high, however.

The hardest fighting was done on Tuesday. During Tuesday night Blanco's insurgents came into Juarez fresh from their camps and they opened the fighting by attacking the jail and liberating about eighty-five prisoners. From the jail they directed their fire against the federals in surrounding buildings and soon had them retreating to the barracks in the city.

Danced Herself to Death. Mrs. Bertha Gordon danced all the evening at a house party given by Lewis Rose, at Furman Lane, Patchogue, L. I.

Then she complained of exhaustion and sat down to rest. Her friends noticed that she looked white and was breathing hard. Suddenly she fell to the floor, apparently in a faint.

Friends tried in vain to revive her and finally sent for Drs. W. Bennett and Charles Willis. They found the woman dead. They said she had succumbed to heart failure, the result of physical exhaustion; that she had literally danced herself to death.

Representatives of 160,000,000 People Present Gold Medal to Great Philanthropist For His Efforts For Peace.

Andrew Carnegie received in Washington what he called his greatest mark of honor, when twenty-one American republics bestowed on him a gold medal, bearing on one side the words "Benefactor of Humanity" and on the other "The American Republics to Andrew Carnegie."

According to John Barrett, director general of the Pan American Union, it was the first time in history that such a tribute to an individual. Senor De Zamacoa, the Mexican ambassador, made the speech of presentation; Secretary of State Knox presided, and President Taft spoke in eulogy of the gifts which Mr. Carnegie has made for the cause of peace on this hemisphere and throughout the world.

Members of the diplomatic corps and men high in official life filled the hall of the Pan American Union building where the ceremonies were held, and for the erection of which Mr. Carnegie gave almost a million dollars.

In accepting the medal Mr. Carnegie told of his feelings on being informed of the honor conferred upon him by the Pan American conference at Buenos Ayres.

"I was sitting at my desk in the Highlands of Scotland last autumn," he said, "when a telegram was handed to me, which I opened and read without seeming quite to grasp the meaning of the words. I was stunned: Was I dreaming? 'Could such things be and overcome us like a summer's cloud without our special warning?'"

"My hands went to my forehead and I bent my head to my desk. Slowly the truth developed and established itself and I began to realize what it all meant. Truly, my friends, I never before felt so completely overwhelmed and crushed as it dawned upon me that the honor which the conference had voted to confer was without parallel; 160,000,000 people, forty-two sovereign nations, bestowing upon poor me an honor the like of which had never before been bestowed upon a human being."

Referring to President Taft's address a year ago when he voiced a sentiment for a reign of peace among the Pan American republics, Mr. Carnegie said:

"Thus the president's first invitation to establish a reign of peace was properly made to you. Much has taken place since then. He recently held out the olive branch of peace, and it instantly was accepted by the other branch of our English-speaking race with such enthusiasm, not by one but by all parties, that today we have every reason to believe that war as a means of settling disputes between the two branches of our race will soon become a crime of the past."

In offering thanks to the nations, through their diplomats present for the honor bestowed upon him, Mr. Carnegie asked them to accompany the expression with the ardent wish on his part that prompt action should be taken by the twenty-one republics to establish a reign of peace by adopting President Taft's policy of submitting all disputes to arbitration.

Wealthy Man's Son Has Leprosy. During a period of four years a sufferer from leprosy, yet in daily attendance at a public school during all of that time, Harry Sheridan, the fifteen-year-old Pawtucket, R. I., schoolboy, whose examination by the Massachusetts General hospital reveals the true nature of his dread disease, faces the fate of his kind.

Virtually a prisoner in the home of his wealthy parents, about which policemen detailed from the Pawtucket force stand guard, the fact of his having been allowed to return to that city at all has aroused the ire of Dr. Byron Uris Richards, Pawtucket's city physician, who is at a loss what to do.

As a matter of fact the boy was taken home by his father, Edward P. Sheridan, superintendent of the Lumb knitting mills and a man of considerable prominence in that city.

Either Penitence, the island of the living dead in Buzzards' bay, or which Massachusetts maintains a camp for leper exiles, or Manila, where the government camp is, will be the boy's future home. At present he is with his parents and his brothers, unwitting of that utter desolation from his kind which fate holds in store for him.

Public to Get Panama Bonds. It was indicated that Secretary of the Treasury MacVeagh will call for popular bids on an issue of $50,000,000 of Panama bonds within the next few days.

The securities will be dated June 1, and if the treasury is unable to deliver them by that time they will carry accrued interest. The interest rate fixed by law will be 3 per cent. As they will not be available to national banks for the basis of circulation, the treasury expects that the entire offer will be subscribed by investors.

Secretary MacVeagh, as far as is known, has not changed his intention of making the loan a popular one and giving preference to the smaller subscriptions. Much interest attaches to the price the treasury will accept. The new bonds could sell as high as 108 and return to the holder the highest net proceeds of any government bond now outstanding.

Lightning Scares Woman to Death. Mrs. Wilmot Monticello, of Kenosha Lake, near Monticello, N. Y., was scared to death by a sudden flash of lightning. About two years ago her home was struck by lightning and destroyed, and since then she had been extremely nervous during any electrical storm. She was talking with a neighbor, when there was a flash and she sank back in a chair, dead.

York Girls Want Western Husbands.

From information received in York, Pa., from the matrimonial editor of an Oklahoma paper, four pretty young girls of that city, ranging in age from eighteen to twenty-two years, have asked that the editor provide them with husbands in the far west. The young girls prefer wealthy farmers.

Their names are Mary Horner, Martha Walker, Mamie Riddick and Rebecca Doyle. Miss Horner is nineteen and says she is considered pretty. Miss Walker is eighteen and says she is affectionate and pretty. Mamie Riddick says she is nineteen, has brown hair, is pretty and weighs 122 pounds. She says "I am considered pretty."

Keep the Balance Up. It has been truthfully said that any disturbance of the even balance of health causes serious trouble. Nobody can be too careful to keep this balance up.

When people begin to lose appetite, or to get tired easily, the least imprudence brings on sickness, weakness, or debility. The system needs a tonic, craves it, and should not be denied it; and the best tonic of which we have any knowledge is Hood's Sarsaparilla.

What this medicine has done in keeping healthy people healthy, gives it the same distinction as a preventive that it enjoys as a cure. Its early use has illustrated the wisdom of the old saying that a stitch in time saves nine. Take Hood's for appetite, strength, and endurance.
