The Chin and the Throat. Remember always to arch the throat, almost as a horse does. If a woman talking to some one turns her shoulders slightly from him and then glances back the line of the throat is always good. For myself I have at all times thought the delicate line from the tip of a woman's ear to the tip of her shoulder one of the most exquisite of the feminine body. Many artists, I believe, would agree with me. So remember what I say, dear ladies-do not spoil or hide that lovely contour with high linen collars or boning. Wear low collars, or if these are not becoming to you at least dress your throats comfortably. Always carry the chin high. If while you are still quite young you can remember to thrust the chin upward and forward-not to an absurd degree, of course-you will not with advancing years have to fear those soft rolls of flesh above the collar that add so much to a woman's apparent age .- Anna Pavlova in Harper's Bazar.

Power of Words.

"For me," writes Lafcadio Hearn in the "Japanese Letters of Lafcadio Hearn," "words have color, form, character. They have faces, ports, manners, gesticulations; they have moods. humors, eccentricities; they have tints, tones, personalities."

A good instance of this power appears in a description of Patti's singing: "There was a great dim pressure, a stifling heat, a whispering of silks, a weight of toilet perfumes. Then came an awful hush-all the silks stopped whispering. And there suddenly sweetened out through that dead, hot air a clear, cool, tense thread gust of melody unlike any sound I ever heard before save-in tropical nights-from the throat of a mocking bird. It was 'Auld Lang Syne' only, but with never a tremolo or artifice. a marvelous, audacious simplicity of utterance."

Testing the "Bud."

An old bachelor had somehow strayed into a young people's party, and, realizing that he could not hope among so many handsome youths to make the heart of a single maiden throb, he said to the nearest girl, whose conversation had shown somewhat more good sense than he had expected:

"Look about the ballroom. Notice that the girls who have removed their gloves have well shaped arms. Andahem!-some have not removed them"-"But neither generalization fits me," answered the girl, "for, you see, I have one arm bare and one gloved. What would you say about me?"

"Walk out and let me look at them," said the old bachelor unfeelingly. The girl took a few steps out, paused and returned. "Take the other glove off," said the old bachelor .- New York Times.

Kavanaugh was born without arms or legs-he was, in fact, a mere trunk of a man. And yet he performed a feat from which most men with their full complement of members might well have shrunk.

Strapped on to his saddle, he was one of the most skillful and daring riders to hounds in all Ireland. On one occasion, it is said, "the saddle turned under him, and the horse trotted back to the stable yard with his master hanging under him, his bair sweeping the ground, bleeding profusely. He merely cursed the groom with emphatic volubility, had himself more safely readjusted and rode out once more."

Hood's Sarsaparilla.

The Best Spring Medicine

It is as easy to prove that Hood's Sarsaparilla is the best spring medicine as it is to say it. Spring ailments are blood ailments—that is, they arise from an impure, impoverished, de-vitalized conditon of the blood; and Hood's Sarsaparilla purifies, enriches and revitalizes the blood as no other medicine does. It is the most effective of all blood medicines.! There is a Solid Foundation for this claim, in the more than 40,000 testimonials of radical and permanent cures by this medicine, received in two years, this record being unparalleled in medical history.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Cures all spring humors, all eruptions, clears the complexion, creates an appetite, aids the digestion, relieves that tired feeling, gives vigor and vim. Begin taking Hood's Sarsaparilla today. Get it in the usual liquid form or in chocolated tablets known as Sarsatabs. 100 Doses One Dollar.

A Policeman's Advice to Tolstoy. Count Tolstoy once saw in Moscow a policeman dragging in a most rude manner a drunken moujik to the station. The count stopped the policeman and said to him:

"Canst thou read?" "Yes." was the reply.

"And hast thou read the gospel?" "Yes, sir."

"Then thou must know that we must not offend our neighbor.'

The policeman looked at the unpretentious figure of his interrogator and asked him in his turn:

"Canst thou read?" "Yes." replied the count.

"And hast thou read the instructions for policemen?"

"No."

"Well, go and read them first and then come back and talk with me."-From the Anglo-Russian.

In "The Glory of the Shia World," translated from a Persian manuscript is a story that will interest Christian Scientists:

"Nadir, builder of the 'golden porch of Nadir,' in the sacred city of Meshed, was a world conqueror and a lord of perception, albeit cruel. Of his power of perception they relate that one day when he entered the sacred shrine he saw a blind man invoking the aid of the imam, and upon inquiry he learned that he had been there for several months. The great monarch asked him why his faith was so weak that his sight had not been restored and swore that if on his return he found him still blind he would cut off his head. The wretched man prayed so fervently and fixed his mind so intently on the imam that within a few minutes his sight was restored."

"Have you any special terms for automobilists?" asked the man in bearskin and goggles.

"Waal, yes," responded the old tollgate keeper, whose gate had been broken down by speeding machines. "Sometimes I call them deadbeats, an' sometimes I call them blamed rascals. Anything else you want to know, mister?"-Chicago News.

Parsimony and Economy. "Papa," said a child, "what is the difference between parsimony and economy?"

"I will explain the difference by an example," the father replied. "If I cut down my own expenses that is economy, but if I cut down your mother's then it is parsimony."

His Suggestion. The great road builder had his mind on his work that morning, as the following dialogue between him and his wife will show: "How do I look, dear?"

"Fairly well, but I should say that your face needed resurfacing."-New York Press.
