

Equitable Life Building Burns.

Famous Old House of Great Insurance Company Destroyed by Flames and Invaluable Records Are Lost.

The nine-story office building of the Equitable Life Assurance society, in the block between Broadway and Nassau street and Cedar and Pine streets, in New York—the first great office building erected in New York—was ruined by fire. It was the most destructive office building fire in the city's history.

Six men lost their lives in the falling wreckage. One of these was Battalion Chief William Walsh, of the fire department, who died, carried down by a collapsing floor, as he was leading his men upward toward the Lawyers' club rooms.

William Giblin, president of the Mercantile Safe Deposit company, was saved in the nick of time—dragged through a window whose bars had been sawed through by firemen.

President Day, of the assurance society, says the securities, worth $1,000,000,000 or more, stored in the vaults of the Equitable and the Mercantile Safe Deposit company, are unharmed and that the 90,000 policies on which the Equitable had loaned $70,000,000 had been found intact in the steel cases on the second floor. One small vault of the Equitable was opened and over $50,000,000 in stocks and bonds removed.

E. M. Willings, secretary of the Mercantile, and W. C. Follon, vice president of the vault company, climbed over ice hummocks and piles of wreckage and satisfied themselves that the fire had done little damage. In these vaults are stored the securities of the Harriman and Gould estates, of Kuhn, Loeb & Co., of Kuntz Brothers, August Belmont & Co., William A. Read & Co. and others.

Accompanied by Deputy Chief Bluns, Vice Presidents Strong and Thornton, of the Bankers' Trust company, visited the great strong boxes of the Equitable society on the second floor. They assured themselves that the vaults were unharmed and that there was no reason to suppose that the $274,000,000 worth of Equitable securities there were harmed. E. E. Rittenhouse, representing President Day, reported to the meeting of the executive committee of the board of directors that the securities could be removed in three days. It was thought best to wait that long to make sure that the temperature of the interior of the vaults had cooled down.

Assistant Secretary S. S. McCurdy, of the Equitable, who had been inspecting the fire swept offices on the second and third floors, reported cheerful news to the new quarters of the society in the City Investing building. McCurdy, after a good deal of climbing about, got to the offices of the secretary on the second floor. He discovered at once that the minutes of directors' meetings covering all the years since the organization of the society were safe, together with other records that were lost it was at first feared.

A law library of 35,000 volumes, law library, containing 35,000 volumes, worth perhaps $500,000, and established many years ago by Henry Baldwin Hyde as an inducement to lawyers to take quarters in the building, is displaced in ashes. Possibly 100,000 life insurance policies upon which the Equitable had loaned money were burned. They were in steel boxes which may not have resisted the heat. If they are gone it will take legislation to reproduce them. All in all, the fire so tangled the affairs of corporations with vast interests that it may take years to straighten them out.

The actual money loss was comparatively slight. Even the Equitable people do not mourn the building. They were going to tear it down soon any way and figured its actual value to the stock and policy holders as precisely nothing. It was outworn and antiquated, and the cost of demolishing it would have been far more, the society's officials said, than the loss in furnishings and equipment. Figuring that way, the society places its loss at only $250,000, but the value of the law library is not included in the estimate. Insurance experts guessed that the loss to tenants would amount to perhaps $100,000. So, all told, the loss was perhaps $1,600,000.

The fire started in the rear of the Cafe Savarin, the celebrated bar and restaurant, so long run by the Equitable itself, and only severed from it after the insurance investigation. An investigation developed that it originated probably in a wooden stairway near the elevator shaft in the back of the cafe. It is said a gasoline stove exploded.

President Cancels Engagements as Precautionary Measure. President Taft is suffering from a cold and White House officials canceled all of his immediate engagements, although no alarm was felt over the president's condition.

It was said the engagements were recalled so that he might fight the cold without exposing himself by going over to the executive offices and that he intended to dispose of a large amount of correspondence during the day.

Colonel Guffey Keeps His Seat.

The lie was passed at the meeting of the Democratic national committee in Washington, and William Jennings Bryan made a threat to "appeal to the people" if overridden by the committee in his fight to unseat Colonel James M. Guffey, the national committeeman from Pennsylvania.

This threat, coming immediately after the Bryan-LaPollette conference on Sunday, renewed gossip as to the possibility of a third party.

Despite Bryan's protest and threat the national committee voted in favor of Guffey, 30 to 18. Lee Mountcastle was retained as a member of the committee from Tennessee, only one vote being cast in favor of Mr. Verrees, the contestant.

Colonel Guffey hurled the charge of "liar" at Congressman A. Mitchell Palmer, who is contesting his seat. The latter replied that he had spoken the truth and that only Guffey's age prevented him from making a personal matter of the affair.

Mr. Palmer had freely charged in his speech to the committee that Colonel Guffey had affiliated with Senator Penrose, the Republican leader of Pennsylvania, and that he had been disloyal to his party.

The committee decided to hold the convention in Baltimore on June 25.

Says Bride Tried to Poison Family. That she poisoned pies with the object of wiping out her husband and his whole family is the charge that has been lodged against Mrs. John Kulp of Egypt, near Allentown, Pa., by her husband.

Mrs. Kulp was formerly Miss Hannah Sneyd, of West Catawauqua, and she and her husband, after their marriage three months ago, went to live with his parents in Egypt. His sister, Ida, is also a member of the family.

A few days ago young Mrs. Kulp baked two grape pies. When they were served it was noticed by the other members of the family, according to their statements, that the pies were liberally besprinkled with powdered sugar.

The young husband cut out a big wedge of pie, but, he says, the taste was not at all like that mother used to make, but was gritty and bitter. The attempt to eat the grapes.

Kulp had an analysis made, and then went before Squire Kichline, accusing his wife of attempting to kill them all by mixing ground glass and strychnine with the powdered sugar.

The wife, who is thirty-five years old, was committed to prison by the squire, but her brother and sister came to her rescue and furnished $100 bail for her appearance at a hearing on Saturday afternoon.

The motive, according to the family's statement, is dissension, the assertion being made that they did not get along well and that quarrels were frequent because Kulp's parents and sister objected to the bride.

Death Penalty for Richeson.

After Answering Formal Questions of the Judge Condemned Man Made No Further Statement.

Rev. Clarence V. T. Richeson, formerly pastor of a Baptist church at Cambridge, Mass., who on last Saturday confessed to the murder of Miss Avis Linnell, his former fiancée, pleaded guilty to murder in the first degree in Boston and was sentenced to die in the electric chair during the week beginning May 19 next.

The case will be taken before the governor in an effort to have this sentence commuted to one of imprisonment for life.

Richeson made no statement. He was in court for only about six minutes. His face was pale, but he was perfectly composed. He answered formal questions propounded by Judge Sanderson in the simplest possible way, and when asked if he had anything to say, replied:

"I have nothing further to say than my typewritten confession."

So weak was Richeson that he had to be carried in a chair from the Charles street jail to the prisoners' van to be taken to the Suffolk county court house.

Considerable preparation for Richeson's comfort had been made. The prisoner's overcoat was sent over to the jail from the office of William A. Morse, of Richeson's counsel. The coat was brought by a messenger. Richeson was dressed in a dark blue suit, the black overcoat which the messenger boy brought and a black derby hat.

Accompanying the jail officers and Richeson down the jail steps were Dr. Sargent and Dr. Lotroppe. They had been with the prisoner for more than an hour. Richeson was very pale. He seemed very weak, but managed to take his hat and screen his face from view when the photographers pointed their cameras at him. Dr. Lotroppe, when asked how Richeson was, replied:

"Although Richeson is well, still we thought it would be well to take the precaution of carrying him in a chair from the cell to the van in order to save his strength for his arraignment."

Richeson heard the death sentence with little apparent emotion. When brought into court he walked with slight assistance from the officers, who escorted him. He was not required to enter the prisoner's cage and remained standing.

District Attorney Pelletier, read the pastor's written confession and added that the state had sufficient evidence to have convinced a jury that Richeson was guilty of murder in the first degree. He then said that it became his solemn duty to move for sentence.

Judge Sanderson read the statutes bearing on the case and asked the prisoner if he realized the gravity of his action in pleading guilty, if he consulted counsel, and if he had acted voluntarily. To each of these questions Richeson said "Yes, sir."

The court gave the prisoner every opportunity to realize what his action meant to make any statement, but the prisoner expressed no desire to make any further explanation of his decision. The court then pronounced sentence.

Richeson immediately was taken back to the city jail.
