John Casper's new house burned to the ground last week. The fire started in the attic and was well under way when discovered. By the assistance of neighbors most of the furniture was saved. Mrs. Casper had her savings of many years hid in an upstairs cupboard unknown to nyone. Her husband thought it was in one of the desks draws so $260 in cash went up in smoke. The building was insured for $1900.00.

BOOKS, MAGAZINES, ETC.

The April St. Nicholas has two fine stories of adventure—very different, but with a brave lad the hero of each. One is Ford Walsh's "The Return of Okakok." the story of an exiled Eskimo lad's hard journey home. The other is Frank B. Elser's "Wireless Peter," in which a plucky lad, fascinated by the magic of wireless telegraphy, wins out in spite of many discouragements.

One of the jolliest bits of nonsense which has appeared in St. Nicholas for many a day are four illustrated pages of "The Canalboat Captain's Story," told in jingle by Malcolm Douglas: I'm werry like G. Washington, the old man said to me; I cannot tell a whopper, which was just the

But that story! Of the St. Nicholas departments, that "For Very Little Folk" is especially delightful this month, with pictures and jingles all about finger and toe play by Arthur Guiterman, Frederic B. Hodgins, Alice Turner Curtis, Florence E. Storer, Emilie Poulsson and other child play experts.

CONAN DOYLE WRITES GREATEST ADVENTURE STORY EVER WRITTEN.-The new modern story by Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, which begins in the Pittsburgh Sunday Post March 24th, is likely to create a bigger sensation than any tale ever writ ten by one of the greatest masters of the storytelling art the world has known. It is a modern tale of adventure, written in the fullness of the author's power, a product of his more brilliantly, more effectively. Never has he been so ingenious, so picturesque. The story is a marvel of condensation, and its action is so rapid that you will eagerly await every one of the 18 installments. It is impossible to escape the grip of its interest, because it is so full of thrills, of excitement; for the daring explorers encounter dangers that only a great imagination could con ceive. And only a great writer with profound

In this story Sir Arthur Conan Doyle is not content with a plot that makes his latest novel the most sensationally interesting he has written: he 57-11-1t.

has been equally concerned about his characters. One, at least, will go down in literary history as the equal of Sherlock Holmes. He is every whit as remarkable, as interesting, as the great de tective, and as different as day is from night. In one respect he is superior to Sherlock Holmes, in that he is far more human. Sir Arthur's "Sir Nigel," one of the most su cessful serials ever written, appeared several years ago in the Pittsburgh Sunday Post. For that story $25,000 was paid for the American Ed. Corl had a car load of lumber shipped from serial rights alone. For this latest story from the same author he has been paid an even higher rate for each word. It isn't so long as "Sir Nigel," and we are certain you will feel sure that it is worth all it cost. Be sure to read the opening chapters of "The Lost World." in the Sunday magazine of the Pittsburg Post, beginning next Sunday, March 24th. To the Democratic Voters of the Twenty-first Congressional District, Composed of the Counties of Cameron, Centre, Clearfield and McKean: Following my announcement as candidate for delegate to the Democratic National convention at Baltimore from the Twenty-first Pennsylvania Congressional district, I wish to place myself on record as follows:

other good man who can lead the believe party to victory.

The Democratic party of Pennsylvania at the present time does not present a united front to the common enemy. Both factions should realize that victory can only be secured by harmonizing the differences that exist.

If elected a delegate from this district, I will earnestly work in favor of a united Democratic party, and will not support the leader of either of the present factions. Having never before been the present factions.

the present factions. Having never before been an aspirant for political office, I am bound by no promise, given or implied, to any man or faction and will recognize no allegiance to any man or plan that might abridge my right to faithfully and conscientiously serve the Democratic voters of this district from whom, if elected, I shall have received my commission and whom, alone, I shall serve. I earnestly solicit the support of all Democrats who agree with me on these subjects.

Very truly yours.

WM. HANLEY.
