

Denmark's New King Proclaimed.

FREDERICK VIII DROPS DEAD ON STREETS OF SAXONY.

Ruler's Body Was Taken to Hospital Morgue, Where Attendants, Alarmed at His Absence, Found Him.

Christian X., eldest son of the dead King Frederick VIII., was proclaimed king of Denmark from the balcony of the palace in Copenhagen in the presence of a huge concourse of people who had assembled in the square in front of the royal residence.

The prince will be forty-two years old on Sept. 26 next. He was married in 1898 to Princess Alexandrina of Mecklenburg-Schwerin. He has two sons.

DROPPED DEAD ON STREET

King Frederick Stricken With Apoplexy While Walking in Hamburg.

King Frederick VII. of Denmark Died Alone and Unrecognized on the Sidewalk of One of the Principal Streets of Hamburg, Germany.

The body was removed by the police to a public hospital, where it was identified later by members of the king's suite who had accompanied him to Hamburg.

King Frederick was in his sixtieth year and was a brother of Queen Mother Alexandra of England, the dowager empress of Russia and the king of Greece.

The king, traveling incognito, had arrived in Hamburg Monday on his return from a long trip to the south, where he had been convalescing from a serious attack of inflammation of the lungs. With the queen and the royal suite, he took quarters at the Hamburger Hof.

At 10 o'clock Tuesday night the king left the hotel unaccompanied by his usual staff before retiring. He had gone only a short distance when he was overcome on the street by a sudden attack of apoplexy.

When members of the king's suite became alarmed over his failure to return to the hotel after a reasonable time, they called in the proprietor, and a search was begun. The searchers found his majesty dead at the hospital and brought his body back to the hotel with them.

King Frederick and Queen Louisa, who had traveled to Hamburg from Nice under the incognito of the Count and Countess of Kronberg, had their three youngest children, Princess Thyra, Prince Gustav and Princess Dagmar, with them.

King Frederick had been undergoing a course of treatment for arteriosclerosis, with which he had been troubled for a considerable time. He had also suffered from an attack of inflammation of the lungs, but this had been completely overcome.

When he left the Hamburger Hof after a hearty dinner, the king strolled toward the "Goose market," one of the principal squares in the business section of the city and just around the corner from the hotel. A few minutes later some pedestrians noticed an elderly gentleman fall to the sidewalk. He was dressed in an ordinary business suit and appeared to be a well-to-do tradesman. The passersby ran to the spot to assist him, but he was already dead.

A policeman was called and he had the body conveyed in an automobile to the Sailors' hospital. The physicians on duty there on examination found that death had been instantaneous.

There was nothing on the body which afforded a clue to its identification, and it was placed in the mortuary of the hospital.

It was much later in the evening that the royal suite, which had become anxious owing to the king's absence, heard of the incident that had occurred on the "Goose market." As their inquiries in regard to the king's movements had up to then proved fruitless they, together with the proprietor of the hotel, proceeded to the hospital to look at the body there, although they did not suspect that it was that of his majesty.

On arrival at the hospital they were confronted by the fact that the dead man was the king. Arrangements were immediately made for the body to be conveyed to the hotel, where it was laid out amid masses of flowers. Later the body was taken to Copenhagen.

The king was regarded by his physicians as completely restored to health by his trip to the south. Tuesday he felt particularly well, and during the day expressed joy at his expected return to Copenhagen. He remarked that he felt refreshed and completely restored to health.

The flags on all the public buildings in Hamburg, where the king had repeatedly been a welcome guest, were placed at half mast.

Several months ago King Frederick suffered a serious illness. While taking his customary walk in Copenhagen he had a sudden seizure, and was compelled to return to the palace. Later it was announced that he had suffered a chill, but the real nature of his malady was not disclosed. While he showed rapid recovery, he suffered a relapse two weeks later, and considerable anxiety was expressed by members of the court as to his condition.

Council Adjourns Without Hearing Anything of Petition For Leniency.

After a short session at its offices in the state house in Boston, the executive council adjourned without Governor Foss having referred to the body any petition for leniency for Rev. C. V. Richeson. This means that Richeson must die.

623,262 Converted in M. E. Missions.

"This board began its work four years ago without a Sunday school missionary in any field," was the opening statement in the report of the board of Sunday schools, presented to the general conference of the Methodist Episcopal church in Minneapolis, Minn.

"It has sent out many missionaries into all parts of the United States and into other lands. As a result of such extension work, the following facts are noted," the report continued:

"New schools established, 1128; enrollment in these schools, 42,000; church organizations resulting, 204; new churches actually built, 17; value of these churches, $229,650. The spiritual results of the work for the four years ending in 1912 is 623,262 conversions."

Food Prices at Highest Point.

Prices of commodities have reached the highest point ever touched in the records kept by Bradstreet's Journal in New York, which for years has tabulated prices of all classes of commodities, and found an "index number," which hits a carefully compiled average of prices, month by month.

The figure for May 1 shows an index number of 99.2746, a figure which exceeds any previous figure during the twenty years that the index number has been compiled. It shows a rise in prices of 1.9 per cent since April 1 of this year, and a rise of 9.7 per cent since a year ago. The previous high record, made Jan. 1, 1910, was 99.2310. "Comparison with May 1, 1909," says Bradstreet's Journal, "reveals an increase of 11.7 per cent, while contrast with the like date in 1908, when quotations were suffering from the effects of economic depression, displays an advance of 16.4 per cent."

Famous Feudist Dead.

Ed Callahan, who was shot from ambush last Thursday morning while he was at work in his store at Crockettville, Ky., died of his wounds at the Whitespoon hospital at Buckhorn, in Breathitt county. Callahan was shot through the left lung, and at first it was thought he would recover, the ball having passed entirely through his body and the wound had drained well.

Last Friday pneumonia set in and he continued to grow worse. The famous feudist made his will and gave a statement of his belief as to the identity of his assassins to the members of his family gathered about him. The names he divulged to them, however, are kept secret.
