

4 BATTLESHIPS ORDERED TO CUBA.

Four Hundred and Fifty Bluejackets Under Command of Colonel Lucas Go to Guantanamo City.

The gravity of the situation in Cuba, demanding action by the United States forces, was shown by the decision of the government to dispatch at once four battleships to Cuban waters, and to move United States marines into the interior of the disturbed island.

After a conference between President Taft and Secretary Knox at the White House it was announced that the government would immediately dispatch four American battleships to Cuba.

Four hundred and fifty American marines, under command of Colonel Lucas, were landed at Doses Point, close to Calmanera, from which point they proceeded by train for Guantanamo City.

The announced purpose of the movement is to guard American property and not for intervention.

Admiral Osterhaus, commander of the Atlantic fleet, was ordered to send one of his divisions to Guantanamo. The admiral is at Key West with the flagship Washington and the third and fourth divisions of the fleet.

Admiral Osterhaus notified the navy department that he has designated the battleships Missouri, Mississippi, Minnesota and Ohio, the fourth division of the Atlantic fleet, to go to Guantanamo. He does not say when the ships will leave. Rear Admiral Nathaniel R. Usher commands the division.

While battleships are ordered to Guantanamo, where the American marines were landed, their field of operations will not be confined to that port. President Taft's decision to dispatch the squadron to Cuban waters was reached because of the need of precautionary measures and not with any intent to intervene at this time.

Another point brought out in the conference was the absence of satisfactory telegraphic communication with American vessels now near Cuba. The high power wireless apparatus on the battleships will make such communication with naval stations in the United States much quicker.

It was stated at the navy department that another principal consideration in sending four battleships to Cuba was that the force of marines at Guantanamo would be largely increased. Each of the big ships carries a full quota of marines. It is not the intention of the government to make a naval demonstration.

Secretary Knox's conference with President Taft and the order for sending the ships followed closely a conference Mr. Knox had with M. H. Lewis, president of the Guantanamo and Western railroad.

Cablegrams from managers of Mr. Lewis' properties near Guantanamo report the conditions growing more serious. His railroad manager reported the burning by the rebels of the railroad station at Olympo, as well as an unconfirmed rumor of the burning of the town of Tiguabus, near Guantanamo. Mr. Lewis was careful to explain that he did not favor intervention, but only demanded protection for his property.

Philadelphia Fish Dealer Finds Ring in Anglesea Captive.

Howard E. Buzby, of 2929 Ridge avenue, Philadelphia, found a diamond ring in the mouth of one of the fish received in a barrel from Anglesea. Buzby was unpacking the barrel and placing the fish in various bins preparatory to filling several orders, when he noticed one of the finny creatures had a peculiar bulge to its gills. Thinking the fish defective, he threw it to one side.

Some time later he opened the fish with a knife and in its gills found a diamond ring. Buzby says that the owner of the ring can obtain his property upon proper identification.

Jersey's Death List Lower.

Claude Allen Is Guilty.

After deliberating for two and a half hours the jury in Wytheville, Va., found Claude Swanson Allen guilty of murder in the second degree for the killing of Judge Thornton L. Massie at Hillsville in March. The jury recommended his punishment be fixed at fifteen years in the penitentiary. Sentence was deferred in order that he may testify in the other cases growing out of the shooting up of the Carroll county court.

Prince Makes Air Trip.

Owing to a storm, no landing was made at Bremen, and after varying the course several times the Zeppelin III returned to Hamburg.

Pioneer in Conquest of the Air Passed Away in His Ohio Home After a Long Struggle For Life.

Wilbur Wright, elder of the two Wright brothers, who made America famous throughout the world as the pioneers in the science of aviation, died in Dayton, O., in his forty-sixth year.

His death, due to typhoid fever, came after the distinguished patient had made a gallant fight for his life. Mr. Wright had been lingering on the border for many days, and though his condition from time to time gave some hopes to members of his family, the attending physicians, Drs. D. B. Conklin and Levi Spitzer, maintained that he could not recover.

When the patient succumbed to the fever that had been racking his body for days and nights he was surrounded by the members of his family, which includes his aged father, Bishop Milton Wright; Miss Katherine Wright, his sister; Orville, his brother, the co-inventor of the aeroplane; Reuchlin Wright and Loria Wright, also brothers.

Mr. Wright was seized with typhoid fever on May 4, while on a business trip in the east. On that day he returned to Dayton from Boston and consulted Dr. Conklin, the family physician.

Eight and a half years ago a little item appeared in the newspapers, telegraphed from Wilmington, N. C., that the Wright brothers, of Dayton, O., had managed to fly a machine through the air, along the Carolina coast, for a quarter of a mile.

That was the beginning, the very beginning, of a series of signal triumphs in aeromotion, constant and increasing, up to the very death of the distinguished aviator.

But it did not seem so then. Folk who remembered what had happened to the hundreds of men in all ages who had attempted to emulate the birds, laughed at the item and said "Fake" and "Darius Green." But this time it was not Darius, and soon there was ample evidence that the two former bicycle repairers from Ohio had achieved the greatest scientific victory of years among the sand dunes of Kitty Hawk, North Carolina.

There, for several years, the Wright brothers had been experimenting with gliders, a cross between a box kite and an aeroplane, minus the engine. They found they could remain in the air for seconds at a time. Then they built a glider with an engine attached and tried it with varying success in short flights.

The next year they built their No. 2 flier and flew it above Dayton. On Nov. 5, 1904, it was flown for a distance of 24 1/2 miles in 38 min. 3 sec.

That was the next great victory. For the Wrights knew that they had solved the way of aerial flight. Then they announced that they would manufacture machines for foreign governments. They declined to reveal the secret of the manufacture, however, and the negotiations fell through. They would not patent the machines.

Then came a period of serious financial hardship for the brothers. Finally, in 1908, they secured patents, and a group of financiers capitalized the Wrights. Since then their financial success has been great.

Says Rockefeller Has $900,000,000.

The New York World says: "The litigation that has brought about the examination of John D. Rockefeller as a witness to tell of the present relations between Standard Oil and its former subsidiary companies, supposedly dissociated from it under the judgment of the United States supreme court, has involved also a quiet inquiry into the stock holdings and other forms of wealth of Mr. Rockefeller.

"From all the data available, and one of the associate counsel in this inquiry said the available data were fairly exhaustive, the conclusion has been reached that John D. Rockefeller is now worth $900,000,000.

"For the purposes of an average the Rockefeller income may be estimated at $60,000,000 a year, or $5,000,000 a month, or $1,538,461.54 a week, or $164,735.31 a day, or $6863.97 an hour, or $114.40 a minute, or $1.90 a second.

"He has given $174,500,000 to various charitable, educational and scientific institutions, but this has not made any impression on the vast principal of his wealth, being merely gifts out of the income."

Kills Father In Quarrel.

Robert Priem, twenty-one years old, shot and killed his father, Herman Priem, forty-five years old, a merchant of Dunmore, near Scranton, Pa., in the course of a quarrel.

The father is a hardware dealer and the son was employed in the store. A tenant of the father's building next door reported a broken faucet and the two went to repair it. Quarreling between them, according to the neighbors, had been frequent, and it broke out while they were in the tenant's house.

The father drove the son out of the house, so the tenants say, and said he would have nothing more to do with him. Outside the son met his mother and she persuaded him to go back to his father and try to be friendly.

The son returned, and the father, it is said by the tenants, abused him roundly and threatened to attack him with a pick handle. The son thereupon drew a revolver and shot him. The ball pierced the body and death ensued within a short time.

The son waited about for a short time and then made off. He telephoned from another part of town in the course of an hour to inquire how badly his father was wounded, and was told he was dead. That is the last that has been heard of him.

$10,000 For Captain Rostron.

Captain Arthur H. Rostron, of the steamship Carpathia, which brought into port the survivors of the Titanic disaster, was presented with a draft for $10,000, a fund subscribed by readers of the New York American.

The presentation ceremony took place aboard the liner. Captain Rostron, in accepting, said that whatever part he had played in the Titanic tragedy was due to the loyalty of his crew, and it grieved him, he said, to know that honors were being thrust upon him through the sufferings of others.

The largest contributor to the fund was Mrs. George D. Widener, of Philadelphia, whose husband perished on the Titanic. She gave $500.

Former Soldier Kills Schoolgirl.

Annie Lynch, a schoolgirl, thirteen years of age, was attacked and killed near her home in Phillipsburg, N. J., on Friday by Frank Brown, a former private in the United States army. After shooting the girl Brown wounded himself. He may recover.

Brown went to the school where the girl was a pupil and told the principal that Annie's mother had sent for her. He departed, but hid in an alley not far away, where he attacked her. She escaped after a struggle and was shot while running. After going two blocks she fell dead on her father's doorstep.

Pardoned by the President.

President Taft granted an unconditional pardon to William T. Jones, a prominent citizen of Portland, Ore., who was convicted of conspiracy to defraud the government in 1906 of public lands. There were two cases against Jones. Francis J. Heney, former federal district attorney of Oregon, prosecuted Jones and William J. Burns worked up the evidence.

Pours Hot Metal Down Back.
