

sion's engineers is the result of an exhaustive report made by the national waterways commission, a body composed of the following United States senators and representatives: Senator Theodore E. Burton, chairman; Senator Jacob H. Gallinger, vice chairman; Senators Samuel H. Piles, William Alden Smith, F. M. Simmons, James P. Clarke and William Lorimer and Representatives D. S. Alexander, Frederick C. Stevens, Irving P. Wanger, Stephen M. Sparkman and John A. Moon.

This commission made public a comprehensive report on March 25 and in it indorsed the plans of the Flood Commission. The report sets forth that after careful consideration of the problem of utilizing storage reservoirs for flood prevention the commission arrived at the following conclusions:

"1. As the country develops the necessity for controlling floods becomes of greater importance, both in respect to improved property in thickly populated districts and to valuable unimproved lands which are needed for agricultural or manufacturing purposes. Losses from floods are not con-fined alone to the destruction or damage of property but also result from the inability to utilize large areas threatened by floods. In the case of many streams the adoption of some means of flood prevention has already become most urgent because of the constantly increasing losses due to floods

"2. The use of storage reservoirs as a means of controlling floods, although expensive, becomes more practicable <text><text><text><text><text><text><text><text> where the value to property liable to damage is great and where the reser-ciencies of revenue, repel invasion, suppress in-surrection, defend the State in war, or to pay ex-isting debt; and the debt created to supply defi-ciencies in revenue shall never exceed, in the ag-gregate at any one time, one million of dollars. Provided, however, That the General Assembly, irrespective of any debt, may authorize the State to issue bonds to the amount of fifty millions of dollars for the purpose of improving and rebuild-ing the highways of the Commonwealth.
