How Patton Assisted the Harvester Trust "Hold Up" the Farmer.

BELLEFONTE, PA., Oct. 1, 1912. Editor Watchman:-

While the high cost of living pinches the consumer it does not benefit the farmer. The poor farmer, exploited by the middle man, cold storage plant and the gambler in Wall street, finds that in the market where he buys needful material he is held up, plundered and robbed by over capitalized trusts, combines and monopolies. They are protected, in fact these little infant industries have been highly protected for years. Lately it was observed that there were no swaddling clothes on the line and the nation looking over his bunch of "precocious infants" found that each kid had whiskers and was living on the cream and fat of the land, while some of their pay-envelope proteges in the steel mills working for from twelve to seventeen cents per hour. ten to twelve hours a day, and no rest on Sunday, were beginning to scrape empty flour barrels, use cheap adulterated molasses for butter and forego milk in their tea and coffee. Under Roosevelt's administration these trusts increased in number from 149 with a capitalization of $3,784,000,000 to 10,020 with a capitalization of $31,672,003,000, and of this last amount over 70 per cent, was water. This statement was made by a Republican in the person of Senator La Follette, of Wisconsin.

Some time ago the Grange began an agitation for co-operation in buying material for the farmer and also the organization of rural credit societies. Grangers began to see that the selfishly inflated, law-protected, trust ridden method of holding them up in the purchase of needful material, was nothing but highway robbery. The people protested and petitioned Congress for the passage of the Farmer's Free List bill in which all agricultural implements and farmer's hardware would be placed on the free list in order to destroy the brutal power of the trusts, but the International Harvester company seemingly controlled the President. The bill passed both Houses of Congress but was vetoed by the President, then Congress with the assistance of the Progressives, Republicans and Democrats, tried to pass the bill over the President's veto. What then was the attitude of our Congressman upon this bill? When the bill was before HUNTINGDON PRESBYTERY NOTES.—The | the House he was either absent or dodged absolutely against the bill. (See Congressional Record page 4171). It is cer-James S. Wilkes was received by letter tainly fair to assume that the farmers of this district who have had business experience with the International Harvester Co., would assuredly appreciate the assistance that Mr. Patton's vote gives this trust in holding them up for another term of years.

Meeting of Bellefonte Woman's Club.

The regular monthly meeting of the Woman's Club will be held on Saturday, October the fifth, at 3:30 o'clock. Come. A rare treat is promised for this meeting to which the public is most cordially invited. Mrs. Callaway will give a "parlor talk" on her trip around the world. Those of us who have heard her will enjoy listening again, and those who have not will be grateful for this opportunity.

That she is entertaining and instructive to the young as well as to the older people, was proven by the primary and intermediate pupils of the Bellefonte Academy when she talked to them. She tried to close her talk several times, but was urged to continue until the time lengthened to one and one-half hours. The pupils consented then for her to retire only when she promised to return at a later date. Mrs. Callaway brought home with her many interesting curios which, with her "Memory Chain," she will exhibit.

Bring your friends and young people All will be welcome. Petrikin hall, Saturday, October 5th, at 3:30 o'clock.
