BIG SLAUGHTER OF HOGS ON ACCOUNT OF CHOLERA INFECTION—James Kerstetter and Reuben Welty, who are in the hog raising business on the Kerstetter farm east of Bellefonte, were obliged to kill fifty-one shoats on Monday on account of disease and on Monday morning Dr. S. M. Nissley was called to examine the herd. He found fifty-one of the animals so badly infected that vaccination was useless, and as a precaution against infecting the balance of the herd advised formerly of Bellefonte, is in the Mercy that they be killed at once. This was done and the remainder of the herd vaccinated in the hope that they might be savard, which has been such during the past | ed, but the next day fourteen more showweek as to cause her friends some alarm, ed such decided symptoms of infection that they, too, were killed, making Kerstetter and Welty's total loss sixty-five

All told Kerstetter and Welty had herd of about seventy-five hogs, so that practically two-thirds of the total were killed on Monday. The hogs killed were spring shoats and would weigh about 120 pounds. They would all have been fattened and killed for market this fall and winter, had they not become diseased, and it is an easy matter to figure out how big the loss is to the owners, with pork selling at the price it now is. The next biggest loser in this section is Mr. William P. Humes, all his hogs that were infected having died.

FOOTBALL AT STATE COLLEGE.-Tomorrow will mark the opening of the football season at State College when Carnegie Tech will be State's opponent on the gridiron. Many Bellefonters will doubtless attend the game as the outlook for the State team is so far very problematical. Eight of the old players are back but two of them have been so badly crippled in practice that they will not be able to get into the game tomorrow. Of the large number of new candidates the majority are light men and the coaches are having difficulty finding seven men ought to win tomorrow's game without much trouble it is the games that follow Beaver field and the game put up against them will show to a certain extent what chance State will have when she meets Cornell at Ithaca on October 19th. All sounds of the approaching host were deadened by the music and it was not until the door was suddenly opened and a bevy of two score and more young ladies filed into the room that Miss Miller had even a suspicion of what was taking place.
