Big Democratic Rally Next Tuesday Evening.

Georgia's Governor, Congressman Hefflin and Prof. Brooks will be the Chief Speakers. Come and Hear Them.

The Democrats of Centre county will hold a big rally meeting in the court house, Bellefonte, next Tuesday evening, October 15th, at eight o'clock, under the auspices of the Wilson Club of Centre county.

This will probably be the only big Democratic meeting to be held in Bellefonte during this campaign, and every voter who is in favor of Woodrow Wilson, for President; or is in doubt as to who will be the best man to vote for, should attend and hear the national issues plainly and clearly discussed.

The speakers will be Governor Emmett O'Neal, of Georgia; Hon. J. Thomas Hefflin, Congressman from Alabama, and Robert C. Brooks, professor of political economy at Swarthmore. These men are all thoroughly conversant with the political conditions existing today, and know as well as any set of men what is for the best interests of the country.

Turn out and hear them and we know that you will be impressed with the truths they tell you.

WALKER.—Samuel E. Walker, a prominent and representative citizen of Clinton county, died at 6.30 o'clock on Wednesday evening as the result of a stroke of paralysis with which he was stricken on Wednesday afternoon of last week.

Deceased was born in Miles township, this county, on November 5th, 1832, making his age 79 years, 11 months and 4 days. The early part of his life was spent on the old homestead but after he married he located on a farm near Salona where he spent the balance of his life. He was enterprising and industrious and prospered as a farmer as well as in other business pursuits. He served one or more terms as county auditor in Clinton county and was a stockholder and director of the Lock Haven Trust company. He was a life long member of the Lutheran church and a man who stood high in the estimation of his friends and neighbors.

When a young man he was united in marriage to Miss Amanda E. Brungard, of Lamar township, Clinton county, who died in 1886. In 1899 he married Miss Mary C. Best. She survives with four children by his first wife, namely: George D., of Lock Haven; J. C., of Salona; Charles E., of Johnstown, and W. Harrison Walker Esq., of Bellefonte. The funeral will take place at ten o'clock tomorrow (Saturday) morning, burial to be made in the Cedar Hill cemetery.

BOWES.—Mrs. Elmer L. Bowes died at her home in Tyrone Sunday morning with cerebral hemorrhage, with which she was seized last Friday morning, being in an unconscious condition from that time until her death. Her maiden name was Miss Stella Cheesman, a daughter of Calvin and Sarah Ray Cheesman, and she was born at Snow Shoe September 2nd, 1873, hence was 39 years, 1 month and 4 days old. She was united in marriage to Elmer L. Bowes in October, 1897, and for a number of years the family lived in Snow Shoe. In 1905 they moved to Tyrone where Mr. Bowes was transferred on account of his duties as an engineer on the Tyrone division. In addition to her husband she is survived by the following children: Grace, Marion, Sarah, Helen and Jack. She also leaves two brothers and two sisters, namely: Asbury Cheesman, of Sunbury; Minnie and Robert, of Mill Hall, and Mrs. Clifford Bollinger, of Johnstown. He was educated at the Pine Grove Mills academy and later read law at Corning, N. Y. He was admitted to practice at the Venango county bar in 1865, and ever since had been a resident of Franklin. For many years he was prominent in Republican politics and was elected to Congress in 1878. He was a delegate to the Republican State convention that nominated General Beaver for Governor. Mr. Osmer represented the Commonwealth in a murder case in 1868 that terminated in Venango county's first hanging. He is survived by two sons, Archibald R. and Newton F. She was married to William Bartley in 1858 and most of their wedded life was spent in this locality. AT THE OPERA HOUSE.—Neil Twomey's dramatization of Gene Stratton-Porter's "Freckles" will be the attraction at the Garman Opera house next Tuesday, October 15th. It is under the direction of A. G. Delamater, who is one of the prominent producing managers of New York. When it is understood that there have been over a million readers of this masterpiece of Mrs. Porter, it will not be amiss to suppose that almost every person in Bellefonte knows of the beautiful simplicity of this immensely popular story. The adaptation of Mr. Twomey, is a most clever piece of work; it shows that he is in thorough sympathy with the author; it is interest-compelling and tensely dramatic, and its great charm lies in its tender simplicity and unaffected naturalness.

Bud Fisher's clever cartoon conceit, "Mutt and Jeff," has had more widespread publicity than any series of cartoons in the history of journalism. Gus Hill has succeeded in producing a musical comedy worthy of a famous artist's endeavors. "Mutt and Jeff" are represented as a couple of race-track habitués, always broke as such "graffers" usually are. They learn of a rush to Nickador, an imaginary South American country where "chickie," an important ingredient in the manufacture of chewing gum has been discovered in great quantities. "Mutt and Jeff" ship as waiters of the "Insurgent," a steamship bound for Nickador. They represent themselves as the long lost heirs of the "Chickie" estates and start a revolution. "Mutt" proclaims himself president with his faithful ally "Jeff" as vice-president. Their bluff seems to work for a while but does not end well. "Mutt and Jeff" are glad to accept a pair of tickets back to New York and relinquish their claim on the estate. At Garman's Saturday evening, October 19th. Prices 25 cents to $1.00.

"THE SERVANT IN THE HOUSE."—Broad the company come directly from a Hadway play house we doubt if the presentation of Charles Ram Kennedy's beautiful play, "The Servant in the House," could have been any more impressive than was that at Garman's Wednesday night. As presented here it was more of a sermon than a play, so superbly acted as to have a most peculiar effect on the audience. So intently absorbing was it that even applause seemed to profane the atmosphere of a play house most transformed into a church.

Victor E. Lambert, as "The Servant in the House," was superb and his support so capable as to make the cast appear to have no star. Not since "Ben Hur" and "The Sign of the Cross" have we witnessed so altogether an uplifting play.

Is it the Trusts or the People We Represent?

BELLEFONTE, PA., Oct. 9th, 1912. Editor Watchman:

DEAR SIR:—In 1908 the Republican party in its national platform upon which President Taft was elected by a large plurality, declared for a revision downward in tariff taxes. Without this specific declaration, Mr. Taft would have been defeated. Suffice to say, this solemn pledge—this covenant with the people, was recklessly and arrogantly disregarded. As a natural consequence, in 1910, the Republican Congressmen faced an angered, outraged nation for re-election, and the people aroused by the perfidy of the pledge-breakers, retired about sixty stand-patters to private life giving absolute control of the House to the Democrats with emphatic instructions to revise the tariff downward.

In the Sixty-Second Congress, convened April, 1911, among other commodities, the Democrats took up Schedule K, relating to duties on wool. Wool is a necessity of life. Why tax warm clothing so high that when winter's frost whitens the earth, poor little ones must shiver and suffer that the Woolen Trust may wax warm and cheerful. What we want is not only a reduction in woolen taxes but also some process to wring the water from the stock of the Woolen Trust instead of allowing it to wring excessive and unnecessary tribute to its products out of the pockets of the poor. No wonder the poet sang that "man's inhumanity to man makes countless thousands mourn."

The Democrats, true to their ante-election pledge attempted to revise downward the tariff on wool. The average tariff duty on wool was 90.1 per cent, and the Underwood-LaFollette bill contemplated a reduction of 47.55 per cent, or 42.55 per cent. This bill was vetoed by the President. He said in his message that he did not know anything about it and would wait until the Tariff board reported to him the necessary revision.

This summer the same bill was passed by the Democrats and Progressives in the House and Senate and again sent to the President. Had this bill been signed by President Taft upon its first presentation, it would have saved the people over $50,000,000. To illustrate, a woolen hat made abroad, valued at a dollar would be taxed 78 cents before it would enter, making its cost $1.78. The Democratic bill reduced this tariff from 78 cents to 45 cents. This reduction would apply on blankets, underclothing, suits, overcoats, etc.

Would this revision reduce wages? Certainly not, for the wages of the woolen workers cannot get much lower. The average wage of a wool worker is $429.26 annually, or $35.87 per month. The percentage that labor bears to the value of the average woolen product is 16.61 per cent, and surely with a tariff allowing, upon revision, a margin of 42.55 per cent, ample profit would be still left to pay American labor the munificent sum of $35.77 per month. When the cold wintry blasts strike you, Mr. Voter, and you go to buy woolen garments, remember that Mr. Patton either dodged this bill or was absent, for at the time it swept the House and Senate he is recorded as not having voted. He also didn't vote upon the Conference report upon the same bill. But when an attempt was made to pass it over the President's veto, our stand-pat Representative voted "No." So far we have seen him made common cause with the trusts that rob the farmer, also with the trusts that rob us through the sugar bowl and now we find him supporting the Woolen Trust.

Did the trusts elect him or was it the people of the Twenty-first District? A BELLEFONTE WAGE WORKER.

No Disagreement About Scripture Dancing.

Editor Watchman: The columns of a newspaper should always be open for all that is "profitable for instruction in righteousness." In the Keystone Gazette of last week, Rev. Dr. W. H. Schuyler, of Centre Hall, takes me to task for what I have expressed concerning the exercise of dancing according to Scripture, that "it is out of harmony with Scripture and therefore misleading." He says, "according to my interpretation of Ecclesiastes 3:4, I might in the same way justify the act of murder by quoting from the same chapter, 3rd verse, 'There is a time to kill.'"

The Doctor, I think, most clearly see that there is no valid logical argument in what he asserts. Because the Bible teaches, "There is a time to dance," it does not consequently follow that there is a time to "murder," a time to "murder," a time to "covet" or any other wrong-doing everywhere forbidden in the Sacred volume. I can assure Dr. Schuyler that I with him fully accept Rev. Dr. Patton's Scripture quotations and conclusions on this subject. After a careful consideration of the matter, there appears to me a substantial agreement of opinion.

I have carefully examined every text of Scripture in which the word "dance" occurs and I find nowhere in the Bible any text forbidding the little children and young people in our families spending an evening's pleasurable pastime in the exercise of dancing. I discover nothing harmful in it, but some manifest healthful and enjoyable benefits. The children love their home all the more and are less likely to seek objectionable pastime outside the family circle.

October 7, 1913. MISSIONER.

A Record to Be Ashamed Of.

STORMSTOWN, PA., Oct. 1, 1912. Editor Watchman:

Under our form of government the President nominates and by and with the consent and advice of the Senate, appoints judges of the Supreme Court as well as District and Circuit Judges within the jurisdiction of the federal domain. This was a wise provision. The framers of the Constitution intended that this "advice and consent" of the Senate would operate as a check upon the President by rejecting nominees who were personally unfit, morally or intellectually, for the position in the judiciary to which he proposed to appoint them.

In time the Senate became a millionaire's club. It has been the citadel of interests craving special favors, the distributing center of partisan patronage, largely regardless of moral or intellectual fitness in fine, it was the last stand of reactionary politics where the dollar stood above the man, vested interests above human rights and political expediency above strict righteousness.

The special interests through their craven agents in the Senate, began dictating the appointment of federal judges. Large corporate interests endorsed certain of their plant legal tools to fill vacant and newly created judgeships and these endorsements were considered so sacred, secret and confidential that the public was never advised of their contents. It was none of the people's business, for if a bribe-taking Penrose and those whom he represented, wanted an Archibald elevated to the bench, why should an outraged public know who stood back of such an unworthy, discredited applicant?

So that when a Senate amendment was offered to strike out from House Resolution No. 17595 the words "that hereafter before the President shall appoint any district, circuit or supreme judge, he shall make public all endorsements made on behalf of any applicant," Mr. Patton voted in favor of the amendment to strike out these words. He stood against the application of the principle of representative government. By his vote he favored the maintenance of a secret, underground route for predatory wealth and special interests to control such appointments and leave unrevealed the endorsements that have been packing our courts with agents of favor-seeking corporations.

Did Mr. Patton's vote in this regard represent your convictions, Mr. Voter? HALF-MOON VOTER.

John Keeler, who shot and killed Joseph Roessner, the Clearfield brewer, and badly wounded three other men, will be tried at the December term of court.

Ten additional convicts were brought from Pittsburgh on Monday to work on the new penitentiary. This makes a total of twenty-one convicts now at work there. During the week one of the men had an eye injured by being struck with a spawl of a stone, and he was given treatment at the Bellefonte hospital.

Bellefonte has a great many attractive girls and one in particular appeared very alluring in the eyes of a Lewistown man. So much so, in fact, that he made a date by letter to meet her here in the beginning of the week. But the man is married and his wife, learning of the arrangement for the clandestine meeting, came to Bellefonte and when hubby appeared promptly had him arrested and locked up in the Centre county jail. Satisfied that the man was where he could commit no wrong the woman returned home. In the meantime the girl in question is ready for other conquests.

MISS MCGARVEY HONORED.—In recognition of her artistic photograph ability, the German Union of Photographers has conferred upon Miss Mary McGarvey, of Bellefonte, Pa., an exhibitor at the Fortieth Traveling Assembly held August 21st to August 25th, 1911, at Dessau, Germany, a diploma of merit. This honor, which came as a great surprise to Miss McGarvey, has been bestowed upon few Americans save those who have long been recognized as artists in their work. From year to year Miss McGarvey has gained recognition at both National and State conventions, the request for the studies sent to Germany having come as a result of the meritorious work displayed at the Milwaukee National convention in 1911. With recognized talent, ambition and energy the success of this gifted young woman is assured and of whose success Bellefonte can be justly proud.
