CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SOCIETY. Service Sunday 10:45 a. m. Wednesday 8 p. m., 9½ E. High street.

AT THE PRESENTERIAN CHURCH. A few weeks since the pastor of the Presbyterian church preached a series of sermons which attracted some attention. The experiment proved so satisfactory that Dr. Hawes has planned another brief set of connected sermons. These will begin this coming Sabbath night, and the subject of the first one is, "Is There Anything Wrong with the Average Person?"
This will be followed by one February 2nd, on the subject, "What if He Permits This to Go On!" And February 9th, the subject will be, "Is There a Cure?" These sermons will be preached at the evening services. The public is most cordially invited to hear them.

350TH ANNIVERSARY SERVICES.

Last Sunday morning anniversary services were held in St. John's Reformed church, Bellefonte, commemorative of the adoption of the Heidelberg catechism as the confession of faith of the Reformed church. The Heidelberg catechism was formerly adopted January 19th, 1563, under the approval of Frederick Elector III, of the Palatinate, Germany. An interesting bystorical jubiles service was teresting historical jubilee service was used by the congregation and Sunday school at the 11 o'clock morning service. At the same service Elders C. T. Gerberich, A Lukenbch and Charles Wetzel, together with Deacons Harry Keller, C. Y. Wagner, Clayton Royer and J. Henry Wetzel were ordained and installed in their respective offices. Next Sunday morning at 11 o'clock the pastor, Rev. Dr. A. M. Schmidt, expects to deliver an historical address on the Reformation, Zwingli and the catechism. At the annual congregational meeting held January 15th, the reports showed the receipts for the year, from all sources to be $3,447.34; with all bills for the year paid, except a balance on cost of the new roof recently placed on the church.

The road between town and Penn Hall (poss bly ¼ of a mile) has never been in such a de orable condition as it is, and has been, for the last ten days. It is a job for a team to drive through. The walk along the road is just as bad if not worse, than the road itself. Pedestrian out of the question, unless through mud almost knee deep, sticking fast, losing rubbers—and in fact boots and shoes are half pulled off in en-deavoring to move along. If absolutely neces-sary to go in either direction, the party must take to the high hill fields on the north, and even there the walking is very little better. Could not the supervisors improve this wretched condition of the road? They are obliged to open the "Kings Highway" when blocked with snow, why not when almost shut up with mud?

It Took Place at Bride's Country Home at Tarrytown In a Beautiful Feral

Miss Helen Miller Gould, who is worth $40,000,000, was married at Lyndhurst, her country estate at Tarrytown, N. Y., to Finley Johnson Shepard, an American railroad man, who has risen from the ranks.

The marriage culminates what those who profess to know say it a real and beautiful love romance. Both are fortyfour years old. They will stay at Lyndhurst for several days. No wedding trip intention has been made public. The bride went to an altar half hid den by roses, asparagus formosa and palms, upon the arm of her brother, George J. Gould, who gave her in marriage. An orchestra screened by masses of flowers in the music room played the Lohengrin Wedding March, while Rev. Daniel D. Russell, pastor of the Irvington Presbyterian church, per formed the ceremony. Helen and Dorothy Gould, nieces of Miss Gould, stood with her. Garbed in pale pink satin, they acted as flower girls and were her only attendants. Louis J. Shepard, brother of the bridegroom, was best man. The couple stood during the cere mony beneath a bower of American Beauty roses, with festoons of graywhite asparagus reaching almost to the ground. The bride carried a modest bouquet of Lilies of the Valley, her favorite flower. The ceremony was over in six minutes and then the bride and bridegroom were congratulated by the guests, while about forty reporters, photographers and a couple of moving picture men tried to get a glimpse of what was going on inside. Immediately after the ceremony and the congratulations of the guests Mr. and Mrs. Shepard led the way to the north end of the house, where refreshments were served. The bride and bridegroom came to the window and smiled and bowed to the news gatherers on the outside. Then they seated themselves near the window and the wedding breakfast began. From time to time various ones of the guests chatted with the bridal pair. One of the first acts of the newlymarried pair was to send a telegram of greeting to Mr. Shepard's invalid mother at the New Haven hospital. It contained thanks for her blessing, which reached them immediately after the ceremony and expressed deep regret that the elder Mrs. Shepard was unable to be present. A rope of exquisite pearls, said to have once adorned the Empress Josephine, Napoleon's wife, and a pearshaped diamond pendant, the latter the bridegroom's gift, were the only jew-Ex-County commissioner P. H. Meyer, of Cenelry worn by the bride. The pearls were a bequest from Miss Gould's mother.

Less than 100 persons were bidden to the ceremony. They included close relatives of the bride and the bridegroom and friends of long standing.

The hundreds of handsome wedding gifts, which amount in value to a good sized fortune, were displayed in the art gallery on the second floor and were guarded by detectives. They came from all over the world.

Chief among these were presents from the relatives of the bride and her friends: from the army, the navy, the railroad organizations aided by her, the Young Men's Christian association. from officers of the Gould railroads, and from the employes at Miss Gould's country and city homes.

One of the earliest gifts to reach Lyndhurst was a silver dish from 257 girls in Miss Gould's sewing class with an appropriate inscription. Each gire contributed ten cents toward the pres-
