BELLEFONTE CHAUTAUQUA A FEAST OF GOOD THINGS.

The Chautauqua has come and gone and it proved a veritable feast of high class entertainment that cannot help but result in much good for all those who heard all or any part of it. From the opening session last Thursday afternoon to the close on Wednesday evening large crowds were in attendance twice each day, the banner crowd being in the big tent on Tuesday evening to hear Judge Ben Lindsey, of Denver, tell his experience as the greatest juvenile court judge in the United States.

The big tent, its interior furnishings in red, white and blue, with a myriad of electric lights and beautiful stage settings, were all so artistic that they left nothing to be desired. Prof. I. A. Downey was the platform lecturer and proved equal to every emergency. The opening attraction at the first session was the Florentine band with Miss Melrose, soprano. It was one of the best musical organizations ever heard in Bellefonte while the singing of Miss Melrose simply charmed the entire audience. To particularize each day's entertainment would take up too much space but it can truly be said that every musical feature was as good if not better than it had been represented.

Frank Dixon's lecture last Friday evening on "An Outgrown Constitution" was exceptionally fine. Mr. Dixon is undoubtedly a theorist whose pet hobby has been delving into the intricate technicalities of the constitution of the United States and tearing it asunder section by section, in order to prove that it is an antedated if not obsolete instrument. There is plenty of room for every patriotic citizen to take issue with Mr. Dixon in many of his statements and yet candor compels the confession that much that he said is true. And his facts and his fancies are so woven together that they make a most interesting lecture and he is gifted with such a degree of oratory that he can deliver it with telling effect. So pleased were all his Chautauqua hearers that were he to return to Bellefonte on any future occasion he would be assured of a large audience.

Paul M. Pearson's lecture on Saturday afternoon on "The Joy of Living" was a very pleasing diversion from the more serious features of the week and he charmed his audience very much. Saturday evening Reno B. Welbourne gave a remarkable illustrated lecture on the wonders of science and if one-fourth of the things he told about and demonstrated eventually prove correct future generations have many strange things in front of them. In his experiments he showed how the blind could be made to see through their ears, through the principles of light and darkness. With the application of a certain chemical he burned ice into a fire hot enough to melt nails, and did a number of things that astounded his audience to such a degree as to make him a strong attraction.

Sunday the big tent was thrown open to all and afternoon and evening there were religious services as well as a sacred concert by the Brodbeck-Such concert company. The Dietrics, in music and magic; Rosani, the prince of jugglers, and William Sterling Battis, impersonator of Dickens and other historical characters, made up a big bill for Monday, which was appropriately termed children's day.

The Commonwealth quartette furnished the musical numbers at Tuesday's sessions but the feature of the day was Judge Lindsey. He arrived in Bellefonte at 1:23 in the afternoon and was greeted at the train by over a hundred boys and girls, members of the Junior Chautauqua. For his lecture in the evening he was introduced by Judge Ellis L. Orvis. Judge Lindsey talked for two hours, and held the close attention of his auditors until the end. Though not a brilliant orator Judge Lindsey is a forceful speaker and told his story of "The Misfortunes of Mickey" in such a plain, unvarnished way that made it quite interesting. He had a fund of anecdotes and stories which were aptly used to illustrate the various phases of the life of the boys of the street. In his work in the juvenile court in Denver the Judge stated that over seventy-five per cent. of the boys and youths who have been brought before him have been reclaimed without even a jail sentence, and he believes that such results are worth working for.

The Chautauqua closed Wednesday with the Fellows' opera Quartette and a lecture by W. T. Ellis on "The American at the Cross Roads." It was an interesting and instructive talk and was very appropriate as an ending to all the good things of the week.

The guarantee for the Chautauqua was made up and so well did the people of Bellefonte appreciate it that arrangements have practically been concluded for a return date next year. It is proposed to have a list of seventy guarantors and when this article was written sixty-two signers had already been secured, so that a Chautauqua for 1914 is already assured.

BIG FESTIVAL.—The members of the M. E. church of Lemont will hold a festival on Saturday evening, August 2nd. Everybody is cordially invited to attend. The well known band of Lemont will furnish music during the evening.

W. Russell Green, one of the attaches of the Chautauqua association, lost a Greek letter key-shaped pin on the grounds, with his name and "Swarthmore" on the back. Will finder please return.

The state water supply commission has granted the commissioners of Centre county permission to erect a concrete arch bridge over Elk creek, north of Millheim.

"Del Ray," the speed race horse owned by Barton Pardee, of Lock Haven, won the Fort Pitt purse of $5,000 in the grand circuit races at Pittsburgh last Saturday. The class was the 2.10 pace.

A brick house owned by James Leathers at Howard was moved from one lot to another, a distance of 150 feet. A B. Woodward, of Lock Haven, did the job and it took about three weeks to do it. The building was not injured in any way.

A baby boy was born to Mr. and Mrs. John McCoy, at their home on Cur tin street, last Thursday morning. The healthy young scion of that well known family has been named Frank, in honor of its deceased grandfather. Both mother and son are getting along splendidly and the father is about as proud and happy as any young father can be.

Col. H. S. Taylor recently secured one hundred high grade two-day old chicks from a Blair county henry and had rosy visions of the many meals of spring chicken he would enjoy later. But fifty of them died the first few days and within a week three-fourths of them had gone to chicken heaven, so that the few that now survive make a sorry exhibition for the Colonel's anticipations.

William H. Thompson, the liveryman at Howard, had his shoulder blade and collar bone broken when a horse he was driving backed over a steep embankment Wednesday afternoon. C. A. Dunlap, of Houtzdale, a traveling salesman who was with Mr. Thompson, escaped with a number of severe bruises. The horse frightened at a handcar on the railroad which caused it to back.

"Coming events cast their shadow before," but the scenic is always in the limelight. In fact it is talked about as much if not more than any place in Bellefonte, and that is probably the reason it is so well patronized. You can see more and later motion pictures at the Scenic than anywhere else and that is the reason that everybody talks about it. Are you one of the number, and if not, why not?

J. H. Ward, of Shamokin, an old Pine Grove Mills boy, claims to be the possessor of the oldest thing in the shape of an automobile in the United States. It is called a motorette and was built in Paris, France, some seventeen or eighteen years ago. Its original selling price was three thousand dollars, but Mr. Ward secured it from a traveling magician for a mere song, and had it rebuilt so that it is serviceable for motoring, though it looks very obsolete alongside the present day car.

Mr. D. R. Thomas, of Halfmoon township, was a Bellefonte visitor on Wednesday and contradicted the story that his son Irvin was speeding his car and ran over a hog when the venerable George S. Gray was injured several weeks ago. He stated that the car, which was not going over ten miles an hour, merely side-swiped the hog, and barely touched Mr. Gray, his injury resulting from his falling down. The latter, by the way, has been improving the past week, and his friends now hope for his recovery.

The Salvation Army will hold a free outing for mothers and children at Fannings woods Friday, August 1st. A good time will be given to all who attend. The Army proposes to furnish transportation to and from the woods and also will supply all with lemonade and ice cream. Any who are not able to take a lunch will be furnished one free. The day will be spent in playing games and children's service will be held in the afternoon conducted by Capt. and Mrs. Reese, of Tyrone. Those wishing to go can secure a ticket from Capt. Bowie.

On Sunday evening Harry and Edward Resides, of State College, came to Bellefonte in the former's automobile and while the former was calling on friends the latter invited several young ladies to take an auto ride down the new state road. In the neighborhood of Zion, in attempting to pass a buggy the hub of one of the wheels of the machine caught a wheel on the buggy with the result that there was a crash and a badly scared party of girls. Fortunately nobody was hurt and the damage to the machine and buggy was not very great.

AUTOMOBILE COMPANY NEWS.—There was another delay in the starting of the big automobile plant here this week. When the company held a meeting last Friday it developed that the site had not been legally secured, as no money had been collected to pay for it and consequently there was no deed to the property. This week, however, the committee who had the securing of the money in charge collected the money, paid for the property and had the deed entered for record on Tuesday. The contract for the erection of the building has been drawn up and will be executed at a meeting of the company to be held in Bellefonte today, and work on the plant will be started either tomorrow or Monday. It is estimated that the building will cost in the neighborhood of fifty thousand dollars. It might also be stated, that the company is meeting with good success in the sale of their bonds.

TWO BARN BURNED AND OTHER BUILDINGS DAMAGED BY LIGHTNING.

Two big barns in Pennsylvally with all their contents were burned to the ground on Wednesday evening as the result of being struck by lightning during the severe storm and a number of houses in State College were also struck and damaged. The barns were those on the D. Geiss Wagner farm near Linden Hall and the Charles Klingner farm a short distance south of Boalsburg. At the Wagner farm the last of the wheat crop was hauled in Wednesday morning and the barn burned at six in the evening. All the stock was saved with the exception of one horse, but the year's crops and some farm implements were burned. The loss is placed at $3,000, on which there was a partial insurance in the Centre Hall company. Mr. Klingner lost not only his barn and all of this year's crops but two horses, three calves and a number of pigs. His barn and contents were also partially insured in the Centre Hall company.

At State College the gable end was knocked out of the residence of W. H. Brown by a stroke of lightning and among the other houses struck were those of Bruce Struble and H. D. Meek, but neither one was badly damaged. The storm through Buffalo Run valley, in Bellefonte and through Pennsylvally was the hardest one in years. So much rain fell in Buffalo Run valley that the Bellefonte Central train from State College Wednesday evening ran through three feet of water above Hunter's park. Spring creek was three feet above normal and yesterday's rain threatened a big flood. Fortunately most of the farmers in the county have their wheat crop in so that there is little damage in this respect.

CENTRE COUNTY FAIR NOT FAR AWAY.

The big Centre county fair will this year be held September 2nd-5th, and that is only five weeks from next Tuesday. A whole lot can be accomplished in five weeks but it is little enough time in which to prepare for a big county fair such as is annually held in Bellefonte. The premium list is now in the hands of the printers and will be ready for distribution within ten days or two weeks. In the meantime Centre county farmers and the ladies of Centre county should begin to plan what they are going to have in the line of exhibits, for it is this part that helps to make the fair a success.
