

Webster Grim's Political Record.

Bucks County Man Carried Seven Agricultural Counties at Primary Election and is Logical Nominee of the Eastern Part of the State.

Former Senator Webster Grim, nominee for judge of the superior court, is a native of Bucks county, where he was born forty-seven years ago. He is a leading attorney of the bar of that county, and by reason of his wide acquaintance with public men at home and abroad has always enjoyed an extensive practice. He entered politics as a Democrat as soon as he reached his majority and has been a leader of state prominence for a number of years. In 1902, when no other Democrat would take the nomination in Bucks county for the state senate Mr. Grim accepted it and won out after a hard fight. Four years later he was re-elected, although all the resources of the opposition were brought to bear to defeat him at a time when the county was heavily Republican.

Mr. Grim was a delegate to many Democratic state conventions and was permanent chairman of the convention of 1903. In the session of the senate in 1905 he was candidate for president pro tem. In 1909 he received the unanimous vote of his party for United States senator against Senator Oliver. Against his wishes in 1908 he was placed on the Democratic ticket for superior court judge, and in this campaign he was unsuccessful. Senator Grim was nominated for governor by his party at the Allentown convention in 1910. He was defeated, and the incidents of that campaign are so recent that they need not be repeated. Under the most unjust aspersions Mr. Grim bore himself with manly courage and remarkable self-restraint throughout that contest, emerging from it stronger in the regard of the people after defeat than ever before. Amid the myriads of charges which characterized that bitter contest Senator Grim came through it all without a stain upon his personal or political honor. Though wronged and misjudged he never wavered in his fealty to his party or its principles. His course in 1910 won for him the sympathy not only of his own party, but of thousands of independent residents throughout the state, which accounts in a measure for his huge vote in the primaries of Sept. 16.

Record as a Legislator.

Senator Grim's career in the state senate not only made him floor leader of his party in that body, but it placed him in the forefront of Pennsylvania's real reformers. His record as a legislator has left an indelible impress upon legislation, but it was also largely instrumental in starting the aggressive and progressive movement against machine politics that now appears to be working out better things for the state. Senator Grim was the father of automobile legislation, introducing the first bill on the subject, which was then new matter for legislation. His speeches against the "press muzzle" were commended by Republican and Democratic newspapers alike. He fought all forms of jobbery and was the foe in every session of all measures designed to multiply offices, increase salaries, pension judges and appropriate water rights. He and his colleagues in the session of 1905, while not able to stem the tide of vice then rampant, so thoroughly exposed it that a political revolution followed.

Senator Grim was instrumental in shaping much of the good legislation placed upon the statute books between 1903 and 1909. He either supported or helped draft the Columbus Day bill, the bills for the taxation of express companies, for payment of National Guardsmen at drills, providing for the health and safety of miners, authorizing trolley roads to carry freight, for all the pure food bills, for the soldiers' pension bill, for the bill protecting minor children, for the bill of rights of labor unions and for the school code.

Equally alert against bad measures, he fought the bill increasing the salary of governor, against benzoate of soda, against assistant district attorneys in certain counties, against the Philadelphia and Pittsburgh boulevard, against the resolution to place the Quay statue in the capitol corridor, against increase in the salary of the auditor general and against all machine measures to grab franchises and control utilities.

Popular With Country Voters.

When the Democratic committee of Bucks county last April, by formal resolution, presented the name of Webster Grim to the voters of the state as a candidate for superior court judge, he was averse to entering the contest. The importunities of his friends prevailed and he finally consented to the use of his name. His friends made the fight for him on the ground that the southeastern section of the state, never represented on the superior court bench since that court was established, was entitled to a judge. This just plea met with such a hearty response at the primary election last September that he carried seven contiguous counties—Bucks, Montgomery, Lehigh, Berks, Carbon, Monroe and Northampton—which gave him a vote of over 25,000.

Senator Grim's strength with the county voter is indicated by the official count of the primary vote, which shows that he leads all the other four candidates outside of Philadelphia and Allegheny. In sixty-five counties, exclusive of Philadelphia and Allegheny, he has a plurality of 2100 over Kephart, 11,897 over Alcorn and 16,954 over Henderson. Alcorn Grim's friends regard this as an exceptional endorsement of his availability for the superior court judgeship.

His Progressive Views.

The progressive voters of the state, knowing Senator Grim's record in the state senate as a reformer, appear to have given him very general support. It is quite evident that this body of voters believes that a man who represents genuine progress along lines of economic betterment should sit in the superior court.

Since his candidacy was first suggested nearly six months ago Senator Grim has had many well-merited compliments paid to him, but none of them were finer nor more sincere than that found in a recent address "To the Voters of Pennsylvania" in the Bucks County Bar, in which his fellow attorneys say:

"He has a judicial temperament, is careful in the formation of his judgments, and is never hasty in expressing his opinions. He is known everywhere as a man of even temper, not easily provoked and never for a moment allows himself to become swayed by excitement. The trait of dealing fairly with his fellow members of the bar and with his clients has always been freely conceded to him, but at the same time he is a persistent fighter and loses no opportunity to succeed in what he undertakes. He has always displayed a keen and exalted sense of professional dignity, and he differs from many of the lawyers of this day in that he does not feel that the decisions of the past should settle forever the course for the future. This is why he is known as a progressive. His whole senatorial record shows that he holds advanced views along those lines."

Predicts Drop in Beef.

"A drop in the price of beef is coming very quickly," says Mr. Howe, the western manager for the Armour Packing company, in Omaha, Neb. He says there is an overproduction in Argentina and shipments from that country will surely cause prices in America to drop.

Guide Killed; Mistaken For Deer. William Schyre, a guide, was mistaken for a deer and fatally shot by T. H. Lawrence, district manager of the New York Telephone company, while with a hunting party in the Adirondacks, according to advices which reached New York.

BOOKS, MAGAZINES, Etc.

POPULAR MECHANICS MAGAZINE FOR NOVEMBER.—An especially attractive cover design, 321 terse, descriptive articles and 344 vivid illustrations serve to make the November Popular Mechanics Magazine one of the best issues of the year.

Other features of the November magazine—picked at random—are: "Towing a Subway on Harlem River"; "The New Boston Customhouse"; "The Hell Gate Steel Arch Bridge"; "The Long-Tailed Roosters of Japan"; "Palace of Peace at The Hague Dedicated"; "Train Destroyed by Burning Bridge"; "Oakland's Prison, is Up in the Air"; "Automobile Climbs Open Bascule Bridge"; "Monument to Fire Heroes of New York City"; "Symbolical Statuary of the Panama-Pacific Exposition"; "Toiary Gardening being Introduced in America"; "New Fast Mail-Exchange System"; "Self-Supporting Manual-Training School"; "Saving Native Birds in Reservations"; "Modern Globes for the Business Man"; "The Art of Modern Taxidermy," Etc.

THE NOVEMBER WOMAN'S HOME COMPANION.—In the November Woman's Home Companion the campaign for "Better Babies" is carried forward by the establishment of a special department for "Better Babies" in which a series of articles is to be published containing practical suggestions to mothers for the care of children. These articles are to be contributed by great authorities on the subject. The first in the series is entitled "The Meaning of Motherhood," by Dr. S. Josephine Baker, Director of Child Hygiene, Department of Health, New York City.

Other splendid contributions to the November issue are: "The New Freedom for Little Children," by Mary Heaton Vorse, in which the author shows how the Montessori principle of education may be applied by American mothers; "The Movies and the Theater," by Daniel Froham, the celebrated theatrical manager; "Thought as a Force in Daily Life," by Ralph Waldo Trine; "My Son-in-Law's Wife," by a mother-in-law; "Little Courtesies of Social Life," by Christine Terhune Herrick; and "Reducing the Meat Bill," by a retail butcher.

Fiction of special interest is contributed. Margaret Deland begins a new serial story, and other fiction is contributed by Mary Heaton Vorse, Quincy Germaine, Juliet Wilbor Tompkins, Patience Bevier Cole and Zona Gale.

The regular Cooking, Fashion, Housekeeping, Home Decoration and Young People's Departments are filled with good things.

THE YOUTH'S COMPANION IN 1914.—Seven college presidents and a number of college instructors, including ex-President Taft, will contribute to The Youth's Companion during 1914.

Then there is Gene Stratton Porter, whose stories of Indiana woods and swamps have made her famous, and Kate Douglas Wiggin, who never wrote a dull line in her life, and Mrs. Burton Harrison, who remembers when conversation was really an art as practised in Washington and in the manor houses of Virginia. And this is just a beginning of the list.

If you know The Companion, you have a pretty clear idea of what is in store for next year's readers. If you do not know, ask us to send you sample copies—for instance, those containing the opening chapters of Arthur Stanwood Pier's fine serial—"His Father's Son." Full announcement for 1914 will be sent with the sample copies.

For the year's subscription of $2.00 there is included The Companion, Practical Home Calendar for 1914, and all the issues of the paper for the remaining weeks of 1913, dating from the time the subscription is received. The Youth's Companion, 144 Berkeley St., Boston, Mass. 58-42
