There is no danger of an animal eating too much salt unless it has not had any for a long time.

-The apple crop is going to be a big one, which makes it all the more necessary that the orchardist and shipper cultivate an enlarged demand by putting onto the market good, honestly packed, honestly labeled fruit at reasonable prices. Let the cider mills and vinegar factories take care of the culls.

-A good brood sow is the foundation of one of the most profitable branches of live-stock industry. -President H. S. Waters, of Kansas Agricultural College, says that this coun-try has the greatest hog shortage in years, and that it will take two years of good corn crops to bring the hog supply back to the normal. Eastern farmers who are turning their attention to pork production will have little cause to regret their action during the coming two or three years. There is money in good hogs.

Term Was Born of Outlawry on The the Scottish Border. The etymology of the expression

'blackmail" is historically interesting. It appears to have its origin on the Scottish border and dating from times when frequent political feuds between the then two kingdoms of the British islands tacitly justified a sort of perennial terrestrial buccaneering as between borderers of each realm.

Many of these were outlaws on both sides of the border. Their neighboring victims to save their cattle from being lifted sometimes compounded for safety by an annual payment as insurance to the bandits. This fee not only gave them immunity, but entailed them to protect them from rival freebooters. It was their "mail." or "protection." The "mail" coach was so named because it had its armed guard with loaded blunderbuss on the dickey. But the mail paid by border farmers was not for honest royal protection, but for guardianship by thieves, and hence was "black" mail, the color of black being typical of what was nefarious, whether in art or in guardianship, while the guardian of this stamp was known as the "blackguard" of the district. The last named latter day term of reproach seems to have obtained its expression originally as here described.-London Field.

Respectability Killed Him. There was a hermit in the center of London only a few years ago. His hermitage consisted of a cellar-the sole vestige of a house in Clare market pulled down and forgotten by its owners. He lived there for a long time, supported by scraps of food from the tradesmen of the neighborhood. and might have lived there longer still if a journalist had not "discovered" He was interviewed and photohim. graphed to death, for the workhouse authorities, nearly next door, who had hitherto turned a blind eye toward him, were compelled to oust him from his hermitage and make him clean and respectable-a process to which he suc-cumbed.-London Mail.

Just Like a Man. "John." she said, "I have an awful pain in my right side. I'm afraid it's appendicitis." "Are you sure?" he replied, without ooking up from his paper. For months Bellefonte citizens have seen in these columns enthusiastic praise of Doan's Kidney Pills by Bellefonte resi-dents. Would these prominent people recommend a remedy that had not proven reliable? Would they confirm their state-ments after years had elapsed if personal experience nad not shown the remedy to be worthy of endorsement? The follow-ing statement should carry conviction to the mind of every Bellefonte reader:

Mrs. John Andress, 245 S. Spring St., Bellefonte, Pa., savs: "I willingly con-firm the public statement I gave Doan's Kidney Pills two years ago, after they had benefited me greatly, I procured this remedy at Green's Pharmacy Co., when suffering from backache and severe pains in my loins, and it brought prompt and permanent relief. Another of my family was also cured of kidney trouble by Doan's Kidney Pills."

by Doan's Kidney Pills." Mrs. Andress is only one of many Belle-fonte people who have gratefully endors-ed Doan's Kidney Pills. If your back-aches—if your kidneys bother you, don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—ask dis-tinctly for Doan's Kidney Pills, the same that Mrs. Andress had—the remedy back ed by home testimony. Rhubarb in Winter.-Rhubard can be forced as a winter crop on a large or small scale. Many people have a few "hills" in their cellar and thus furnish the family table. In recent years it has developed into considerable of an industry in some sections.

For the winter industry the roots are is still soft, then after it is frozen they can be carted like so many chunks of rock and put in the place prepared. A Greenwich, N. J., grower built a house 39 ft. wide by 224 ft long, where he has raised over a thousand dollars' worth of rhubarb in a winter. This building is here more with three here building is kept warm with three heat-ers, and no light is allowed to enter it, as the light causes the leaves to develop, whereas stalks are desired rather than leaves. A tin roof assures darkness; if under glass one-half of the growth goes to leaves

One-year-old roots do best. The win-ter forcing is hard on the roots and they must be allowed to rest the next season. The frozen clods containing the roots are placed as close together as possible, then filled in with dirt. The house mentioned above can be filled twice during the winter. The first crop can be marketed for the Christmas trade and the next crop for the early spring market. Winter-forced rhubarb is sold in bunches of five stalks and brings two cents a stalk.-Cora J. Sheppard, Cumberland Co., N. J.

-In the September 16 issue of the Record was recorded the system of grow-ing grains that J. J. Hartman, a Colling-dale farmer, discovered, in which he suc-ceeded in making one grain of wheat, oats or rye do what 10, 20 or 30 times that number will usually do, and with this the results are better, the cereals cleaner and singularly free from smut or disease.

Hartman's experience extends over 10 years, in which he makes as high as 30 years, in which he makes as high as so stalks grow from one grain sowed freely. Hartman's system is to broadcast the seed. After that he runs a flat board to level the ground, which is followed by a 60-tooth scratch harrow to "fine" the ground. Three cultivations are made with a weeder, the first time when the grain is about three weeks high. Fol-lowing this first cultivation the stooling process begins. Extra stalks shoot out from the bottom, very much like the roots of asparagus, and shooting up, grow into perfect heads. As many as 30 heads have been counted, but the average is from six to eight. Each one of these heads has its full quota of grains, which just multiplies the crop by as many imes as the farmer can succeed in grow-ing additional heads from each single grain that is sowed. Another big ad-vantage of Hartman's system is the fact that all of his grain has been 98 per cent. pure, and in addition to this his wheat has singularly been clean of beard. Hartman is considerably enthused at his success, and has written to the United States Department of Agriculture of his Wangen's Fountain of Wine. A fountain of wine is one of those historical extravagances which are generally associated with the name of Nero, yet on every July 13 the public fountain of Wangen, in the Alsace wine country, flows with wine. In the middle ages the commune of Wangen was sentenced to make an annual payment to the monastery of Strasburg of at least they are left out of doors until after the first "freeze up." Since that date a communal festival has been held on that day, and from the public fountain erected to commemorate the victory wine flows for one hour in the day .- Westminster Gazette.

No Complaint to Make.

It was at the vaudeville. The girl with the excruciating voice had just finished her song.

"Just think!" groaned Brown to the stranger beside him. "We paid real money to bear that!"

"I didn't." was the placid response "Came in on a 'comp.'

"But you had to spend car fare to get here. did you not?" asked Brown.

"Nope." replied the uncomplaining one. "I live in walking distance."

"But," persisted Brown desperately, "at least you hoped to be entertained, not punished.'

"No. I didn't care," grinned the stranger. "I came to get away from home. My wife is cleaning house."-Judge.
