

24 Lose Out in Dynamite Case.

Decision Declares Iron Workers Are Guilty of Dynamite Outrages and Sentences Are Upheld.

The judgment of the federal court of Indianapolis, Ind., sentencing to prison thirty members of the International Association of Structural Iron Workers in the dynamite conspiracy cases was affirmed by the United States circuit court of appeals in Chicago in twenty-four cases, and reversed in six cases.

The cases reversed were remanded to the lower court for retrial. The defendants in these cases are: Olaf A. Tveitmo, San Francisco; William McCain, Kansas City, Mo.; James E. Ray, Peoria, Ill.; Richard H. Houlihan, Chicago; Fred Sherman, Indianapolis; William Bernhardt, Cincinnati.

The sentence of seven years of penal servitude against Frank M. Ryan, Chicago, president of the association, was affirmed. He was the only one of the convicted men in court to hear the decision.

There were thirty-two convictions on the charge of conspiracy to transport dynamite illegally. Two of the convicted men did not appear.

No effort will be made by the government to compel the return to prison of the men denied retrial, pending argument on their petition for a rehearing. If this petition is denied they will appeal to the United States supreme court.

In respect to the appeal of Ryan the decision reads: "This plaintiff was president of the association and its active manager. Letters written by him at various stages show his familiarity with the long course of destroying open shop structures. Ryan wrote the letter suggesting that reports of expenditures be discontinued 'while our trouble is on.' He signed all of the checks presented in evidence as used for the purchase of explosives. Ryan in his own testimony confirms the evidence of his complicity."

Concerning Eugene A. Clancy, of San Francisco, the decision states that he is conspiring with the McNamara and Herbert S. Hockin, who is serving his sentence, to blow up the Llewellyn Iron Works at Los Angeles, and for explosions in the east, is conclusively proved.

Michael J. Young, of Boston, the decision declared, had been proved guilty of conspiracy in connection with explosions in Boston, Springfield, Fall River and Somerset.

Frank C. Webb, of New York, had his appeal rejected on the basis of letters by him and testimony by Orlie McManigal, whose evidence frequently was referred to by the court.

J. E. Munsey, of Salt Lake City, is declared personally to have assisted James McNamara in explosions at Salt Lake. Peter J. Smith, of Cleveland, O., was chiefly implicated in McManigal's evidence. Paul T. Morin, of St. Louis; William E. Redding, of Milwaukee; Michael J. Hannan, of Scranton, Pa.; Murray L. Pennell, of Springfield, Ill.; and W. Bert Brown, of Kansas City, are declared fully implicated by McManigal's evidence.

The other men refused appeal are: Edward Smythe, of Peoria, Ill.; George Anderson, of Cleveland; Frank J. Higgins; Frank H. Painter, of Omaha; Fred J. Mooney, of Duluth, Minn.; William Shupe, of Chicago, and Michael J. Cunnane, of Philadelphia.

Slayer's Custodians Favor His Release Under Bonds of Federal Court.
The release on bail of Harry K. Thaw would not menace public safety, in the opinion expressed by two of his custodians at a public hearing in Concord, N. H., before the commission appointed by the federal court to pass upon Thaw's mental condition.

Holman A. Drew, sheriff of Coos county, and Clark D. Stevens, of the local police force, who have had Thaw in charge since September, favored his admission to bail.

Sheriff Drew said that Thaw had not shown any tendency towards violence, and had manifested no ill-temper.

Men Found In Lifeboat Were All Left of Eleven, Six Drowning Before Help Could Reach Them.

The Booth line ship Gregory arrived at New York, bringing five survivors of the oil tanker Oklahoma, which buckled and broke in two off Sandy Hook lightship early on Sunday morning.

These men were snatched out of the sea Sunday afternoon, and to do this the first, second and third officers of the Gregory dived over the rail with their storm clothes on and grabbed two of the five as they were floating past in the heavy sea then running, grabbed a third who died as he reached safety, and towed the other three clinging to their capsized lifeboat within reach of the life lines.

The five men thus saved, added to the eight who will arrive in Boston on the Hamburg-American liner Bavaria, make thirteen human beings accounted for out of the crew of forty of the oil tank steamship of the Gulf Refining company which left New York on Saturday for Port Arthur, Texas.

Hope that eight more of the Oklahoma's crew had escaped in an open boat was abandoned when a wireless message was received from the captain of the United States revenue cutter Seneca to the effect that one of the sunken vessel's boats had been picked up with three bodies in it.

The rescued men on the Gregory told a thrilling story of their experience. For six hours after leaving the Oklahoma in a lifeboat they were tossed about on the crests of the waves and the boat time after time was nearly swamped by the gigantic sea.

These survivors revealed for the first time how the disaster actually occurred.

The five men were together when a terrific wave crashed into the Oklahoma amidst Sunday morning, breaking her back. The after part of the ship had partially broken away, a bulkhead was staggering drunkenly in the terrific swell. Other members of the crew came running up and two lifeboats were swung overboard.

In the first boat were eleven men. The second boat was full. The boats parted, and those in the first boat, including the five who were saved, worked desperately to keep their craft from going under.

Just as the Gregory came in sight at 1.30 o'clock in the afternoon a wave overtook the first boat. It was righted with difficulty, because the men were nearly perished with cold. A second and third time waves rolled the boat over. Six of the men were unable to cling to the craft and sank to their death, and the other five were picked up a short time afterward.

When it was seen that the fight was proving too much for the men Roberts, Second Officer Williams and Chief Officer Robert H. Buck tied ropes about some of the men. The into the sea to aid those struggling in the water. They helped to get rope about some of the men. The five saved were placed in the ship's hospital.

Morgan & Co. Quit Big Corporations.
J. P. Morgan & Co. announced in New York city that they had severed their connection with some of the greatest corporations in the country with which they have long been connected.

This step, the firm announced, was taken voluntarily in response to "an apparent change in public sentiment" on account of "some of the problems and criticisms having to do with so-called inter-locking directorates."

J. P. Morgan made this statement: "The necessity of attending many board meetings has been so serious a burden upon our time that we have long wished to withdraw from the directorates of many corporations. Most of these directorships we have accepted with reluctance, and only because we felt constrained to keep in touch with properties which we had reorganized, or whose securities we had recommended to the public, both here and abroad."

"An apparent change in public sentiment in regard to directorships now seems to warrant us in seeking to resign from some of these connections. Indeed, it may be in view of the change in sentiment upon the subject that we shall be in a better position to serve such properties and their security holders if we are not directors. We have already resigned from the companies mentioned and we expect from time to time to withdraw from other boards upon which we feel there is no special obligation to remain."

Employees Will Share Millions.
Announcement was made by the Ford-Motor company, of Detroit, Mich., of a profit-sharing scheme by which $10,000,000, approximately half the earnings of the concern, will be distributed annually to its employees.

At the same time it was announced that the working day for the men would be cut one hour, making an eight-hour day, with no decrease in pay, and that 4000 new employees are to be added to the company's working force immediately, making a total of 22,000 men.

Under the terms of the plan, the company announced, no employee of twenty-two years of age or over will receive less than $5 for an eight-hour day. The minimum wages for employees is now $2.34 for a nine-hour day.

In connection with the launching of the profit sharing plan, the Ford company has organized a sociological department which will keep close watch on the manner of living of all employees, and those found to be using their extra money in any improper manner will immediately cease to be beneficiaries under the plan.

Dr. S. Weir Mitchell Is Dead.

Dr. S. Weir Mitchell, noted author and physician, died at his home in Philadelphia. Death was due to an acute attack of the grip, the seriousness of which was accentuated by his advanced age, eighty-five years.

Silas Weir Mitchell was born in Philadelphia on Feb. 15, 1829. He was educated in the grammar schools of the city and entered the medical department of the University of Pennsylvania. Owing to sickness, however, he was forced to leave in the middle of his senior year. He later finished his course and was given his degree by the Jefferson Medical college.

"It is seldom," says one author, in writing of Dr. Mitchell, "that a man is successful in two professions. The author of 'Hugh Wynne' is one of the few who can claim that distinction."

Talks to Friend's Wife; Shot.
Clarence E. Caulk, a jeweler in Sharpsstown, Md., shot and seriously wounded Leroy C. Longfellow while Longfellow was seated in Caulk's store in conversation with Caulk's wife and Charley Walker.

Five shots were fired from a revolver, but only two hit Longfellow, one on the chin, making an ugly wound. The other entered the back on the left just above the kidneys, passed through the left side, lodged in the front of the abdomen. Caulk was arrested and held in $1000 bail.

Before leaving for the hospital Longfellow, realizing the seriousness of his condition, made a sworn statement as to the shooting, in which he stated that he knew of no reason why Caulk should shoot him. Caulk made no public statement, only that he and Longfellow knew why the shooting occurred.

Boy Killed by Schoolmate.
In the presence of more than a hundred of his schoolmates in the yard of the high school in Elkton, Md., Paul McCall, nine years old, was shot and instantly killed by George Short, thirteen years old, another schoolboy.

Before the fatal shot was fired the McCall boy had been ordered by Short to go downtown and purchase more cartridges for the pistol with which the shooting was done. When he refused Short pointed the weapon at him and fired at close range.

According to statements made to the police the two boys were shooting at a target in the rear of the school building. Young Short was arrested.

The Spirit of Winter.
The Spirit of Winter is with us, making its presence known in many different ways—sometimes by cheery sunshine and glistening snows, and sometimes by driving winds and blinding storm. To many people it seems to take a delight in making bad things worse, for rheumatism twists harder, twinges sharper, catarrh becomes more annoying, and the many symptoms of scrofula are developed and aggravated. There is not much poetry in this, but there is truth, and it is a wonder that more people don't get rid of these ailments. The medicine that cures them—Hood's Sarsaparilla—is easily obtained and there is abundant proof that its cures are radical and permanent.
